Ras. Bryant dropped dead in the brewery saloon at Grangeville last Wednesday evening.

J. T. Hale, Ed. Bradford and ye editor made a business trip to Grangeville last Saturday, returning Sunday. While there we learned that there is only one case of small pox at that place, Dr. J. A. Gooper's baby, and one at Denver, Mrs. Dave Yates.

Rev. Bucholz, the new Methodist minister preached his initial sermon at this place last Sunday. There will be services here regularly in the future. This is Rev. Bucholz's first ministerial venture, but we predict for him a decided success.

The wind storm last Tuesday carried off, among other things in this neighborhood, the sign on the CHRONICLE office. Let none of our patrons think we have moved. We are here yet and as ready as ever to give satisfaction in anything in our line.

Pearson & Wood are now receiving their new stock of drugs with which they will open their drug store next the Jersey house. The shelving is now being completed. The boys have plenty of friends who wish them success in their new undertaking.—Free Press.

Any of our readers wanting light, highly profitable employment, should send 15c to the Echo Novelty Co., Echo, New York, for one of their Engraved Novelty Show Card Signs, 11x14. Catalogue and terms to agents. Exclusive territory given.

An effort is being made by some of the leading Catholics of the prairie to have a resident priest to look after the spiritual welfare of the parishes of Cottonwood and Grangeville. It is believed that the negotiations are far enough along that services can be promised in a month.—Standard.

Cottonwood now boasts four street lamps, and they are good ones, too. S. Goldstone, A. B. Rooke, W. L. Brown and H. H. Nuxoll are in possession of the lamps already up and the brewery, Elite, postoffice and harness shop will soon put up lights. 'Tis a good thing and will make travel on our streets as safe by night as by day.

Halloween passed over in the usual time for most people in this city, but for a number of boys it lasted several days. On Halloween night these boys made it their business to overturn most of the smaller outhouses in the upper end of town, including those belonging to the public school. The school board next morning promptly had the youngsters brought up before Justice Wolbert, who turned them loose after they had promised to make good all damage done. The boys went to work feeling like 30cets and erected all the buildings they had turned over (finding it a much harder job) and reshingled one the roof of which had been smashed in the fall. Well, they'll learn after a while, may be.
