ARE YOU GUILTY?

A FARMER carrying an express package from a big mail-order house was accosted by a local dealer.

"Why didn't you buy that bill of goods from me? I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this locality."

The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and then said:

"Why don't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know that you had the stuff I have here."

How to Give Good Advice.

Farm and Garden

BUILD UP TIRED LAND.

Nature Should Be Helped to Restore Hard Worked Fields.

[Dr. H. E. Brown, Mississippi station.]

Help nature build up the fields that have worked too hard and have been turned out to rest. If grasses, corn-stalks, leaves and other organic materials are left on the land they will decay and add humus to the soil. Where these materials are burned off, however, all the organic substances are given off in the form of gases and only the mineral matter is left in the ash.

The improvement to the land if all grasses and other growth were allowed to rot instead of being burned would be worth millions of dollars to any state. The destruction of useful plants is another harmful result of burning off the fields. Fire will totally destroy the seed of all the true clovers, which are invaluable as soil builders. Many of the most valuable grasses can be killed by burning. Even Bermuda will die if burned repeatedly. Perhaps the greatest harm is done in the woods by the killing out of seeds as they drop from the trees and by killing the young trees, thus preventing the reproduction of forests.

Besides the damage done by fires in the removal of plant food and killing out of vegetation they greatly hasten erosion. On the other hand, the corn-stalks and grasses in the fields and the sage grasses in worn out soils prevent the rains washing out gullies and help to hold the water as it soaks into the ground.

PREPARING THE DASHEEN.

A Staple Article of Food in the South is Invading the North.

The dasheen, which has been successfully raised in some of our southern states and Arizona, has become quite popular as a rival to the potato. It outdoes the potato in that it can be grown as a summer crop in a region where the potato must be grown almost entirely as a spring crop. It ripens its tubers in October and furnishes them for the table at a season when northern grown potatoes have to be shipped in.

This vegetable is a staple article of food for millions of people in tropical and subtropical countries. In general it is used in the different ways in which the white potato and the sweet potato are used. The flesh of the large spherical corms and of the larger tubers (which are usually much smaller than the corms) is frequently somewhat gray or violet when cooked, but this does not affect the flavor. Baked dasheens, stuffed dasheens, scalloped dasheens, boiled dasheens, fried dasheens, mashed dasheens, creamed dasheens, dasheen salad, dasheens as filling for fowls and other meats, dasheen soup, candied dasheens, dasheen pie, dasheen pudding, dasheen shoots, dasheen greens—prepare and cook as you would potatoes. This is a novelty that amateur gardeners will enjoy trying.

Success in the Vegetable Garden.

Have good soil properly prepared. Purchase seeds from a reliable seed house. Always sow seeds according to directions. Give proper cultivation from the time the seedlings appear until the crop is harvested. A heavy clay soil will not produce good vegetables. Clay soil should be lightened by applying siftings from coal ashes or sand and lime should be used freely, with plenty of stable manure.

Cultivation must begin as soon as the seedlings appear, and sometimes before, keeping the weeds from getting a start. Never allow the ground to become hard or "baked" on the surface. When the seedlings are tall enough to thin give the plants ample room.—W. M. L., Batesville, Ind.

INCUBATOR HINTS.

See that the incubator is running steadily at the desired temperature before filling with eggs. Do not add fresh eggs to a tray containing eggs which are undergoing incubation.

Turn the eggs twice daily after the second until the nineteenth day. Cool the eggs once daily, according to the weather, from the seventh to the nineteenth day.

Turn the eggs before caring for the lamps.

Attend to the machine regularly at regular hours.

Keep the lamp and wick clean.

Test the eggs on the seventh and fourteenth days.

Do not open the machine after the eighteenth day until the chickens are hatched.—American Agriculturist.
