Otto Ries sold his farm west of Ferdinand recently to Chris. Roeper and will hold a sale of his personal property on Nov. 20th. His son, who has been running the farm, will later go to Wyoming where he filed on a homestead last summer. Read their sale ad in this issue.

Heavy loads of grain are still being hauled into town and are cutting the soft roads up pretty badly. The recent snow laid on the roads just long enough to soften up the surface and this allows them to become cut up rather easily. Considerable dragging will be necessary to smooth them down before freezing weather comes.

Joe Pukorney got his right leg cut severely in a wire fence while working on a farm in the Greencreek section the first of the week. He was riding a horse and chasing other horses into the barn when the animal he was riding was not able to stop quickly enough and ran sideways into the wire fence, catching the rider's leg in the wire and cutting it to the bone just above the ankle. Several small tendons were severed and the leg bone sawed to some extent. Dr. Orr dressed the injury and had to take nine stitches in closing the wound. The patient is here in town where he can receive daily attention and unless blood poisoning should set in will make rapid recovery.
