Chronic Office over W. H. Bryarly's Store.

While we were passing down the street, last Sunday morning, opposite the Post Office, our attention was suddenly called to the startling fact, that one of O. W. Herring's horses, in a buggy, was advancing down Franklin Street towards the Public Square, at a fearful rate, running away with the buggy, and evidently beyond the control of the driver.

For awhile, the pace was tremendous, but the driver displayed admirable coolness and self-possession, bracing himself in his seat, and holding the reins with a fine hand, to be ready to avail himself of any advantage that might present itself.

How we wished for a good pistol or rifle to stop the career of that mad and infuriated animal, for in a straight course, not more than one hundred yards before him, was the abrupt bluff that terminates Franklin Street, and opens by the Franklin House, down to the river, with a sudden declivity that would have precipitated both horse and driver into inevitable destruction.

The fate of the gallant driver now seemed to hang upon a brittle thread. His only chance of escape, was either to turn the horse into the stable before he reached the square, or run the risk of diverting him from this stupendous leap, by turning him abruptly around Hart's corner. He chose the former alternative.

As the flying horse neared the stable, he gave him a wider berth, with a view to turn him into the stable if possible, but in so doing, the buggy careened, and threw the unfortunate driver head foremost against the wall of the Livery Stable upon the pavement, on one side of the door. We thought he must certainly be killed.

How any man could undergo such a fall without breaking his neck, was a mystery. We ran to him, as quick as possible, and what was our horror to discover, in the features of the mangled and bleeding body before us, the lineaments of our friend "Dutch."

For several moments he did not move or speak. The blood gushed freely from his mouth and nostrils. He was carried into the adjoining room, to all appearance dead, or in a dying state. Dr. Branson was promptly on the ground, and in a few minutes Drs. Haskins and Dangerfield appeared, who relieved the apprehensions of Dutch's friends, by stating that probably the hurt might not be a serious one, and that they could discover no dangerous symptoms.

But it is very evident, that Dutch was not meant to be killed by a horse. We are happy to be able to announce that he is on his legs again. Dutch is a good clever fellow, and every body will be pleased to learn that he is likely to sustain no serious injury from his fall.

The community could as little do without Dutch, as Owen Herring, and that's saying a good deal for him. We wish him every degree of success and prosperity, and hope that hereafter, instead of allowing the horse to "get him down" as he did in the present case, he will hereafter manage the horse, and keep down his fiery propensity to run away.

G. A. Linn & Co., have received a choice lot of Preserves, Pie and table Fruits, which surpass anything of the kind ever brought to this market.

Our city has resumed its wonted activity and business appearance, since the recent rise in the river, which has been prayed, and wished for so long. Business men who had doled out their last dollar, to eager and expectant creditors, are flush again in currency, and we almost feel as though the pressure had never spread its blighting and withering influence over our community.

It is true that property of nearly every kind, has depreciated in value, but altogether it seems a blessing rather than a curse upon a respectable portion of our population—laborers, and those who have not been so indolent as to run heavily in debt. The first are enabled to purchase provisions and clothing at a greatly reduced price, while their wages have not suffered a proportional decrease.

Those out of debt, are happy in the contemplation of their much-envied situation, and are satisfied to sell their produce for a less sum, when that sum will buy so many more of the luxuries and conveniences of life, than it would six months ago.

Altogether this peaceful and happy state of the public mind, presents a striking contrast to some of the recent developments in New York. It is really a humiliating spectacle in this day of political advancement and enlightenment, to witness the civil authorities of that city, "held at bay" by a rascally, shirt-tailed, tatter-demallion, sans-culotte,—breecless—mob, carrying through the streets a seditious and treasonable rag upon a pole, bearing the infamous motto "Bread or Blood," and alleging their necessities as an excuse for the crime of public robbery.

Truly this is a novel and most strange doings equaling in political heresy the palmiest days of the reign of terror, that devolves upon the government, as a duty to support and maintain every loafer who places himself in a situation where he can't learn a livelihood. Such however, is the natural denouement of Mayor Wood's incendiary and disorganizing proclamation, that the citizens of New York should give no man an excuse for violence or deprecation, upon property by withholding bread from his children; and that the vicious and the vile should be stuffed and fed until their rapacious maws are distended to keep them from plundering the worthy and industrious citizens.

The argument of these modern Revolutionists seems to be that when a man is starving he has a right to resort to force, to relieve his necessities. Once put this maxim into practical operation, and every unrequited bye-way would immediately become invested with these unfortunate, presenting a pistol at your breast, and demanding "your money or your life."

If this position be sound, we can very readily perceive a reason why all the peaceable property-holders of New York should desire such despicable rascals to steal their property, rather than to plunder them as being a mode of acquiescence less calculated to produce a breach of the peace and a bloody public riot. This at least appears to be the inference, to be drawn from the chivalric blacksmith, William Bowles, who in a speech is reported to have said, "the moneyed men must shell out to the poor; and if they will not, the musket must be the result."

We are shocked at this exhibition of barbarism, jacobinism, mobocracy, and earnestly hope that the civil authorities of New York may early take vigorous and effective measures to put a stop to this nefarious treason.

We publish below, a letter to the Clarksville Literary Association, from B. P. Shillaber, Esq., from which it will be seen, our citizens will soon have an opportunity of hearing this distinguished gentleman, so widely known, as the author of "Mrs. Partington."

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 5th 1857. GENTLEMEN—I am to be in Evansville, Indiana, Dec. 3d, please reckon the time necessary to reach you, and fix the day on which I shall stand before you. I am afraid I shall not come up to your ideal of me, as I am a plain unpretending man, and do not snap in every line like a torpedo, but only bubble a little with the quiet Partingtonian effervescence. It is too often fatal to a man, we have known in print, to become personally acquainted with him, and should you not see the cap and specs, you may be disappointed; yet I'll run the risk and be with you, if everything holds to appoint the union of the North and South with the oil of palms.

MINOR, the Barber, No. 3, Strawberry Alley, is prepared to shave gentlemen at the shortest notice. Minor is a good Barber, and can fix you off in fine style.

HON. A. W. VENABLE, in a speech before the Agricultural Society of North Carolina, stated that the Chinese Sugar Cane was a preventative of Typhoid Fever.

THE COMBINATION PATENT PORTABLE STEAM SAW-MILL. This Mill is fast coming into use in every section of this country, Canada, Cuba, and South America. It has received the endorsement of several thousand experienced lumber manufacturers, and is pronounced by all who have examined its operation, to be the most simple, efficient, and practical machine for the purpose ever produced.

Description of the First, or Smallest size. As will be seen from the engraving, the lower part of the mill is composed of a simple frame, the timbers of which are about eight inches square, either of hard wood, securely fastened together with strong iron bolts. This framework is 7 feet long, 7 feet deep below the bed pieces, and 5 feet wide. The main shaft is 3 1/2 inches in diameter, and the driving pulley 22 inches in diameter, and 3 inch face. The pitman wheel is of solid iron, and is three feet in diameter.

PORTABILITY AND FREIGHTAGE. The mill and power as described above, all complete, with the exception of the bed pieces and woodwork of the carriage, with the locomotive boiler, weighs about 5 1/2 tons, with cylinder boiler about 6 tons, and the woodwork of the carriage, the whole put up and boxed, and delivered in St. Louis, for $1,750.

HOW MUCH IT WILL DO. The speed of this mill is about three hundred strokes of the saw per minute, and the feed from 1 to 1 1/2 of an inch for every stroke, depending upon the character of the timber. Thus, at a medium speed, the saw would cut through a log twelve feet long in from one to two minutes.

PRICE. We furnish these mills and powers, as described above, including all the screws, bolts, belting, grate-bars, saw, supply-pump, wrenches, crow-bars, and everything necessary for raising, excepting the two long bed pieces and the woodwork of the carriage, the whole put up and boxed, and delivered in St. Louis, for $1,750.

SECOND SIZE. This mill is constructed on the same plan as the other, and is about one-third larger and heavier. It requires more power to drive it to its full speed, and will saw a much larger amount in any given time. The saw is eight feet in length, sufficient for the largest and heaviest timber in any section.
