

VOLUME 11.

Business Cards.

H. H. POSTON, Agent for THE SOUTHERN EXPRESS COMPANY. PENNSYLVANIA RAIL ROAD. CHARTER OAK FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE CO. QUAKER CITY INSURANCE COMPANY. CHARTER OAK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Fire Proof Warehouse

C. H. SMITH, TOBACCO SALESMAN, RECEIVING & FORWARDING MERCHANT. CLARKSVILLE, TENNESSEE.

HOWELL, BLACKMAN & CO., GENERAL RECEIVING, FORWARDING AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS. CITY FIRE-PROOF WAREHOUSE.

McCLURE & COURTS, CLARKSVILLE, TENNESSEE.

CLARK, MITCHELL & CO., Commission Merchants, Cincinnati, Ohio.

B. DUFFIELD, Commission, Receiving and Forwarding Merchant, NEW ORLEANS.

O. W. DAVIS, Receiving and Forwarding Merchant, AND STEAM BOAT AGENT, WILKINSON DELAWARE.

DR. W. T. M'BREYNOLDS, OFFICE ON STRAWBERRY ALLEY, Clarksville Tenn.

KIMBLE & DANIEL, ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Office on Strawberry Alley, CLARKSVILLE, TENNESSEE.

B. A. ROGERS, Attorney at Law, Office on Strawberry Alley, Clarksville, Tennessee.

W. & W. E. LOWE, Attorneys at Law, CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

Given, Watts & Co., TOBACCO FACTORS, NEW ORLEANS.

Clarksville Chronicle.

Printed Weekly, on a double-magnitud sheet every Friday morning, by NEBLETT & GRANT, Publishers and Proprietors. TERMS: $2 PER ANNUM IN ADVANCE.

The Union Movement.

As the low but distinct mutterings of heaven's artillery gave notice of the approach of the refreshing storm, which moistens the parched soil and saves from destruction the drooping vegetation, so now, when the heat of our country is greatest, and our institutions are apparently in peril, do we hear the subdued growlings of the popular temper, which is rising rapidly, and will shortly sweep the Union from the furthest extremity of Maine to the Rio Grande del Norte.

The people see very plainly that those who have been controlling the machinery of party movements are unworthy of confidence, because, while most loudly proclaiming impending danger to the Union, they have been most energetically adding fuel to the bonfire of discord.

Clay, though dead, yet lives. He lives in the undying principles of the Whig party; he lives in the patriotism of the country; he lives in all the acts of sober, wise, and judicious legislation, and he lives in the hearts of millions, both North and South, who are willing and anxious to perpetuate our glorious Union.

Mr. Everett: Will you permit an old line Whig to speak a few words through your excellent paper, concerning the present state of political affairs? When long established abuses are removed, and the men who advocated them shun their power, then the friends of order and justice have a right to rejoice.

From the Trenton Standard. The Signs of the Times. Mr. Everett: Will you permit an old line Whig to speak a few words through your excellent paper, concerning the present state of political affairs?

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

A Douglas Man on the Objects and Tendency of the Breckinridge Movement.

The following is an extract from a speech of the Hon. Pierre Soule, of Louisiana, on the vote of that State for Mr. Douglas in the Convention, which nominated Mr. Douglas. It will be seen that he charges boldly that disunion connects controlled the Breckinridge secession, and that disunion as a result is the tendency of their conduct.

When this Convention assembled at Charleston, the idea had not yet struck the minds that a movement of the nature of the one which was effected could be based upon the doctrines of the distinguished gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Yancey), who has fathered this secession. It was presumed by those political intriguers, outside of the Convention, who were manufacturing the measures through which the destruction of the democratic party was to be effected—that it was presumed by them that it would be in their power, after raising their storm to master and guide it.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

The Prospects in Virginia.

Never before in the history of the Old Commonwealth were there so gloomy a cloud hanging over the position to reëlect Virginia from the iron throne of Democracy. Fettered, bound down, prostrated, the Whigs of the Mother of Statesmen have for many decades presented to the world the attitude of the "Tyrant in the State's coat of arms."

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

Hauling Down a Sectional Flag and Raising a National.

We were much gratified, on opening the Hayneville Watchman received yesterday, to find the Constitutional Union flag, on which is inscribed the truly national motto of Bell and Everett, floating from its mast-head. The Watchman has, since the nomination, supported the Breckinridge and Lane ticket, but cannot longer stand the sectional ensign, and therefore abandons them, for the noble standard-bearers of our glorious party. The Watchman is published in the heart of the rich and populous county of Loudon, and gives evidence of doing yeoman service in the good cause. We select the following passage from its leading article—Vash. Banner.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

Arrival of the Africa.

New York, July 20.—The steamship Africa, from Liverpool the 7th via Queenstown the 8th, has arrived. The Viceroy arrived at Queenstown and the Arago at Southampton on the 6th.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

Douglas in Tennessee and Kentucky.

The friends of Douglas in this State have called a Convention to meet in this city on the 25th to nominate an electoral ticket. The indications are that they will put forth able champions. The Memphis Appeal speaks of the Douglas feeling as gaining strength in West Tennessee. In the last issue at hand it remarks—Banner.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

Burr and Breckinridge!

The following editorial paragraph from the Louisville Democrat, of Wednesday last, is altogether too interesting and remarkable to be withheld from our readers:

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.

ALONE. Alone, alone, my aching heart and soul, Yes, dead to every earthly hope and love, To the bright stars of heaven, my only friends, That passion from my soul will never remove.