The Toledo Blade (Republican) protests vigorously against the "currency brokers," as it calls them, who by contraction of the currency would force on the resumption of specie payments. It says with great good sense:

"The business of the United States never suffered so much from the lack of specie as it has from a steady contraction of the currency. As a patient pines when his blood is insufficient for his bodily vigor, so the business of a country languishes when the circulating medium, be it paper or gold, is insufficient. A symptom of this appears when manufacturers and other employers of men ask their workmen to take 'orders' and 'store pay' in compensation for the lack of currency, and when they are compelled to endure the inconveniences of this execrable system. We are no advocates of a redundant currency. But better ten million dollars less, than a man would rather suffer a few pangs from dyspepsia than endure the agonies of starvation. The evil arising from overloading of paper money is not so easily met. So the evils of an inadequate currency are vastly greater than real or supposed inconveniences resulting from the lack of currency. It is immediately convertible into specie."

The greatest evil we have suffered since the close of the war has been the immense diminution of the circulating medium. We had in 1865, with eleven States not taking it, between ten and eleven hundred million dollars in currency. We now, in all the States, with a considerable increase in population, have but six hundred and fifty millions of money in circulation. It is not only a matter of fact, but a matter of common sense, that when we consider everything, more than fifty per cent. This forced reduction has borne heavily upon the debtor class. It has seriously injured every branch of business. Laboring industries in 1865 sold for up to 145, with an advancing tendency. During the war, on a smaller currency, it had been up to 120. It was then (in 1865) that the currency contract was made. The result has been that day to this we have been afflicted with what the Blade calls the currency brokers, who, under a pretended notion that the country was suffering from a shortage of specie, commenced their suicidal work, which they are still proposing to carry on. The object of this has been to make the U. S. bond at par with specie. The result has been that class of capitalists have been alone consulted by the majority of the Representatives in Congress, who have either been elected or purchased by them. Cincinnati Eng. Trer.

Shameful Outrage. The Charlotte (N. C.) Southern Home, edited by Gen. D. H. Hill, photographs a scene in the principal street of that town as follows:

On the ninth inst., ninety quiet, respectable farmers, of Rutherford, Cleveland and Lincoln counties, were marched through our streets by the lowest and vilest of thirty United States Marshals and picked out of the Raleigh train, to attend the United States Court. Some of the prisoners were carrying their bed clothes, strapped on their backs too poor to pay their hotel bills. Some were accompanied by their wives, some by their friends and neighbors, etc. The entire crowd amounted to two hundred persons, all torn from their business, to be dragged three hundred miles to attend a court, which, but for an insurrection might have been held within a few miles of the homes of the prisoners. Gangs of Negroes followed the prisoners to the depot, jeering, taunting and laughing at them. Here they were suited up in military uniforms, and suits became more provoking, and cries went up from the excited mob, "D—n the Ku-klux," "hang de last one of dem," "dey is gwine to catch h—n now," etc.

The Election in Texas.

The Gatling gun policy failed in Texas after all. The Administration has met with another blow, which should at least sink it into a consciousness of its folly. The New York World, summing up the official returns, says:

"We have at least the official returns of the special Congressional election held in October last. Despite the fact that the polls were kept open four days—this measure of facilitation for the trotting of blacks from precinct to precinct—the Democratic ticket Texas laws for all elections—and notwithstanding the terrific sparring, expungement, and elimination to which the democratic vote was subjected by 'old' canvassers, the total vote was: democratic, 62,525; republican, 48,771, democratic majority, 13,754. A vote of 23,385 over the last Congressional vote, which stood: democratic, 31,888; republican, 24,513; republican majority, 7,375. Then the delegation stood one democratic and three republican; now three democratic and one republican, an that one only in on a contested certificate. To estimate the worth of this triumph it must be borne in mind that the republican Governor, Davis, had the State swarming with about thirty thousand ill-disciplined Mexican negroes, white desperadoes, and other scum, armed, mounted, and paid at public cost; had in addition a select brigade of detectives on duty; still in addition to all this, the republican party had a voter to remain in town after casting his ballot, and declared the usual election burning cause for leaving the morning there, and mail three villages. But violence failed with this Texas man, as it failed with Drake in Missouri and Brownlow in Tennessee, and will fail yet with their White Horse imitator."

The Merit of the Republican Party.

Wendell Phillips says the merit of the Republican party is, "that it is the first sectional party ever formed in the United States. It does not know its own place, and calls itself a national party, but it is not a national party. The Republican party is the party of the North, pledged against the South, pledged against the South to the end of time."

The Model Wife.

Rev. Dr. A. A. Willis, in a recent lecture delivered in Brooklyn, described the model wife of ancient times. Among other traits of her character which he referred to, was her industry. He said:

"She was the model woman of that period, for this age and for all ages to come. Custom and customs had changed, but all the essential features of womanly character are as fitting now as then. The speaker then read the description of her in the Book of Proverbs, and remarked that all that human genius had labored for centuries to embody in marble, on canvas, or in the pages of poetry, for conception of that which was true and graceful and beautiful in woman, we might challenge the whole world to bring a picture of woman worthy to be compared with this. The whole picture was lighted up with the glow of a most cheerful activity. She not only superintended the duties of her household, but worked with her own hands. The daughters of modern society might here find a useful hint. The idea presented, now-as-then, to a good extent, is a frail being, supported by weakness. The hearty, vigorous, blushing rose used to be the emblem of beauty, but it is now the lily, even though lily white be made accessory to such a result. It might be truly said of them, 'The lily is not as sturdy as the spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.' The idea of domestic industry being vulgar is one of the conceits of modern days. Neither rich nor poor were exempt from the divine law that industry was healthful and proper. You, ladies, be to model wives, should be industrious."

The Horrors of Havana.

Further particulars of the murder of the young students in Havana, are coming out little by little. It is well known to-day in that city that at first that only four of the lads were condemned to death, but the court considered the number too small. So little blood would not suffice to quench the thirst of the howling mob outside, and it was determined to draw four more by lot. It so happened that the die Bernudez brothers were drawn. One of the Judges, Apollinar del Rato, exclaimed: "This is horrible! How can we snatch two sons away from the arms of their mother? The Bernudez brothers were condemned to death, and the other to the chain-gang. Young Verdugo, who was shot, was with his mother at the church of Nuestra Señora del Pilar when the supposed desecrations of graves took place, and another victim, the little fellow Lleray M-dina, was with his family in Matanzas.

Governor Brown of Tennessee.

The Pulaski Citizen, speaking of a recent visit of Gov. Brown to Pulaski, Tenn., says:

The Governor is hopeful of the future, and thinks there is a tide coming, upon which we may ride out of our national difficulties, if we will only wait for it and take it at the flood. He thinks the Democratic party is the hope of the country, and zealously opposes a dissolution or disbandment of the party organization. We may have to wait a while before the moderate Republicans to do the present administration, the future alone can reveal the best policy to pursue—but for the present the Democratic party should not be dismantled or deserted. When it is proven that grand old Democratic army cannot succeed with its own captain, and without aid, then, with the party organization intact, they will march to the aid of any other party to beat the Grant administration.

Labor and Capital.

There is a great deal of tom-foolery extolled in the world about the relations of capital and labor; just as if they had not and would not always take care of themselves. A Boston workman, whose eyes are clearly opened to the facts of the case, offers a toast that covers the whole ground. He says: "Capital without labor is like faith without works—dead. Labor without capital is like works without faith—valueless. In the nature of things there is perfect harmony between them, and selfishness alone suggests any antagonism. Let capital beware lest it alienate labor. Let labor beware lest it cripple capital. Let capital say to labor, 'let me help you, and let labor say, 'I will, but let me hold one of the strings of thy purse.'"

Hog Cholera Cured.

In a late monthly report of the Department of Agriculture in Georgia, from one of its correspondents:

The hog cholera has prevailed to a considerable extent among the hogs in Dooley county, and no remedy for a cure has yet been discovered. We believe that it is contagious, and the best preventive I have found is the free use of spirits of turpentine, mixed with tar and a small quantity of camphor. It can be used externally or internally. I prefer the latter, by soaking corn in it for ten or twelve hours. I have never failed in arresting the disease.

Outment for Small Pox.

A physician in Sioux City, Iowa, uses an outment made of charcoal and lard to prevent pitting in small pox. This is applied freely over the face, hands and neck as soon as the disease is distinguished, and continued until symptoms of suppuration have ceased. The application allays the itching, and seems to shorten the duration of the disease, and leaves the patient without a blemish, the eruptions protected by the outment not even showing signs of pustulation; the charcoal preventing action of light, and the lard that of air.

Outment for Chapped Hands.

Take sweet oil, 3 ounces; spermaceti, 4 ounces, and pulverized camphor, 1 ounce. Mix them together in a clean earthenware vessel, by the aid of gentle heat, and apply it warm to the hands at night and morning. Another very good outment for chapped hands is made with a little fresh newly churned butter and honey.

The Electric Currents.

A California scientist declares that he has prolonged his life by sleeping with his finger tips touching his toes, and has invented a machine to hold the body in that graceful and pleasant position. He contends that the "vital electric currents"—on the principle, we suppose, of the smoke-consuming stove—"are thus kept in even circulation, instead of being thrown off at the extremities and wasted."

Abstracted.

A Nevada paper says: A preacher not a thousand miles from Pueblo, and who engages in frequent wild land speculations, has the following good story told of him: "Presiding not long since, on the line of the Denver and Rio Grande Railway, along the Fountain, he opened services with a rather abstracted air, as follows: 'My text, brethren, will be found in the first epistle to Timothy, section 15, township 21 south, range 65 west.'"

The River Improvement of Harpeth Shoals.

Captain James H. Maddox has returned to Louisville from the work of improvement on Harpeth Shoals, having been driven out by the high water. The important work was commenced last July, and has progressed most satisfactorily. His General Weitzel to suggest, define and plan, and Captain Maddox to execute and push forward, the improvement in the river channel has progressed so far that a rip-rap dike, equal to any in the country, has been constructed, the obstructions have been removed, and the channel so improved that it will admit of the largest steamers at a low stage of water. A trifling amount of work remains to be done to make navigation practicable, at all seasons of the year, from Nashville to Harpeth Island.

This enterprise reflects great credit upon General Weitzel and his admirable corps of engineers, including Captain Maddox and Colonel Albert, one of the most thoroughly educated and experienced engineers in the service of the Government, who
