CHRONICLE AND BURAL SUN. We will furnish the Chronicle and Rural Sun, for one year, for $3.50, to all who desire to club, as follows:

Any subscriber who may be indebted to us, by paying his arrearage and then paying $3.50 in advance, will receive both papers for one year.

All who renew their subscription by payment in advance.

All new subscribers who pay in advance. The Rural Sun is one of the oldest and most interesting agricultural papers published in the United States.

Our purpose to make the CHRONICLE every way worthy of extensive patronage and liberal support.

Our subscribers who get their papers from this office, on the county list, will please call at the room at the head of the first flight of stairs, at the room adjoining Dr. Larkin's office, where they will in future find their papers.

READING matter on every page. We are indebted to the Hon. W. C. Whitthorne, M. C., for sending us the Congressional Globe.

JAMES PARTON, the well known biographer, was put down for a lecture last night in Louisville. His subject was, "Who are the vulgar?"

MR. R. S. EVANS, of the Bowling Green Democrat, called at our office last Tuesday. He visited this city in the interest of his paper. The Democrat is a live paper, and is a credit to Bowling Green.

We are glad to notice the rapid restoration of Dr. Larkin to good health. His numerous friends, and especially his patients, are happy to learn that he is again vigorously engaged in the discharge of his professional duties.

LAST Tuesday night, Mr. T. J. Munford and Miss Marian Drane, of this city, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock. Tom, is one of nature's noblemen, and his bride a lady in the strictest sense—may happiness be theirs forever.

KINCANNON & HAMILLET, tinners, have dissolved partnership. Mr. Woods, from East Tennessee, buying Mr. Hamlett's interest, the firm will now be Kincannon & Woods. These deserving gentlemen will command a large share of patronage.

JESSE RAWLS will, in future conduct a wholesale and retail grocery business at the stand formerly occupied by G. A. Roth. He intends keeping a large stock, and will deal right with all who may patronize him. If honesty and industry will win, Jesse will certainly succeed, as he has both in an eminent degree.

We learn from Col. T. D. Leonard that Mr. Bradbrook, of Toledo, Talma co., Iowa, was in our city a few days ago, looking for a location to manufacture wagons, carriages, etc. He is one of four brothers, all skilled and experienced in the business which they purpose to establish at some eligible point, and, if practicable, in this State. We hope they may find it to their interest locate here.

An accident occurred at Allen's Switch last Sunday night, resulting in badly scalding Andrew Hasket, the fireman, and in scalding and injuring internally Andrew Cooper, the brakeman of the train. The man at the switch gave the signal for the train to move forward without having moved the switch. The locomotive was turned over and considerably damaged.

Mr. Cooper is now at the Southern Hotel, and is rapidly recovering from his injuries.

At the request of a party deeply interested in the trial of Davis, which trial is progressing whilst we write, we ask the public to suspend its judgment until the facts are brought out by judicial investigation. We agree with that party in the belief that it is an outrage upon justice to prejudice any criminal case that has to be acted upon by the courts, and that the people wrong themselves when they make up a verdict based upon unofficial or party statements. The laws recognize no tribunal, save the courts, as competent to pass upon the guilt or innocence of those accused of crime, and public justice should flow down any attempt, from any quarter, to usurp the functions of the courts, or to bias the sentiments of the community, from which a jury is to be selected, for or against the party accused.

THE INITIATIVE OF MANUFACTURING.

It has been characteristic of those who hold and control large capital, in all communities, and in every age, never to become pioneers in any enterprise. Capital is always cautious in proportion to its magnitude. And though it is natural enough for us all to complain, that those of our citizens who are financially able to establish manufacturing in this city, and thus inaugurate a new era of prosperity for Clarksville, have hitherto hesitated, to do so, and rather discouraged such attempts, yet nothing is more natural. For the initiative in manufacturing, in all parts of the world, has been the work of men of small, rather than large capital. After manufacturing in Clarksville has been practically demonstrated to be profitable, and not till then, we may expect the few of our citizens, who control large sums of money, to invest in such enterprises.

The effort must, therefore, be made first by those who can spare from their regular business small sums, say from fifty to one thousand dollars. We propose, then, that a fund be raised, in this way, and the larger the better, which fund shall be used to encourage manufacturing in this city, according to the most judicious and expedient plan that can be devised. We wish it to be understood that we stand pledged to make a donation, as large as we can afford, to this fund as soon as the preliminary steps can be taken to secure the proper collection and disposition of the money. We would be willing to-day to give $200, without expecting any other benefit, in return, than that which must result to every one, doing business here, from the establishment of manufacturing. Let us suppose that a furnace for smelting iron ore is built here and put into operation, and that, in order so, one hundred citizens give, upon an average $600 each, without expectation of receiving dividends. The furnace, if reasonably well managed, will be successful and prove a profitable enterprise. It will not long stand alone, but will soon be a powerful argument for the creation of others. With the successful manufacture of iron will, in a short time, be united other industries. And by this means the volume of our trade is increased. The merchant makes larger and quicker sales; the mechanic gets better wages; the professional man has a larger practice; and the farmer finds near his own door a profitable market. And in this way each receives ten fold more than he gave to bring about all this prosperity.

Our proposition is to raise a fund by subscription, and, if necessary, to make a present of that fund to some responsible party, who must, of course, give sufficient guaranty that it shall be used for the establishment of such manufacturing as shall be agreed upon, and who will also be bound to invest a certain sum of money himself in the same enterprise. It will be necessary to make this arrangement with some party of sufficient experience and ability in business to insure success. There is really nothing unusual about this plan. It is merely an organized effort to improve and increase the business of our city. It is simply a united effort, on the part of one or two hundred citizens, to do what each one separately tries to do, every time that he speaks a good word for Clarksville, or attempts to induce any one to locate his home or place of business in our midst. It is doing by co-operation what every good citizen feels bound to do individually, as far as possible.

In the death of Charlie Morrison, which occurred on Tuesday morning last, the County, has lost a valued and valuable citizen and society a worthy member. Though long an invalid, his friends indulged the hope that his health would be reinstated, and many years of usefulness be granted him beyond the 51st at which he died. We tender our sympathies to his bereaved wife and children. His funeral was preached at the residence by Rev. J. B. West, D. D. He spoke the words of truth and kindness, which moved the large assembly of friends to tears. It was just such a sermon as is calculated to do good to the living, the only class funeral sermons are intended to benefit. After the sermon, Dr. Ringold conducted the Masonic services, at the conclusion of which the remains were deposited in the hearse to be conveyed to their final resting place. An honest man, a true friend and a useful citizen has passed away. May God protect and defend the dear one he has left behind.

OLE BULL.—Clarksville was favored last Tuesday evening with the renowned Ole Bull. To those whose musical education has been carried far enough to enable them to appreciate such highly cultivated performances, the entertainment was, perhaps, a delightful one. As for ourselves, we must say that it was too high for us. Signor Ferranti, (which being interpreted is Sam Struggles), and Miss Graziella Ridgway sang in some foreign tongue; we regret that it was not Low Dutch. With Ole Bull's die-away strains, and Miss Graziella's singing the ballad, "Hoose sat my win toe!" we were almost carried away—from the Hall.

The Montgomery county Medical Society met last Monday, and re-organized by the election of officers for the ensuing twelve months. Dr. Dan F. Wright was chosen President, Dr. B. W. Tresey, Vice Pres., Dr. J. M. Larkin, Rec. Sec'y., Dr. W. T. McReynolds, Cor. Sec'y. This Society will meet on the second Monday in April, July, October and January, at the office of Dr. B. W. Herring, on Franklin street. At the next meeting Dr. Larkin will make a report of a case of Hepatic Abscess which occurred in his own person.

THE PRESS OF THE CITY.—We publish elsewhere some highly complimentary notices of the Chronicle and Tobacco Leaf by our contemporaries in this State and in Kentucky. We heartily thank our brethren of the press for their good words about our own paper, and are glad to know that our neighbors of the TOBACCO LEAF are appreciated as they justly deserve to be. Messrs. Ingram & Cook have made a noble effort to improve and enlarge their paper. Their enterprise deserves great success; and we sincerely hope that they may achieve it.

COL. MIKE W. CLUSKEY, of Louisville, died in that city last Monday morning at 7 o'clock. He was of Irish parentage. He was the author of two political works, one, "The Political Text Book," and the other, "The Political Hand Book." He was, at the beginning of the war, connected with the (Memphis) Avalanche. He served in the army during the war, until he received a wound which disabled him for military duty, was soon afterward elected to the Confederate Congress, and, subsequent to the war, was again for some time one of the editors of the Avalanche.

Our Educational Institutions.

STEWART COLLEGE.

We received last week an invitation from Mr. W. W. Legro, Prof. of Greek and the Natural Sciences at Stewart College, to attend the intermediate examination of his classes. Last Monday we visited that institution, when the method of examination was explained to us, and some of the papers prepared by the students in attendance were shown us. The intermediate examinations are held from the 10th to the 20th of January, each year; and the final examinations take place toward the close of the term, in May or June. On Friday last week all classes, except the Junior, were examined in Greek. The method, which is the same in all studies, was similar to the plan pursued at the University of Virginia. Eight or ten questions, each embracing several distinct items, are written on the blackboard. Every student in the class is required to answer all of these questions in writing, and must give a written statement, or certificate, declaring that he has not received assistance in the preparation of his paper. The questions are so valued that a perfect paper would be marked 100; an imperfect paper would be marked less, according to the number of errors and omissions. The papers are required to be neatly written and the answers arranged in proper order.

We carefully examined several papers prepared by students in Prof. Legro's classes. They indicated faithful and well directed work on the part of both pupils and teacher. We were deeply impressed with the evidences, in these papers, of earnest, industrious study on the part of the students, who prepared them, and the most thorough and efficient teaching on the part of their instructor. In Greek, portions of Xenophon's Anabasis, and of the Acts of the Apostles, in the original tongue, had been written on the blackboard. These were translated, generally, with remarkable correctness. The philological explanations, which had been required, were given, in some instances, with wonderful clearness; and the peculiarities of construction correctly pointed out.

On Monday of this week the Senior class was examined in Chemistry and the Sophomore, in Natural Philosophy. We do not wish to be understood as speaking in the language of newspaper compliments and puffs, when we say that the examination papers of these classes reflect the highest credit upon Prof. Legro, as an accomplished scholar and teacher. A written examination, unlike an oral one, is a sure and severe test, precluding any possibility of deception. And we are happy to say that these classes stood this test in a way which speaks exceedingly well for themselves, for their teacher and for Stewart College.

PRIVATE SCHOOLS IN CLARKSVILLE.

In our last issue and the one proceeding it we published some account of the two principal institutions of learning in this city. We also propose, with the aid of the teachers of our private schools, to make known such facts concerning them, as may be of public interest. Prof. W. W. Yarell has a school for boys, at the corner of Main and Fourth streets, where he is now giving instruction to about forty five pupils. He teaches there the common English branches, Arithmetic and the advanced Mathematics, Latin and Greek. The number of pupils entered this term is fifty one. Prof. Yarell was connected with the public schools of this city for a part of the time that they were in operation. He taught the more advanced classes. Some of the pupils that he instructed, during that time, are now members of his private school. His term of tuition are $12.50 per rates of twenty weeks. He is a gentleman of liberal education.

Mrs. Lizzie Bibb has a private school on Main street, not far from the court house. Most of her pupils, if not all of them, are boys, and number over forty. She is an excellent teacher, and was connected with the public schools here for some time during their existence.

Miss Sallie Howard teaches a mixed school of boys and girls in the basement of the Presbyterian church, at the corner of Main and Third streets. She, also, was connected with the public schools, and is known as a first class teacher. Her school is very full and in a prosperous condition.

On the corner of Main and Eighth streets, Mrs. Rufus Rhodes' select school for young ladies is located. There are now in attendance thirty or forty pupils. Mrs. Rhodes is a highly accomplished lady, thoroughly educated, and is a successful teacher.

Mrs. Willburn Moore has a private school on College street, east of Stewart College. This school has just recently been opened; it now numbers about thirty pupils.

Miss Sallie Ely, an excellent and thorough teacher, has a school, just beyond the corporation, on the Charlotte road. We saw not long since a letter written by one of the pupils of this school, a boy about eight years of age. It was neatly written, the words were correctly spelled, and the sentences well constructed. As a specimen of penmanship, and of composition it reflected great credit upon Miss Ely as a teacher.

We earnestly invite these teachers, and all others engaged in the profession, within the bounds of our circulation, to correspond with us. We would be glad if they would send us reports concerning the condition and progress of their schools. And we would take great pleasure in visiting their school rooms.

THE CIVIL DISTRICTS.

We propose the following plan of government in the civil districts: Let nine commissioners be elected in each district; three, of public schools, as at present; three, of roads and bridges; and three, of the poor. These will constitute three distinct boards, of three members each, who shall meet as often as may be considered necessary and at stated times. Once a year the three boards will be required to meet in joint convention and levy a district tax, for the maintenance of public schools the construction and repair of district roads and bridges, and for the support of the poor. The rate of taxation for each of these purposes must be determined by the joint convention. The fund thus created shall be divided according to agreement between the three boards, and expended by each board according to the wants of each district, and under certain restrictions to be established by law. The joint convention must be empowered to elect a district clerk, whose duty, in addition to other functions of his office, it would be to collect the district taxes, and pay them over to the respective boards. The district taxes, according to this plan, might be levied on the basis of assessment for State and county purposes. The rate of taxation, in each district, would depend, of course, upon the demands for the construction and repair of roads and bridges, the maintenance of public schools and the support of the poor. The commissioners elected by the people of each district would be the judges of the urgency and extent of those demands.

There would be no possibility of the people being oppressed by this system, because it would be entirely under the direct control of their elected public servants, and indirectly, therefore, under the control of the people themselves. To whatever extent, then, the people might wish to improve their roads, and bridges and public schools, or minister to the relief of the poor, to that extent only would they be taxed.

L. S. GOODRICH, Esq., of the firm of Hillman, Goodrich & Bro., called upon us last week. Mr. Goodrich is interested in, and, indeed, was one of the originators of the Duck River narrow gauge railroad. The firm, of which he is a member, own and operate the Hurricane Mills, ten miles South of Waverly, in Humphreys county, on Hurricane Creek. They manufacture all kinds of woolen goods, and are doing a successful business.

Mr. Goodrich highly estimates the advantages of Clarksville for the manufacture especially for the manufacture of iron. He informed us that the ore, required to make a ton of pig iron, can be put down in Clarksville, at this very day, for $6, while the same quantity of ore, not so good in quality, would cost in Pittsburg $19. He says that vast quantities of iron ore are now being shipped to Pittsburg, there to be smelted and manufactured. This ore, we believe, is of the same kind that exists in such abundance in our own section. It is known as brown hematite and yields the best quality of iron. We implore our readers to think of these facts, and not to overlook those treasures of iron, by a proper use of which we may most surely attain lasting wealth. The gold mines of California and Australia do not present a more inviting field for enterprise than the iron (ore) beds of our own section, embracing Montgomery, Houston, Stewart, Dixon and Humphreys counties.

We have received the Nashville Journal of Medicine and Surgery for last month. This journal was commenced on the 1st day of January, 1871, the first number embracing January and February of that year—twenty two years ago, from the termination of the present number. In an editorial review of the first number we find the following:

The editorial department opens with an account of the origin of Medical Journals. This original, and original, contains a terrible blunder; we copied the error from the Western Journal of Medicine, then conducted by Drs. Drake and Yarell, and were annoyed to find that it had led us so far wrong. A reader of Drake from the beginning, we could not see how it was possible that he could commit or overlook so egregious an error. But he had fallen into the pit, and we went in after him; and a medical editor, on the other side of the Appalachian hills, no sooner saw our constant disclaimer than he clapped down the lid and sat on it, drumming with his boot-heels against the curb in a paroxysm of the wildest delight. This was a sad start, but we recovered from it, in part, by reviewing this reviewer unmercifully for being asleep while on picket duty, and so letting Drake and Yarell pass unchallenged. He should have stopped that ball, we argued, as was his duty, by arresting Dr. Drake, and so secured us from that kind of a start. His self-congratulatory chuckle over this error, on our first appearance, is responsible for checking our whole journalistic life with occasional controversial outbreaks, which we would now erase, if it were possible. "But the printer's press, like that of fate, has fixed their perpetuity."

Nevertheless, the Nashville Journal of Medicine and Surgery became a complete success. The present number contains "Remarkable case of Hepatic Abscess" by Jas. F. Weeds, surgeon U. S. Army, continued from the last number; "Insect Bite, complicated with Fever," by Wm. A. Caviness, M. D., of Cherokee county, Texas; and other original and selected articles; extracts from home and foreign journals; editorials, reviews, etc.

Dr. A. CRANE, of New Orleans, lectured on Wednesday night, at the Methodist Church, on the Holy Land, and Thursday night, on Electricity and its Application to Man. Dr. Crane was a member of the Quaker City expedition to the Holy Land, which Mark Twain has made famous by his book, "The Innocents Abroad." Dr. Crane was one of the pilgrims, and is frequently spoken of in Twain's book as "the Doctor."

His lectures were attended here by large and highly intelligent audiences, and were greatly appreciated. Those who heard him were deeply impressed with his eloquence and instructiveness. He is a man of vast acquaintance with the world, gained by extensive travel and profound study of human nature. Believing with Pope that "the proper study of mankind is man," he has visited many countries, and studied the habits and customs of the people of the world, and thus has richly stored his mind with that most valuable of all knowledge—the science of human nature, or to use a big word, anthropology.

MANY journalists seem to greatly misunderstand their duty to the public.

The proper business of a newspaper is not so much to furnish its readers with opinions, as to publish facts for their information. The opinions of the editor of a paper may sometimes be properly published, and at others, should be carefully withheld from the public.

THE Sycamore Powder Mills, in Cheatham co., 23 miles side of Nashville, and five miles from Ashland City, were blown up on Wednesday morning, Jan. 15th. The damages are estimated at $2000. One man was killed.

DRUG NOTICE. TO MY OLD FRIENDS AND PATRONS AND THE PUBLIC GENERALLY: Thanking you for the liberal patronage which you have so long conferred on me, I beg to notify you that I have removed my place of business from the Square to the new house which I have recently built on Franklin street, nearly opposite the Court-house. The building has been constructed with special reference to the drug business, which it will enable me to transact with much more facility and satisfaction than heretofore, and will be found much more comfortable and inviting to my friends.

I have now on hand, and shall continue to keep, a complete stock of DRUGS, CHEMICALS, PATENT MEDICINES, FANCY GOODS, etc.

The Prescription Department will receive hereafter even more careful attention than heretofore, and to this end I have secured the services of Mr. GEORGE VALLEY, already so favorably known to the community, who will be always on hand, day or night, at the prescription stand. Soliciting a continuance of favors, I am, very respectfully, S. B. STEWART, Jan. 4, 1873-2w
