

A Jackass in Office.
In a New Jersey town, a number of politicians, all of whom were seeking office under the Government, were seated under a table porch, when an old porter named Joel D., a person who was very loquacious when corned, but exactly the opposite when sober, said to him to "fry away," whereupon he spoke as follows:

"A certain king—I don't recollect his name—had a philosopher upon whose judgment he always depended. Now it happened that one day the king took it into his head to go a hunting; summoning his nobles and making the necessary preparation, he summoned the philosopher and asked him would it rain. The philosopher told him it would not, and they started. While journeying along they met a countryman mounted on a jackass, and advised them to return, for said he 'it will certainly rain.' They smiled contemptuously upon him, and they passed on. Before they had gone many miles, however, they had reason to regret not having taken the rustic's advice, as a shower coming up drenched them to the skin. When they returned to the palace, the king reproached the philosopher severely. 'I met a countryman,' said he 'and he knew a great deal more than you. He told me it would rain, whereas you told me it would not.' The king then gave him his walking papers, and sent for the countryman, who soon made his appearance. 'Tell me,' said the king, 'how you knew it would rain.' 'I didn't know,' said the rustic, 'my jackass told me so. And how you tell your horse to stop, my majesty, and the rustic. The king sent the countryman away, and proceeded to the jackass of his philosopher friend, said here, 'observed Joel looking very wise, 'is where the king made a great mistake. How you know inquired the auditors. 'Why, ever since that time,' said Joel, 'with an grin on his phiz, 'every jackass wants office.'

County Newspapers.
Here's a good thought from the Mt. Sterling Sentinel for the benefit of country editors:

The publisher who credits subscription, transient advertising and job work, knowing that he is compelled to pay cash for his material, has no right to complain that his business does not pay, and of all men he has the least cause to be astonished at the necessity that compels the suspension of his paper. Another thing to avoid: Gratuitous work for party candidates. They have no right to expect it. Offices are inseparably connected with salary. And the salary is what nine out of ten candidates are after. The candidate has as much right to expect his editor to keep him in clothing without charge as to expect his publisher to devote his paper to his glorification before the people without pay therefor. Make the politicians pay the same as other advertisers; and never allow a line of "pull" to appear in your paper without pay. Your merchant or grocer don't expect to supply your family from their stores without pay, and they have no right to expect you to advertise for them without remuneration. Selling goods or groceries is their mode of making a living. Publishing a newspaper is your mode of making a living. They cannot give their goods away without pay, and you cannot give away space in your paper without loss. That which will beggar them will beggar you.

The Granges.
The Memphis Appeal of a late date has this in regard to the Granges now being formed over the country:

Republican and other presses that do not believe in the farmers' movement, and who do not think it will be more than a shower, would do well to study the inscription upon the banners in a procession of five thousand farmers in Lawrence, Kansas, a few days since, some of which read thus significantly:
Down with Banks and Up with Corn!
"No Quarters to Monopoly!"
"Equal Taxation!"
"God Speed the Plow!"
"United We Stand, Divided We Fall!"
"Live and Let Live!"
"Money Kings Beware!"
"The Idea of November, '73!"
"Farmers will be Free!"
"Harmony!"
"No more Parasites!"
"Less Offices, Less Laws, Less Taxes and More Justice!"
"Industry will be Rewarded!"
"Farmers to the Front—Politicians to the Rear!"
"Peaceably if We Can Forceably if We Must!"
"Reform or Revolution!"
"Tax Popul!"
"Passes up Salt River Free!"
"Fraternity, Equality and Fair Exchange!"
If this does not mean business, if it does not mean the abolition of political parties, we confess ourselves at a loss to interpret plain language.

Post This Up.
CHANGES AFTER JUNE 30, 1873.

1. Franking privilege abolished.
2. Postmasters supplied with official stamps.
3. Official stamps must not be used except for official business.
4. Stamp of one cent cannot be used for correspondence of another.
5. No matter can pass through the mails free.
6. Postage must be collected on newspapers published in the country where delivered.
7. Exchanges not free. Publishers must pay postage on each exchange received.
8. Postal cards cannot be used a second time.
9. Ordinary cards can be transmitted through the mails by affixing one cent stamp, provided the entire message is printed. The address may be written.

Letters—Three cents for each half ounce or fraction thereof.
Prop Letters—When delivered by carrier two cents for each half ounce or fraction thereof. All other offices one cent for each half ounce or fraction thereof.
Printed matter—One cent for each two ounces or fraction. Seals, balbs, cuttings, roots, scions, chromos and engravings are classed with printed matter.
Merchandise—Two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof, limited to twelve ounces. When any of the above matter is mailed wholly unpaid, and by inadvertence reaches its destination, double rates must be charged and collected.—Post-office Gazette.

Railroads and Judges.
There is a terrible outcry because the farmers of Illinois, who are fighting the railroads, made a stand and elected their candidate, in a judicial election. Well, it is popular to believe that the Supreme Court of the United States was in the opinion of the chief justice himself, packed in railroad interest.

A Telling Hit.
The recent death of Mr. John C. Tucker, says the Boston Journal, calls to mind a speech which he made in the House of Representatives some years ago—a speech that was full of tingling wit, and delivered in the happiest manner. General Banks had been elected Governor by a combination between the Free Soilers and the Know Nothings, and it was naturally supposed that in his inaugural address there would be some reference to the issue of the campaign. But the address Governor omitted all mention of the Anti-Slavery question as well as of the Native American policy. A member arose and moved to print 10,000 copies of the address, when instantly Mr. Tucker got the floor and spoke as follows:

"I rise, Mister Speaker, to second the motion of the honorable gentleman to print ten thousand copies of His Excellency's speech. You may wonder, Mister Speaker, why I, who am neither a personal nor a political friend of His Excellency, should do this. It is well known that His Excellency has risen to power by a coalition between the Abolitionists and the Native American parties, or, as they are sometimes called, Free Soilers and Know Nothings. And this puts me in mind of a little story. "There was a Bishop in Dublin who engaged a painter to make a large picture for the Cathedral. The subject chosen was the crossing of the Red Sea by the Israelites. After a suitable time the picture was completed and hung in the Cathedral, covered with a broad and heavy curtain. The priests entered in procession, the organ sounded and the singers sang. All faces turned in anxious expectation to the great curtain. When it was drawn aside nothing could be seen but a vast expanse of water—reddish green water. The Israelites, who were gathered to the painter and said, 'I thought I asked you to paint a picture of the Israelites crossing the Red Sea?' "There for you, that's it," said the painter. "But where are the Israelites?" asked the indignant Bishop. "They're gone over," said the painter. "Well, but where are the pursuing Egyptians?" "They're gone under," said the painter.

"With similar disappointment the friends of His Excellency stand now. If they ask 'What has become of the majority?' the answer is 'He's gone over, Mister Speaker.' If they ask 'What has become of the Know Nothings?' 'Why they've gone under, Mister Speaker.' "The roars of laughter from all sides of the house made the rest of the speech inaudible.

What Will He Become?
The question is often asked by parents in regard to their sons, and by the friends of many young men; and although there is no definite rule for ascertaining, we may get some idea of what a young man will become by observing his actions and works.

Solomon said many centuries ago, that "even a child may be known by his work, whether it be good or evil." Therefore, when you see a boy slow to go to school, indifferent about learning, and glad of every opportunity to neglect his lessons, you may take it for granted that he will be a blockhead! When you see a boy anxious to spend money, and spends every cent as soon as he gets it, you may know that he will be a spendthrift. When you see a boy hoarding up his pennies, and unwilling to part with them for any good purpose, you may set it down that he will be a miser.

When you see a boy willing to taste strong drink, you may rightly suppose that he will become a drunkard. When a boy is disrespectful to his parents, disobedient to his teacher, and unkind to his playmates, it is a sign that he will never be of much account.

When you see a boy looking out for himself and unwilling to share the good things with others, it is a sign that he will grow up a selfish man. Whenever you see a young man spend his money for jewelry, cigars, liquor, etc., instead of investing it in real estate, you may know that he is a blockhead already. "There is more hope of a fool than of him."

Berkshire Hogs.
In his report made before the late Swine-breeders' National Convention, Mr. A. B. Allen said of the Berkshire:

"As the Berkshire were brought to their present state of perfection at an earlier date than any of our improved breeds of swine, their good qualities have become prepotent. This makes them superior to all others for crossing on the common swine of the country and places them highest in value for this purpose. It is to be hoped, therefore, that greater attention will be paid hereafter by our farmers to the Berkshire, and that this increased demand for them will stimulate the breeders of the pure stock to invariably select the best for propagation, thus keeping them up to the highest state of perfection possible to attain. The Berkshire improves most other breeds by being crossed upon them; but we know of no other breed that can improve him—he stands unrivaled among swine."

Useful Hints—Prof. Wilder of Cornell University gives the following short rules for action in cases of accident, which will be found useful to remember:

1. For dust in the eyes, avoid rubbing; dash water in them; remove cinders, etc., with the round point of a lead pencil.
2. Remove water from the ear by tepid water; never put a hard instrument into the ear.
3. If an artery is cut, compress above the wound; if a vein is cut, compress below.
4. If choked, get on all fours and cough.
5. For slight burns, dip in cold water; if the skin is destroyed, cover with varnish.
6. Smother a fire with carpets, etc.; water will often spread burning oil and increase the danger. Before passing through smoke take a long breath, and then stoop low; but if carbolic acid gas is suspected, walk erect. Suck poisoned wounds, unless your mouth is sore; enlarge the wound; or better, cut out the part without delay; hold the wounded part as long as can be borne to a hot coal or end of a cigar.
7. In case of poisoning, excite vomiting by tickling the throat, or by warm water and mustard.
8. For diphtheria, give alkalies; for alkaline poisons, give acids, white of egg is good in most cases; in a case of opium poisoning give strong coffee, and keep moving.
9. If in water, float on the back, with the nose and mouth protruding.
10. For apoplexy, raise the head and body, for fainting, lay the person flat.

A CURIOUS CLIMATE.—The climate of Peru is set forth by a correspondent as exceedingly peculiar and strange. It never rains there, we are told, but during certain seasons, and when the atmosphere is filled with clouds "dew falls so thick, heavy and continuous that it will saturate the heaviest clothing in less than half an hour." The coming and going of the clouds that distill this dew is another strange thing connected with Peru. The changes are reported so rapid and violent as to startle the stranger.

Rev. D. M. REEVES, a Baptist clergyman of Albany, New York, has delivered a series of pastoral addresses with his congregation by a recent sermon, in which he maintained that close communion is not an essential principle to the Baptist organization.

1873! 1873!
A CHICAGO paper describes the streets of that city as pre-eminently filthy and pestilential, and in a recent issue which was talking about the land, seeking some permanent and desirable abiding place.

"It is useless for physicians to argue against short-sleeved dresses. The Constitution of the United States says that 'the right to bear arms, shall not be interfered with.'—Bromfield Bee.

A CHICAGO chap advertises for steady girls to help on pantaloons. A fellow who can't help on his own pantaloons ought to be ashamed to want girls to do it.

POSTAL RATES.
The recent Congressional legislation provides that "All laws and parts of law permitting the transmission by mail of any free matter whatsoever, be, and the same are, hereby, repealed, from and after June 30, 1873." This cuts off the free exchange of newspapers between publishers, and the free circulation of papers within the limits of publication. No changes in the rates of postage have been made.

Newspapers sent by mail must be prepaid by stamps, unless "regularly sent and sent to regular subscribers" by publishers or news-dealers, when the following rates are charged, payable quarterly in advance, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Cents
Dailies	30
Six times a week	15
Tri-weekly	10
Weekly	5
Monthly, not over 400	3
Quarterly, not over 400	1

Newspapers and circulars dropped into the office for delivery must be prepaid at the rate of 1 cent for two ounces, and an additional rate for every additional two ounces or fraction thereof; and periodicals weighing more than two ounces are subject to 2 cents, prepaid at the letter-carriers' office. The postage on regular papers, etc., must be prepaid in advance, either at the place of delivery, to the carrier, or at the office, otherwise they will be charged at transit rates.

BOOK MANUSCRIPT.
Book-manuscript passing between authors and publishers requires preparation, at the rate of 1 cent for each two ounces, or fraction thereof. Manuscript intended for publication in newspapers, magazines, pamphlets, etc., is subject to letter rates of postage.

HARDWARE
READ! READ!
A PLAIN PROPOSITION.
WANTED!
Everybody to know that it will cost you nothing to have a Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine brought to your home and shown to you, and if you do not buy there will be no hard thanks, but many thanks for giving me a chance to sell you, as I want you to be in your interest. I hope you will avail yourself of the opportunity. The qualities which recommend the Wheeler & Wilson are many, among the most important are the few teeth here state: It makes the lockstitch without a shuttle. It has but one tendon to regulate. It has no oil above its cloth surface, hence it is impossible to get your work soiled. It feeds the goods from both sides of the needle avoiding the twisting of the work as troublesome with others.

There has been a standing challenge for three years of $1,000 for any shuttle machine that does not cost at least half as many more pieces as the New Wheeler & Wilson. $1,000 for one that can sew as rapidly as quickly. $1,000 for one with all the joints adjustable like the New Wheeler & Wilson; and $1,000 reward for a Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine that is worn out.
