Our Schools.

The following is a statement of the number of scholars entered at all the schools in Clarksville from the opening to Thursday, Sept. 6th.

Table showing school enrollment statistics. Columns include School Name, Total, and Colored.

With this compare the scholastic population of Clarksville, which yielded up his life early and without fear, leaving to his bereaved wife and grand-children, his aged sisters, nephews and many sorrowing friends a full assurance that he was at peace with his God and was assured a happy home, immortal in the "dim, shadowy beyond."

It should be stated that both the University and Female Academy are looking for large accessions from the country during the present and next week. Their numbers, therefore, as stated above, must not be considered complete.

Real Estate Transfers. On the 1st of the present month the following transfers in real estate were made:

E. W. Barker to R. F. Ferguson, interest in old Cobb Mill and land, $750.00.

W. J. Holmes to Mrs. J. W. Wilson, horse and lot in city, $250.00.

B. F. Coulter to J. W. Scales, horse and lot in city, $500.00.

These transfers index a good feeling in real estate, and bring to our city the very best class of citizens. We extend to all new comers a most cordial greeting and wish them all success in aiding the building up of our thriving city.

Tax Collections. Peter Oneal, Clerk, collected for the month ending August 31, 1877, the following amounts:

Table showing tax collection amounts. Columns include State Tax on Real Estate, State Tax on Personal Property, City Tax on Privileges, and Total.

We were politely shown through the new hunting and fishing boat, which Mr. T. L. Willis has just completed for the Clarksville Sporting Club, by Mr. W. T. Dortch, a few days ago, and were surprised to see what a model of beauty they have. The boat is neatly and substantially built and is furnished with every convenience necessary to the enjoyment of the sportsman; it has three rooms, furnished with berth, furniture, toilet fixture, cooking apparatus, etc., etc., and underneath the kitchen floor is a large and commodious fish box, which is so arranged with tubes as to keep the fish furnished with a fresh supply of water all the time, and thus keep them alive. Whenever the club decide upon a sporting excursion, and intend going up the river in search of game, they have the Matt Gracy tow them up to the desired point and they are then borne back by the current of the river, stopping on the way wherever and whenever they choose, being furnished with an anchor for the purpose. When going down the river they drift with the current and are towed back by the same boat. The club is composed of the following gentlemen: F. P. and Matt Gracy, H. M. and L. R. Clark, W. T. Dortch and Walker Williams; and they expect to have more pleasure, recreation and amusement with their new boat than could be had on a freight train.

Death of S. P. Bagwell. It is with much regret that we have to announce the death of S. P. Bagwell, of Graves county, Ky., which occurred August 30th. He was for many years a resident of this county, and was well known to most of our citizens as a school teacher of more than ordinary merit. The particulars of his death are about as follows: He had driven his wagon and team to the field to haul a load of oats, and after loading the wagon on top of it and started to the house. The team unfortunately got into a yellow-jacket's nest; the mules taking fright from the stings ran away, threw Mr. Bagwell off, and so injured him that he died the next day.

He was a man of more than ordinary intellect, and possessed a rich fund of knowledge, which, together with the high-toned principles of honor which governed his life, gained him the respect of all who knew him. Though he was eccentric, and his views often differed from those of other men, yet they were always marked by careful thought and study. He leaves a wife and several children to mourn his loss; we deeply sympathize with them in their sad bereavement.

Blount's Monument. Mr. Sam'l Hodgson is hard at work at the freight depot putting the ornamental finish on the monument to be erected to Gov. Blount in Greenwood cemetery. His material is a beautiful specimen of East Tennessee marble in two blocks, one for the base, the other for the obelisk; the former weighed over five tons when brought here, and the work is done at the depot to save the cost of double transportation. The design is a very beautiful one, and Mr. Hodgson thinks it will be completed in about two weeks. We may mention that Frank, one of Mr. Hodgson's sons, has been manufacturing some very beautiful paper-weights from fragments of this marble, which, when published, assumes a pink hue beautifully mottled. They are attractive ornaments to the writing table.

READ the advertisement of Mr. Ben. Gold in another column. He will sell at public auction on Sept. 23d, if not sold previously, his beautiful residence and twenty-six acres of rich land; also some fine stock, harness, etc. The situation of this residence is one of the most beautiful in the State, and commands a lovely view of the country for miles around.

THE Henderson, Ky., News very truly says: "When a dog fawns at the mouth, common people look out for a fence to climb—but when a bear glass does the same thing, somebody is sure to pick it up and kiss it."

The Humphreys County Journal

In speaking of the death of Col. V. S. Allen, who died in this city a few weeks ago, concludes its article with the following paragraph: Throughout his entire life Colonel Allen maintained the respect of those who knew him. A genial, high-toned, well-schooled companion, an earnest, steadfast friend, a good neighbor, an affectionate husband and kind father, in all the various walks of life he acted well his part. Long previous to his death, in the quiet privacy of home, Col. Allen made profession of religion, and subsequently in like unpretentious and quiet manner received the consecrated rite of baptism, sealing the new life administered by the venerated Rev. Z. Drummond, of Waverly, and so lived out the evening of his days, that when called to go hence by the "Great I Am," he yielded up his life calmly and without fear, leaving to his bereaved wife and grand-children, his aged sisters, nephews and many sorrowing friends a full assurance that he was at peace with his God and was assured a happy home, immortal in the "dim, shadowy beyond."

The subject of the following notice was at one time a student of the University at this place, and while here won the friendship of many who will learn with regret of his untimely death. The Bowling Green Democrat of Sept. 1st says:

We deeply sympathize with Mr. J. M. C. Clive, superintendent of the Louisville & Great Southern Railroad at this place, and relatives and friends, in the afflictive bereavement falling so heavily upon them. His son, Mr. Harry Montgomery, full of young life and hope, who but recently led a young bride to the altar, departed this life after a painful illness on Thursday night last. He was a young gentleman whose death is much regretted.

Sunday School Institute. All lovers of the Sunday School work are earnestly requested to attend the Institute at the Christian Church, Sept. 7th, 8th and 9th. Short speeches and much singing will be the order of the exercises. The programme is attractive and the exercises will be instructive. The hours are Saturday 9 A. M., and 3 and 8 P. M.; Sunday morning 9 o'clock and the Union Mass-meeting at 3:30 P. M. C. C. Clive will conduct the exercises. Other speakers are expected.

DR. J. R. DUNN, of Turnersville, Tenn., called on us last Thursday morning, and we learn from him that he intends locating in our city about the first of October, for the purpose of practicing medicine. Dr. Dunn is a gentleman in every sense of the word, and a man of culture, and in the practice of his profession, which extends over the period of twenty-two years, he has been eminently successful. We welcome him to our city.

MR. GEO. L. CARLELE's mill, in New Providence, which has recently been built, was put in operation last Tuesday morning. This mill has a capacity for grinding fifteen bushels of corn per hour, and a stock of the best meal will be kept constantly on hand. He has also in connection with this saw mill by which stove wood may be sawed of any desired length. We wish our friend all the success which his enterprise and energy merit.

DR. W. H. CHAPPELL, of Trenton, Ky., was in this city visiting relatives during the latter part of last week. Dr. Chappell graduated with high honors in the medical department of Vanderbilt University last June, since which time he has been practicing his profession at Trenton, where he has built up an enviable practice. Although a young man he has evinced an ability which is rapidly placing him in the front rank of physicians.

We learn that Mr. J. D. Russell has purchased the house and lot formerly owned by Mr. D. S. Hendricks, on Franklin street, and that Mr. Hendricks has purchased the beautiful and desirable lot of Mr. H. C. Merritt, situated near the Coulter place, and contains twenty-two acres. Mr. H. will commence to build at once.

READ Capt. Crumman's new advertisement of groceries, seeds, &c. Crumman is one of the liveliest men in the grocery business now in Clarksville, and in spite of hard times does a very large business, both wholesale and retail, always to the satisfaction of his customers. In the few years that have elapsed since the war, he has built up his splendid business by the simplest and most effective process yet discovered—that of deservings it.

We take pleasure in acknowledging the reception of a complimentary ticket to the Christian county fair, which will be held in Hopkinsville, Ky., on October 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th. The premium list of the fair, which lies before us, speaks well for the liberality of the Board of Directors, and we doubt not that this will be the most successful fair ever held in that section.

BASE BALL.—We omitted to give the score of the match last week between the Chronicle and Red Jackets. It was Chronicle 13; Red Jackets 1.

READ the advertisement of Mr. Ben. Gold in another column. He will sell at public auction on Sept. 23d, if not sold previously, his beautiful residence and twenty-six acres of rich land; also some fine stock, harness, etc. The situation of this residence is one of the most beautiful in the State, and commands a lovely view of the country for miles around.

HOS. J. T. CARPHEL, of Trenton, Tennessee, was in our city this week. He brought with him his son and another young gentleman from Trenton to attend the University. We are glad to see that young men are patronizing our University, because they will extend its influence and patronage. Judge C. is one of the Judges of the Commission for West Tennessee to try the crowded docket of the State, and is a Division of the State, and is one of ablest lawyers in West Tennessee.

A TRIP TO BELLAMY'S CAVE.

EDITORS CHRONICLE: A party of young folks accompanied Professor Fossey and his school on a pleasure trip to Bellamy's Cave on Friday, the 24th ult. This cave is about four miles from here on the north side of the river. The party, consisting of about twenty-five young ladies and gentlemen, arrived at 11 o'clock, lit our candles and started. Mr. Riley Wiley, our guide, in the lead. The entrance is nearly half way up the side of a big hill, and is entered by a steep descent of about fifty feet into a spacious room, then rising we went up a short shaft. There are three passages here; the middle one leads down the hill into a hollow. Our guide leads to the right. After going a short distance the pathway is more broken, first up hill, then down, through narrow passages, wide rooms, in some of which there are chasms from ten to thirty feet deep and one to three feet wide, across which we must jump. Along this passage the walls are generally abrupt, the roof high; in one place it was so high we could scarcely see it. We found a great many curiosities and pleasing objects. There are five or six hoppers here, used in the manufacture of saltpetre a great many years ago. The boards and troughs in these hoppers are entirely decayed, and, except when broken, retain their original shape. Saltpetre was made here in 1812 by B. Bayless and others. A short distance further is an immense cone-shaped rock on the edge of a chasm about thirty feet wide. This rock is about six feet high, the same in diameter and is steadily increased by the drip, drip from above. It is very pretty, being of a bronze color with sparkles of silver. The floor here has crevices in some within the last three years, since which time no one has ventured beyond until one young man in our party, bent on sight-seeing, climbed down in the chasm and up on the other side. After going a short distance he returned and reported such a fearful fall that four or five of us were induced to follow and it is well we did, for we had seen nothing so beautiful. In the first place, a short distance from the chasm the passage forked, and here in the mud at the edge of a small branch we saw the print of a naked foot, made by some one coming from the left-hand passage, which is very low. When and by whom this track was made is not known. We turned to the right and entered the most beautiful room I ever saw. It is low and broad and profusely ornamented with innumerable stalactites and stalagmites of every size and shape, also a great many columns beautifully shaped—one in particular was a statue of a beautiful woman, which would do honor to any artist. One candle is almost sufficient to light the whole room.

Leaving this rival by candle-light to the "inner chamber of King Solomon's temple," we pass into a hallway along the side of a creek and ascend a narrow passage, which soon comes to an abrupt end; a large rock has fallen into and completely blocks it. This is about a mile and a half from the entrance to the cave. In this narrow passage we had scratched on the wall the names "A. Fancett, 1851," "W. H. Browning" and "P. L. Henderson, May, 1854." The last two, I believe, are Methodist preachers. We return through a side room leading from the hall, and before reaching our friends we find "B. Bayless, 1812," and near this "H. H. Poston" (no date) in large letters together with a note written on the ceiling with candles, are the names of Miss M. C. Jones, John C. Jordan, R. Armstrong and L. M. Barksdale, 1856. On reaching the big chasm we cross without accident; the party then returns leisurely, examining the different side rooms more minutely. On one side of the main passage is a complete well, which is four feet across and about twelve feet to the water. When we reached the top of the hill, where the main passage went up, or five of the party went up the middle passage about a quarter of a mile and found another well some deeper than the first. Over this well is a perfect eagle wing formed by the dripping. While they were looking for names on the walls near the entrance, a few of which I give you: Nathan Aldridge and Jas. H. Brigham, 1812; Jas. Bayless, 1820; W. A. Dortch, 1821; S. Stratton, 1821; W. H. Kiddell, 1843, and many others, the latest being Blanche Reed, 1872.

Reaching the entrance 30 o'clock, having been in the cave four hours, a nice and bounteous dinner was spread before us, which we partook of with a zest, our appetites having been whetted by our long walk. We are indebted to Mr. Riley Wiley, our guide, Prof. Fossey, Mr. John C. Thompson and others for this and other courtesies shown us. I think if a little money was used in bridging the chasms and improving the walks this cave would become a noted place of resort, for it is indeed a pleasant and beautiful place. Near this are two other caves, one at Mr. Coleman's and another at Blooming Grove Furnace.

While writing of these I might state a circumstance that shows there are other caverns in our vicinity. About the year 1837 Mr. Alex. Outlaw had a man named McClure plowing in a field on the hill near his house, when all at once the horse broke through the ground and disappeared beneath, the plow breaking loose and remaining on top. Stephen, an old negro man, cut a long pole and trimmed the limbs up so as to make a step ladder, and went down and got the gear off the horse, which was thirty feet below the surface. Two or three years after this, Mr. Outlaw discovered a hole about the size of a horse's hoof in his horse lot on another part of the hill, from which, on cold mornings, wind and water would issue. No attention was given this until one night his brother, Mr. Joshua Outlaw, returning from Clarksville late, turned his horse loose in the lot. Next morning the horse was missing. It was found that it had been grazing near the hole and the ground caved in, the horse going down about fifty feet, where it could be heard grinding and straining around on the rocks. More anon. J. A. Corbando, Tenn., Sept. 4, 1877.
