DELINQUENT TAXES

One of the many admirable provisions in Senate bill No. 225, known as the Torrens bill, is that relating to the collection of taxes on registered real estate. It must be apparent to any one who will take the trouble to read this bill that, if passed, the State will never have any difficulty in promptly collecting all her taxes on lands that may be brought under the act. And, while this is true, great care is also taken to protect the interests of the owner of the presents on that in me event

Instead of forfeiting land, as has always been done heretofore, this Torrens bill provides that it shall be publiely sold for taxes at the expiration of the two years within which redention is allowed under the general law, after due advertisement, as sales are made under deeds of trust; that absolute title shall be passed to the purchaser at the sale, as sound article being dissipated of at advantageous public ancitins; and that the proceeds of sale shall be applied, first, to the payment of all taxes and levies then due, with of all taxes are all the sale, as the proceeds of sale shall be applied, first, to the payment.

This is simple justice, and the wonder is that it has never been seen and put into law before. Clearly the State ought not to take more than what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.
