WEDDING WAS LOVELY AFFAIR

Miss Virginia Alderson Becomes Bride of John Barlow, Jr., at Wise

Wise, Va., June 16.—In the balm of a fine June morning, when all the world seemed made for love and happiness, Miss Virginia Alderson became the bride of Mr. John Barlow, Jr.

The impressive ceremony was performed at the Methodist church at Wise yesterday morning, the Rev. W. H. Evans officiating. The church was artistically decorated for the occasion with a splendid array of laurel, daisies and maiden hair ferns, a handsome altar having been fashioned of the flowers and ferns as a background for the bridal party.

First entered the ushers, Creed Kelly and Al. Kregora, followed by Creel Cherry and Rufus Fulton, who also acted as ushers.

Miss Sarah Beatty, who was maid of honor, entered alone. She wore a dainty gown of orchid organdie with picture hat to match, and presented a stylish and lovely appearance. The little flower girls, Ruth McCune and Mayo Beatty, were veritable fairies in their frocks of snowy white, while Master Charles McElroy, in a suit of white, was strikingly manly and handsome as the ring bearer.

Miss Lucy Vickers acted as best man for the bridegroom.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother, Mr. Creed Alderson. She wore a stylish blue suit of exquisite cut and texture, her lovely hair of grey and blue harmonizing exquisitely with the effect of the costume. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. A daintier and lovelier bride could not well be imagined.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Louise Alderson, wearing a dainty gown of orchid organdie, sang: "I Love You Truly." Mrs. N. E. Hicks, whose becoming costume was of blue tulle, was the accompanist for the occasion, and played the wedding marches. Mrs. James Dale, in a lovely costume of orchid cunton crepe, rendered an exquisite violin solo.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Barlow left for a wedding trip, the destination of which was not given.

They have the best wishes of friends throughout the state for a long life of happiness and prosperity.

MRS. PINK PIG

"Yes, Miss Ham, I'm feeling well," said Mrs. Pink Pig. "That wasn't what I was going to ask you," said Mrs. Ham. "Well then I'm telling you that I'm feeling well anyhow. I am sure you must be glad to know it."

"I don't care about knowing it in the least," said Mrs. Ham. "Then I'm telling you something which you haven't even had to bother to wish for," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"What I was going to ask you," squealed Miss Ham, "was where you found those nice vegetables you have been eating?"

"You Know Perfectly."

"Now you know perfectly well," said Miss Ham. "How did you know I had vegetables?" asked Mrs. Pink Pig. "You don't know at all, and you're only guessing for you don't know whether I had or had not any vegetables."

"Oh yes, I know," said Miss Ham, "for I saw a bit of green sticking out of your mouth. Your table manners aren't of the best, Mrs. Pink Pig."

"Not of the best, it is true," said Mrs. Pink Pig, "but quite as fine as yours. Pies don't bother much about table manners. That is because they are pigs of course. Or rather that is one of the reasons why they remain pigs!"

"I've never heard any one say, 'Let's call pigs by some other name as they don't really deserve the name of pig!'" "I've never heard any one say that and it is true that I don't believe they ever will!"

"Well, it doesn't matter," said Miss Ham. "What would the world be like without us? We're interesting looking creatures. We are very apt to make people smile and they stand pleased about that and many of our relatives have deserved the food they have had for they have given the people themselves in return. That was good of them indeed!"

GOVERNOR TRINKLE

And State Officials Visit Penitentiary Farm at Lassiter

Richmond, Va., June 19.—Headed by Governor E. Lee Trinkle, a large party of state officials and persons interested in social work made an inspection of the State Penitentiary Farm at Lassiter, in Goochland county, June 15, as guests of the Board of Directors of the Penitentiary.

The party visited all departments of the institution. The executive offices, the sleeping quarters of the prisoners, the dining room, kitchen and laundry, the general hospital, the tuberculosis pavilions, the new power and heating plant, the chapel, the dairy, barns and canning plant, together with the kennels. Some guests went out to watch the men at work in the wheat and corn fields, and with the live stock.

Those who were familiar with conditions prevailing at the farm two years ago expressed themselves as amazed at the wonderful improvements that have been accomplished. All buildings on the place have been put in first class repair and painted a uniform white, with green trimmings. The wards of the general hospital have been entirely renovated and modernized. The dining hall has been creiled and greatly improved, while the kitchen has been entirely rebuilt with a new oven, range, steam kettles and tiled floor. No institution in Virginia can boast of a more sanitary and modern kitchen than the one at the state farm.

The chapel has been completed and is used for entertainments for the prisoners as well as for religious services, being equipped with a powerful motion picture machine. Motion picture shows are given for the prisoners once or twice each week.

During the last year the dairy herd, which includes about one hundred milk cows, has been tubercled, tested and certified. It is now one of the best housed and cared for herds in the state.

The state farm is situated in a picturesque rolling country, on both sides of the James River, and comprises about 2,500 acres under cultivation and in grazing lands. The crops this year, in spite of the unfavorable weather, are in excellent condition and large yields are expected. The Governor, Mrs. Trinkle and other guests were entertained by Superintendent R. R. Penn, at which only products from the farm were served. Those present were delighted at the hospitality and abundance, and the dinner was universally pronounced a great success.

With the rapid progress now being made in the handling of convicts at the penitentiary at Richmond and at the State Farm, Virginia is fast forging to the front in penal matters, and too much cannot be said for the part played by the Board of Directors who have brought these changes about since the reorganization in April, 1920.

INTENSIVE FARMING. The Visitor—Do you call this a dairy farm? It's no bigger than a city lot. The Dairyman True! But, you see, I feed my cows on compressed hay tablets and they give condensed milk.
