Peanut Butter

New Orleans consumes less Peanut Butter than cities of one-fifth its population.

The Beechnut Packing Company, during 1911, turned out over five million jars of this Butter.

The nutritive qualities of Peanut Butter (prepared according to the modern methods of this company) are much appreciated in other sections of the United States as a beautiful addition to the Children's Luncheon; by ladies, who entertain, in the making of dainty sandwiches, and by the housekeeper generally as an article of diet that has come to take a permanent place on the table.

The perch, which was exhibited to The Herald, measured 12 inches in length, 4 1/2 inches wide, and weighed 15 ounces, dressed. This is not a fish story, as young Munsterman exhibited the perch to many of his friends.

There has been considerable sport at the Outfall Drainage Canal this spring, where many records of fifty, sixty and seventy dozen perch have been caught by parties in a single day.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY.

Representative-elect Howard Koppel arrived home shortly after midnight Sunday, just in time to rout a negro, armed with an ax, entering through a kitchen window, which he had broken with a jimmy made from a file.

The negro had raised the window sash a few inches preparatory to entering, had removed his shoes, and with the ax grasped firmly in his hand, was stealthily preparing to enter when the unexpected arrival of Mr. Koppel frightened him. The negro made his escape in a sawmill on the river front.

"I was just entering a door opening on a side gallery," said Mr. Koppel, "when a huge black form disengaged itself from a high hedge against the partition fence across the lawn from the gallery and started in lively fashion for the back part of the yard. I thought it was a large dog at first, but as the man ran he straightened up and I saw he carried an ax in his hand. I shouted at him and dashed upstairs to my room to get my revolver. The man in his haste ran into some supports for a vine and must have been knocked down, losing his hat and ax.

"I turned on a light on the lawn from an upstairs switch and fired one shot at his fleeing figure.

"Citizens and police officers saw him running several times and we followed him until he lost us in the Ward sawmill."

The axman left behind him besides his ax, a jimmy, felt hat and a pair of shoes.

No one was at home at the time, Mrs. Weigman being in the hospital. Nothing was stolen.

On their way home, while coming down the incline of the Newton street viaduct, they lost control of the wheel and came down with great speed. They say they do not remember what they hit. All they can remember is that they could not stop the bike until they struck Newton street, when bot' were thrown to the ground. Euper was the more seriously hurt of the two, being badly injured and rendered unconscious. Vinson was badly bruised and cut about the face. The people in the vicinity of the viaduct rendered all assistance possible to the lads, conveying Euper home, young Vinson being able to walk home.

EASTER WEATHER.

Almost everybody was interested in what kind of a day Easter Sunday would be. Especially the ladies, who had been looking forward for weeks to the wearing of that Easter hat and Easter dress to church. We might say the little ones as well looked forward to a bright, sunny Easter.

Now, let us see what our Weather Bureau told us. In picking up the Times-Democrat Sunday morning we find in the Gist of the News the following sentence, "A sunny Easter Sunday was predicted for New Orleans, page 1—part 3." On the upper right hand corner of the same paper and page we find the following weather forecast: Rain Sunday, cooler in interior. Monday unsettled. The weather report in some of our other daily papers on Sunday were also along the lines that it would be clear and cloudy, that there would be sunshine and rain. On page 1, part 3, of the Times-Democrat of the same date we have this news: "The Weather Bureau goes out of its way to fix Easter here. Clear skies will smile upon New Orleans."

Of course, we do not condemn any of our papers, as they are not responsible for these predictions, but we do criticize our Weather Bureau, not because they have missed it on Easter Sunday, but because it is so often the case it is getting so that few people pay much attention to the predictions of the forecasters.

EASTER EGG HUNT.

Miss Sadie Vezien entertained the members of her Sunday school class and the L. M. S. at an Easter Egg Hunt at the Naval Station.

Many games were played and the tired little ones came home with moss-covered hats and large bouquets of clover with which to make nests for the "bunny" that night. The evening was a most enjoyable one. Those present were Alma Pujol, Dorothy and Carlotta Kraft, Cecelia Slack, Rilma McNair, Corcordia Arnold, Marguerite Duvic, Noel and Clere Duvic, H. Vezien, Verona Ameudo, Ethelda Goodlet, Zeldia Huckins, Elden Lejeune, Jessie Howe, Katie and Barbara Schabel.
