ARCHBISHOP BLENK GUEST AT THANKSGIVING SUPPER.

When Thanksgiving day draws near, all hearts are filled with joy and gladness, and every one plans to celebrate this national feast in a most fitting manner.

Algiers may easily take the lead among the many celebrations that took place at this time, for on Wednesday last the Convent of the Holy Name of Mary was the scene of lively jollification and grandeur.

The hall was artistically decorated with red and green garlands, and myriads of light transformed the whole into a scene of splendor and brightness. The tables were spread in the hall, and everything was typical of Thanksgiving Day. The menu consisted of all sorts of salads, vegetables and meats, turkey being the special dish; fruits, nuts and everything you would find at a Thanksgiving feast.

His Grace, Archbishop Blenk, was the guest of honor, and the Jefferson College football team, under the direction of Father Smith, president, and Father Ott, their director, were also present. His Grace occupied a seat at a table with Father Larkin, the beloved pastor; his assistants, Fathers Cassagne and Delaire; Father Jeanmard, secretary to His Grace, and several other persons, who were given special invitations.

All day the ladies were at the convent preparing the repast, which was served in a faultless manner. The tables were all filled, and, in addition to many who came to the convent, families unable to attend sent baskets or ordered the suppers sent to their homes.

The Jefferson boys were on their way to Springhill to play football on Thanksgiving Day, and Father Larkin, their very good friend, requested them to have supper in Algiers. They did not regret accepting the invitation, as they had a splendid time and it helped to increase their enthusiasm, which was greatly aroused.

After the supper, five hundred and euchre were played. The prizes were very beautiful and the games were very enjoyable.

On Thanksgiving Day the children held their annual party at the convent. Games were played, and the elocution class of the school rendered a very entertaining program. Motion pictures were shown and the children enjoyed the evening to its fullest extent.

The proceeds of the party will aid to pay on the recent improvements made on the convent, and the Sisters feel very gratified by the success of the affair. The ladies who so kindly helped are to be congratulated on the splendid manner in which everything was conducted, and all present enjoyed a most delightful time.

SEGUIN EUCHRE CLUB.

A very enjoyable evening was spent last Friday when Miss Henrietta Cleutat entertained the Seguin Euchre Club at her home in Opelousas avenue. The ladies' first prize, which was an embroidered collar and cuff set, fell to Miss Kate Clark; while Miss Engler captured the ladies' second prize, a box of embroidered handkerchiefs. The gentleman's first prize fell to David Williams, it being a silk umbrella. Robert Vicknair won the gentleman's second prize, a box of handkerchiefs. The consolation prizes fell to Miss Sadie Garland and Wm. Vinet. The next meeting will be held on Friday, Dec. 12th, at Miss Kate Clark's home in Pelican avenue.

TULANE THEATRE.

"Little Women," the dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's much loved story which held New York playgoers in its grip all last season, will be presented by William A. Brady at the Tulane Theatre Monday night and every afternoon and night of the coming week.

Since the first announcement of the coming of this play much interest has been shown and already many mail orders have been received from surrounding towns. The seats are in demand and it is now an assured fact that crowded houses will be the rule at all performances.

Mr. Brady promises that the breeziness and charm of the familiar story have been faithfully maintained. He has been most careful in his selection of "types" to impersonate Meg, Beth, Jo, Amy, Laurie, Mr. and Mrs. March, the Professor, old Hannah, Aunt March, and all the others over whose joys and struggles so many millions of readers have laughed and wept. Much attention has also been given to a faithful staging of scenes which are so well described in the book. Many of the identical costumes and properties used by the March girls in their home plays will be used in this production. As is well known, the character of Jo is Miss Alcott herself, while Meg, Beth and Amy are her sisters, Anna, Elizabeth, and May. It was from John Alcott, Miss Alcott's favorite nephew, that Mr. Brady secured many of the articles used throughout the play.

Incidentally, Mr. Alcott paid the dramatist, Miss de Forest, a very pretty compliment. After reading the dramatization, he remarked: "If Aunt Louisa were alive today, I believe that is just the way she would have written it herself."

A FAMOUS DETECTIVE PLAY COMING TO THE TULANE.

Robert Hilliard, who prides himself upon keeping "The Argyle Case" strictly up to the minute, introduces a scientific novelty in the third and fourth acts, which have been greatly revised since the popular detective play had its first presentation.

It is the new device of K. M. Turner, inventor of the dictograph, and shows the public for the first time how that cunning little eavesdropper can reproduce as well as record the human voice. In the counterfeiting scene the operatives hidden in the garret next door will be seen recording the voices on the oneophone as they are carried over the wire.

Klaw & Erlanger has arranged to bring "The Argyle Case" to the Tu-

CRESCENT THEATRE.

In the course of the season at the Crescent Theatre, Manager T. C. Campbell will offer a number of particularly enjoyable attractions, but none will be more liked by all the elements of the amusement seeking public than "Polly of the Circus," Margaret Mayo's delightful romance of the sawdust arena, with dainty little Elsie St. Leon and her management has surrounded her with a capable supporting company and an admirable production. Although "Polly of the Circus" is rated somewhat old in the matter of seasons, its novelty has not staled. It enjoys as strong a grip on the country as it did when first it set out on its wearing travels. Several transcontinental tours have not impaired the drawing qualities of the romantic comedy and several more seasons will pass before

Eugene Walter's conception of John Fox, Jr.'s, mountain story has been produced with much stage charm. Exceptional pains have been taken in surrounding Isabelle Lowe, who appears in the role of June this season, with a strong company of players. The play will be seen here next week at the Crescent, following "Polly of the Circus."

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

What might be termed an unusual bill in many respects will be offered next week at the Orpheum Theatre, and it will meet with a cordial reception from audiences at all performances, because something worth while can be picked out of each number. The exclusive picture and the music by Tosso's orchestra are up to the very high standard of the popular advanced vaudeville theatre.

Virtor Moore and Emma Littlefield in the original of bare stage acts, "Change Your Act or Back to the Woods."

Madge P. Maitland, offering a repertoire of original songs.

The musical comedy star, John E. Henshaw, and the dainty ingenue, Grace Avery, presenting "Strangers in a Strange Flat."

Return after a world tour, Ramesses in his Egyptian temple of magic.

Gliding O'Mearas, society's latest dances in a repertoire of original dances.

Fred Hamill and Charley Abate, the singer and the violinist, in "Midnight Pals."

Bradley Martin and Edith Fabrin, presenting a dainty dancing divertissement.

Exclusive motion views, selected especially for the Orpheum Circuit.

Orpheum concert orchestra, finest in the South.

THANKSGIVING PARTY.

A Thanksgiving party was given on Thursday, Nov. 27, at the home of Miss Martha Hart in Patterson street. The spacious rooms were decorated very prettily and were very inviting to the guests. During the evening a dainty supper was served and dancing and singing were enjoyed.
