CANNED SALMON

While Canned Salmon is extensively used its real food value is not generally known. SALMON contains more brain, blood, bone and muscle building elements than do most of the so-called staple foods. The following is from a report of the Department of Commerce of the United States: Salmon, 28 per cent; Sirloin Steak, 16 per cent; Ham, 14 per cent; Macaroni, 14 per cent; Fresh Eggs, 14 per cent; Spring Chicken, 12 per cent; Bread, 9 per cent.

There are nine varieties of the Salmon family caught and packed—some are better than others. The ROYAL CHINOOK is known to be the finest.

MISS MAHER TRIUMPHS—ALGIERS AGAIN A LEADER.

That Algiers always leads and never trails, and that the coming generation will live up to its reputation was again amply demonstrated last week when Miss Aldea Maher, the charming daughter of Judge T. P. Maher, graduated from the Tulane University with the degree of M. A. in chemistry. To do this Miss Maher completed a two-year course in one and too much praise cannot be given to this achievement of brains and industry, although Miss Maher in her thesis modestly gives credit to Dr. Palmer B. Caldwell and Miss Anna Hero, her chemistry professors.

But this is only one feat of this remarkably talented young girl.

Born in Algiers, she was a leader at the public grammar school and was valedictorian of the graduation class at Belleville school in 1906. Early in her scholastic career, her teachers discovered talents and predicted a brilliant future and their predictions are all proving true.

Miss Maher entered the New Orleans girls' high school No. 2 and continuing her triumphs, was graduated with honors; from the high school she entered Newcomb College for girls.

This new field afforded opportunities for the display of different talents and in the character of the moon god, Susanoo, in the caste of the "Sun Goddess, a Legend of Old Japan," selected as the class play for 1913 of the Newcomb seniors, Miss Maher again greatly distinguished herself, through her vocal and histrionic gifts, winning the plaudits of audience, press, and classmate.

The late lamented and much-loved Professor Fortier, dean of Newcomb, had selected as a minor study for her, English; but she attained high honors in all of those studies and made the chemistry course in addition. Miss Hero regards Miss Maher as "a born chemist at laboratory and research work."

After Miss Maher had received her diploma at the French Opera House last Wednesday, she was warmly congratulated by Dr. Robert Sharp, president of Tulane University, and Dr. V. V. Dixon, president of Newcomb College, for her wonderful work and the triumphant climax to her studies, and her classmates, proud of her achievements, presented her with a beautiful floral piece fastened with orange and black, the class colors of Newcomb of the year.

It is rare indeed that one person can attain such remarkable success and at the same time retain the respect and love of her friends and rivals, but Miss Maher is a remarkable young woman and Nature, while endowing her with these wonderful talents, has also made her beautiful of face and form and has given her a sweet and lovable disposition. She is altogether a most charming and adorable young lady and with all of her gifts, and her work to make use of them, we have every reason to be proud that she is an Algerian and we are ourselves proud to be Algerines because of her and we wish her unbounded and continued triumphs and success.
