may or may not be a stockholder, and shall be elected by the Board of Directors; but unit the election of directors to be held on the second Monday in June, 1916, David Pokorny shall be President of the corporation, and Treasurer and shall hold said respective of see until their successors shall be elected and qualified.

shall be President of the corporation, and Mr. Ross P. Adler shall be Secretary and Pressurer and shall hold said respective of fees until their successors shall be elected and qualified.

Article VII.—This act of incorporation may be altered and amended by a vote of the majoration may be dissolved by a vote of twe-thirds (2-3) in amount of said stock, at a general meeting of the stockholders, command for that purpose, after fifteen (15) days revious notice of such meeting shall have been published in one of the daily newspapers of the city of New Orleans and a copy of said notice mailed by registered letter to each shareholder at his last known residence. Article VIII.—Whenever this Company may be dissolved by expiration of its charter, or sooner by vote of the shareholders, held as above provided. These indidators shall continue in office until the aureholders, held as above provided. These indidators shall continue in office until the aureholders, held as above frovided. These indidators shall continue in office until the aureholders, held as above provided. These indidators shall continue in office until the aureholders, held as above provided. These indidators shall be elected by the distriction, and in the case of the death of either of them the shareholders are successor, the power of both liquitators shall be vested in the surviving liquitators shall be vested in the surviving liquitators.

e IX.-No stockholder of this corpoarticle IX.—No stockholder of this corporation shall ever be held liable or responsible to the contracts or faults or this corporation as further sum than the unpaid balance the total the sum of the and above written, in the presence of Louis Pichetto and L. A. Morphy, competent male witnesses, who hereunto sign tells rames with the said appearers and me, original signed:

Original signed:
DAVE POKORNY AND OTHERS.
LOUIS PICHETTO.
L. A. MORPHY.
W. MORGAN GURLEY.
New Orleans. La., July 19, 1915. Ceal)

W. MORGAN GURLEY.
Notary Public.
New Orleans, La., July 19, 1915.
In the undersigned, Recorder of Mortgages, and for the Parish of Orleans, State of Longians, do hereby certify that the above the loregoing charter of the "Pokorny EsLincoprorated," was this day recorded in the control of the contr EMILE LEONARD, Dy. Recorder, terrify the above and foregoing to be a and correct copy of the original act of terrify the above and foregoing to be and correct copy of the original terrify of the recorder
the with the certificate of the Recorder Mortgages thereto appended, and on file ay notarial office.

W. MORGAN GURLEY.
Notary Public.

(Sall) 17 22-29 Aug 5-12-19-26)

AMERICAN MOLASSO MEAL COM-RICAN MOLASSO MEAN PANY, INC.
States of America, State of Louisiana, tof Orleans, City of New Orleans.
Known, That on this 8th day of the I July, in the year of our Lord one anne hundred and fifteen, and of expendence of the United States of the one hundred and fortieth, before
the one hundred and fortieth, before

subscribed, who declared that availing them selves of the provisions of the general laws of this State relative to the organization of corporations, they have covenanted and agreed and do by these presents covenant and agree, bind, form and constitute themselves, as well as such persons as may here-free join or become associated with them, into a corporation and body politic in law for the objects and purposes and under the agreements and stipulations tollowing, to-wit:

Article I.—The name of this corporation all be "American Molasso Meal Company Article I.—The name of this corporation shall be "American Molasso Meal Company, Incorporated," under which name it shall exist for a period of iniety-nine (99) years from the date of this act, and shall have and enjoy all the power and authority conferred by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Louisiana upon corporations formed for the purpose of engaging in the business hereinafter stated, as well as the power to purchase, sell, mortgage and pledge property, movable and immovable, for the purpose and require-shall be delivered to consider the liquidation of the corporation, the result shall be determined by the consent of two-thirds of all the outstanding stock, present or represented at such meeting. In case of the death or inability of one of the liquidators, the survivor shall act alone.

Article IX.—The names and postoffice ad-Article IX.—The names to the stock of this dresses of the subscribers to the stock of this dresses of the subscribers of shares, sub-shall act alone.

Article IX.—The names and postoffice addresses of the subscribers to the stock of this corporation and the number of shares subscribed for by each of them are as follows: Chas. H. O'Rourke, 1212 Peniston street, New Orleans, La., 250 shares common stock; Chas. H. O'Rourke, 1212 Peniston street, New Orleans, La., 10 shares Class "A;" Anthony Vizard, Jr., Reeves, La., 5 shares Class "A;" Anthony Vizard, Jr., Reeves, La., 5 shares Class "A;" In M. Myatt, 6020 Camp street, New Orlenas, La., 10 shares Class "A;" Roy P. Standefer, 10 shares Class "A;" E. M. Williams, Vinton, La., 10 shares Class "A;" E. M. Williams, Vinton, La., 10 shares Class "B." Total number of shares subscribed for, 55.

The subscribers to this act of incorporation have also written opposite their names, respectively, the amount of stock of this corporation subscribed for by each of them, so that this charter may also serve as the original contents.

inal subscription list of said corporation, and they have also attached hereto a description of the property to be transferred to said cor-poration in payment of stock subscribed for, together with the valuation placed thereon by the Board of Directors, named in the char-ter. Thus done and passed at the city of New

Witnesses:
(Signed) L. R. HOOVER.
EDWARD L. SPIRO.
(Signed) FRED C. MARX, Notary Period of the Parish of Orleans, St. Louisiana, do hereby certify that the and foregoing act of incorporation, the with the annexed exhibit of property transferred to said corporation, which the said of the corporation of the corporatio

71. New Orleans, La., July 16th, 1915. (Signed) EMILE J. LEONARD, (Seal) Deputy Recorder (Seal)
A true copy:
(Signed) FRED C. MARX,
Notary Public July 22-29 Aug 5-12-19-26

CHARTER.
CONSOLIDATED SULPHUR AND OIL COMPANY, INCORPORATED.
inited States of America, State of Louisiana necessary to fully accomplish sain purposes and if oil or other minerals are found, their to market the same to the best advantage.

(2) Engage in the distribution of oil, gas salt, sulphur or other minerals either produced by this corporation, or other person or corporations by means of pipe lines, tramways, railroads, boats, barges or other conveyance, or to lease or sub-lease all or an part thereof to any other person or corporation for the like purpose, and in order trully carry out said objects and purposes, tully carry out said objects and purposes, tall purposes, in purchase, lease, or otherwise acquire piping stations, steaplants, air plants, and all other machinery of paraphernalia necessary or incidental thereto.

(3) To build, construct, lease, purchase, otherwise acquire buildings, machinery and other apparatus for refining, smelting, mardiacturing, or otherwise working up the produced by the and James M. Myser either in the above In case of any varcance either in the above In case of any varcance either in the above the remaining members shall have the power the remaining members shall have the power to fill the company shall remain in officer of the company shall remain in officer in the above the company shall remain in officer in the control of the company shall remain in officer in the company shall remain in officer in the company shall remain in officer in the control of the company shall remain in officer in the company shall remain in ordinary the control of its stock, as well as the company of the state of the capital stock in the capital may be increased may be the capital stock in the capital may be increased may be officer in the capital may be increased may be officer in the capital stock in the capital may be increased may be officer in the capital stock in the capital may be increased may be increased in a shall be provided that the capital stock in the capital stoc corporation may be increased small be hundred thousand ($230,000.00) dollars. Fifty per cent fo the capital stock of this corporation must be subscribed for before the filing of the articles of incorporation. The subscribed capital stock of this corporation shall be payable in cash, property, real or personal, or for services performed or rendered; and provided that if the stock is not paid for in cash that the law as provided in section three (3) of Act 267 of 1914 be in all respects complied with.

No stockholder shall ever be held liable or responsible for the faults, contracts or debts of this corporation in any further sum than the unpaid balance due the corporation on the shares, of stock subscribed for by him, nor shall any mere informality in the organization have the effect of rendering this charter null or of exposing any shareholder to any liability whatsoever.

This corporation shall not begin to do business and be a going concern until ten thouses and the stock of the capital stock.

any liability whatsoever.

This corporation shall not begin to do business and be a going concern until ten thousand ($10,000.00) dollars of the capital stock shall have been issued and paid for, either in cash, services or in property as aforesaid. If any of the aforesaid stock of this corporation is paid for in property, in that event the terms and provisions of Section 2 (two) of Paragraph "C" of Act 267 of 1914 shall be strictly complied with.

Article V.—All the corporate powers of this corporation shall be vested in and exercised by a Board of Directors to be composed of fifteen (15) stockholders, each of whom shall own, in his own right, during his term of office, at least one full-paid, non-pledged share of stock, which shall be shown by his written declaration, eight (8) of whom shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

The officers of this corporation shall constitute a given the stock of the corporation shall constitute a guorum for the transaction of business.

ness.

The officers of this corporation shall consist of a president, first vice-president, secretary and treasurer, all of whom shall be members of the Board of Directors, and shall be elected by the Board of Directors at their first regular meeting after the first Monday first regular meeting after the first Monday in August, each year, beginning with the year 1916.

The following named persons shall consti-tute the Board of Directors of this corpora-tion, to-wit: B. S. Hood, J. L. Bullard, A.

New Orleans, July 21, 1915. EMILE J. LEONARD, Dy. R. A true copy: FRANCIS P. BURNS, Notary Public. July 22-29 Aug 5-12-19-26)

ELECTRIC LIGHT BULBS.

Why the Delicate Filament Becomes Heated to Incandescence.

In the bulb of the ordinary electric lamp used chiefly for house light there is a thin filament of metal wound on what is called an arbor.

This filament is so prepared that it asked. offers high resistance to the passage of of this it is heated to incandescen when a current passes through it. All the air having been extracted from the bulb in its making, this prevents the metal from burning up, as it would do if oxygen were present.

Vegetable fiber was used for the filament of the first incandescent lamps. The next development was the cellulose process, which is still used in carbon and metalized lamps, although a number of processes are used now to improve the filament. The discovery that tungsten metal could be used for this filament in incandescent lamps was made as recently as 1906, and the first tungsten lamp was made in this country in 1907.

At first the tungsten filaments were composed of what was called tungsten paste that made an extremely fragile wire. The new process now used produces a strong wire under pressure, finer than the finest human hair. They run up to 5,000 candle power.-Boston

A SKELETON IN THE CLOSET

The Legend From Which the Well Known Saving Was Taken.

The origin of that singular and widely quoted saying, "A skeleton in the closet," which is found in almost every language in Europe, is found in one of those curious collections of stories that have come down from the middle ages. In one of these collections, compiled by an unknown hand about the middle of the tenth century, there is a story of a wealthy lady who, having a secret grief, confided it to a friend who was apparently a perfectly happy woman. She was the wife of a nobleman who lived in his castle in the south of France. She and her husband were outwardly on the most loving terms. Not a care cloud seemed to cast a shadow on her path.

After hearing the story of her afflicted friend the noble lady took her by the hand and led her to a secret chamber adjoining her bedroom, there opened the door of a closet and exposed skeleton. "Know, my friend," she said, "no one is happy. Every day I am forced by my husband to kiss this grinning death head, which is that of a gentleman who was my husband's rival and whom I would have married had not my parents willed otherwise."

EYES OF THE BLIND

By JOHN CAMERON.

(Conyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.) Everybody in Erpingham pitied Dorothy Lee. She was a sweet girl, and it was agreed that it was a great protested Donald Moore as he anticipity she was so homely.

"It ain't a fair handicap," said old Mrs. Howell, who kept the post office. "It's hard enough for a girl to get married in New England, anyway, but with her looks-1 say it ain't fair."

Dorothy's father probably indorsed this view, but the hard-beaded old farmer was too practical a man to worry about his daughter's looks. Dorothy lived alone with him, her mother being dead. What she thought on the subject she never disclosed. She must have known, however, that there was a reason why she was always a wall-flower at parties and was never invited on picnics and such fes-When she was twenty-five Tom Lanark came home after an absence of six years in the West.

Fabulous stories preceded him. He had found a gold mine in Nevada, one of the richest in the world, it was said, and the glare of the sun on the alkali plains had seared his eyeballs until he could only distinguish light from darkto resume life—no, not to resume it,

As they walked briskly down Cenhalt a dozen wealthy friends. Then old house that had given him birth. Margaret Barnett had been an old flame of Tom's in the bygone days. But if there was any idea that she would link her life to a blind man's Margaret, who was "running" with the banker's son, dismissed it promptly.

"I want a live one when I get married," she said. And Dorothy witnessed a snubbing which Margaret administered to Tom in the street, in front of her house.

She saw the blind man trying to peer after the girl whose shrill, scornful laughter echoed through the quiet street, and an excess of pity overcame shrinking, and she hurried out. "Mr. Lanark," she said quickly, conscious that her words were almost beyond her control, "I am Dorothy Lee. Don't you remember me?" Tom Lanark felt for her hands and thought of you since I have been prize. away.' "I think it was a shame the way

Margaret Barnett spoke to you," declared Dorothy indignantly, "Ah, well, one lives and finds out these things," replied the blind man wearily. After that Tom fell into the habit of dropping into the old farmer's place of an afternoon, and on one occasion he actually drove up in a buggy.

"I thought I'd ask you to come for a drive with me, Miss Dorothy," he explained. "I was sure I knew the way down the street to here, and that you'd do the rest-if you are willing to do an act of kindness for a blind man."

"O, I should love to go driving with you," the girl answered. She ran upstairs to change her frock, and, five minutes later, the village was speculating over the appearance of Dorothy and Tom, driving down the road into the country and chatting as merrily as though they were old friends-which, indeed, they might have been called.

But during the return Dorothy became very pensive. For she knew that her heart had turned very strongly in the direction of the blind man, and home. that he, too, as her woman's instinct told her, was by no means indifferent to her. And when they neared the town he suddenly placed his arm around her and drew her toward him.

"Do you think you can ever learn to care for a blind man, Dorothy?" he you," she admonished. asked. "Don't be, please, Miss Moore,"

It was a tremulous figure, shrinkthe current of electricity, and because ing and nerved only by intense resolu- hand on Helen's arm. "It's so good tion, that went to Tom's door that to see and hear him. It's like hom night, fearful of discovery by the itself." prying eyes of the town, yet spurred on by the sense of tremendous necessity. And, after she had knocked, she could hardly make her knees support her, and clung to the door-jamb for support.

The door opened. Tom peered out. Then:

"I can't marry you," the girl was sobbing wildly. "You have never seen me as I am, Tom You don't know-" "Don't know what, dear?" asked Tom's quiet voice. She felt his hands on her shoulders, but she could not see him through the gathering tears.

"I am the homeliest girl in Erpingham," cried Dorothy. "If ever you saw me you would be ashamed of me, Tom. And I can't marry you and not let you know; and I can't marry you and let you be ashamed of me."

She was beyond all self-control. She was weeping in his arms. She heard Tom's voice between his kisses. "Dorothy, you are the prettiest girl in Erpingham, and it wouldn't make any difference to me anyway," he said, "because I love you. Now I will tell you something, dear. I am not quite so blind as people think-in fact the doctor says that in a few months more I may see as well as ever. Sometimes a man may pretend to be blind, Dorothy, in order to know his real friends from his false ones."

"How pretty Dorothy Lee has grown since her engagement to Tom Lanark," said the gossips later.

And all agreed that she made the weetest bride that ever came out of Erpingham--all but Margaret Barnett, who was no longer "running" with the Too Risky.

Officer-Did you get the number of the car? Victim-Yes; but never mind. It was my cook's machine. I don't want any trouble with her.-New York Globe.

Ruinous. Madge-Gossip doesn't pay. Marjorie-I'm beginning to agree with you, my dear. The last secret I heard cost me over $2 for extra telephone tolls.-

HIS LAST TEA FIGHT

By HOPE AINSLEE.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
"Don't ask me to go to any more of (Copyright, 1914, by W. pated his sister's invitation.

Helen's pretty face became clouded a new and happy bride. at once. "George! How rude! Tea Roslyn Boyd, "that I am willing to or anything you like to call them. I've escorted you this whole winter from escorted you this whole winter from "You seem to be very anxious," she one studio to another. I've imbibed suggested, in a sympathetic, womanly gallons of sickly tea and eaten pounds of cake and tarts and jam, and I've way, and more than anxious was the listened to would be artists rave for hours about their souls and their tem-

Caroline Becker. She has no temperament and of course I find her rather pleted some time ago and I have had dull-"I'll go," interrupted her brother. way."

must be an oddity." George turned away, whistling. He dezen of each."

had a sincere hope that his sister would develop some common sense after she had a season or two of New the recommon submoner well paid and with sense as simple of more work. Within but to take up its burden alone in the tral park west toward the studio build- half a dezen wealthy friends. curious about his hostess to be.

took her proffered hand and felt her warm, strong grip as she welcomed household. him and his sister to her studio. The girl was beautiful, in a simple, sweet way. She was like the girl he knew in the West, not a particle like the girls his sister "adored" and who lived in the studios he had been frequenting.

Neither was this studio like the others. It looked more like a real home than anything he had seen in New York. There was no oriental scent in the air; there were no dimly lighted candle lamps, no smoking table with "ladies' cigarettes" lying on it. "This is so cheerful and homelike, Miss Becker," he found himself saying after he and his sister had admired took them in his. "Indeed I do." he ing after he and his sister had admired answered warmly. "I have often the picture that had won the Academy

> "Oh, it is, really?" asked Caroline. earnestly. "It is, indeed," George repeated.

"That's been one of my main objects in the furnishing of it and in all my little entertainments. I've tried to have the home atmosphere-the way mother does at home in Omaha —and, now don't laugh when I show you something." She ran behind a screen and returned with a stone crock in her arms.

"The cookie crock!" cried Helen "I can hardly believe my eyes," added George.

"And real, homemade cookies!" explained Caroline, removing the top of the crock. "Mother sends them every week and I always have some."

Each of the guests took a round sugar-covered cookle and ate it as if it were the best thing they had ever "I wouldn't exchange this cookie for all the French tarts or pate-de-foiegras tid-bits in all the studios in New York," said George Moore more en-thusiastically than his sister had heard him express himself since he had left

"They are good," admitted Helen. "It's just that-they remind me of home," said Caroline. As George reached for a third cookie his sister frowned upon him. "George Moore! You laugh so loud and eat so much. I'm ashamed of pleaded Caroline, putting a friendly

And after that the guests began to arrive so that George and his sister could not monopolize their hostess Helen had to drag her brother home and as she usually had to urge him to remain even a polite length of time she was more than amused. "That is the first real girl I've met at these tea fights, sis," he said as they walked home. "Yes?" replied Helen, raising her eyebrows. "She's very pleasant."

"Pleasant! I should think she was -she's a peach! She's a real genuine girl and I intend to see much of her. And I hope that cookie crock will not grow empty for I intend to make many a raid on it."

"I-I thought this was your last 'tea fight." suggested his sister. George laughed. "I'll forgive you for taking me to this one, sis-honest

I will." "For you saw the handwriting on the wall of Caroline Becker's studio, didn't you?" she asked, teasingly.

He nodded. "I did; did you?" And apparently the writing was there, for the girl with the stone cookie erock and the man who did not like studio teas went to housekeeping in a real home within twelve months from the day of their meeting.

Thick-Headed. "You don't seem to think much of Gadson's intellectual powers." "No. I don't."

"Well, why not?"

"Because I feel quite sure that if a section an inch square were cut from his skull it would make an excellent paper weight."

SILVER CITY'S VS. HAAG STARS. On last Sunday the Silver City's defeated the Haag Stars 4-3. The game was in favor of the Haag Stars until portant arkeologica the last inning, and then the Silver City team played ball.

Both teams will cross bats next Sunday at the viaduct field. The umpire will be B. Guilder.

apes. People will always be up to need in this country is an automobile ne new kind of "monkey business." that won't turn turtle.

BOYD'S SPLENDID IDEA

........

By MARGARET MIDDLETON.

(Copyright, 1914, by W. G. Chupman.)

"I wouldn't dream of accepting your with all the liberal ingenuousness of

"I need work so sorely," explained "Well, pink, blue or yellow teas- take anything I can get." He was a gentleman, she saw that.

hours about their souls and their temperaments. I'm sick of it."

"Won't you go just this once—this afternoon? I promised you would be there and I believe you'll really like there and I believe you'll really like the property of the prope to pick up what business I can in this

"Any person living in a studio and graph of the house—yes, and another having a tea and that you can find dull of the garden and print up half a "Very well, you can take a photo-

Two days later, when Boyd delivin which Helen's "dull" artist she called at the humble home of friend lived, George Moore began to be the photographer in her limousine, brought dainties for his invalid wife, He was more than curious when he provided for the children and scattered sunshine generally in the Boyd

Of course, Boyd was deeply grateful. Whenever he met Mrs. Marvin she had a pleasant, encouraging word

"I Suppose That You Wish to Sell Me These Photographs?"

for him. Her friends helped her to send work to Boyd. He found himself hopeful, prosperous, happy.

One morning as he chanced to pass the elegant home of the Marvins, he viewed a scene that at once troubled him. Mr. Marvin was just leaving the house. He came down the steps with an angry face, evidently greatly disturbed. He was a handsome man, but his features seemed to show traces of dissipation. Pretty Mrs. Marvin stood within the vestibule, one hand extended as if appealing to him to return. Then as her husband swung away she crouched back, covering her face with her hands as if in dire distress.

"Trouble! Oh, I hope not, though it seems so," reflected Boyd, sorely disturbed on account of his good, kind friend. Then his thoughts were abruptly disturbed as a friendly hand touched his shoulder.

"Hello, Boyd, what you doing in this aristocratic quarter?" hailed his challenger, whom he recognized as an old-time friend.

"I am having a good deal of work in the neighborhood," explained Boyd. "Know the Marvins?" "Oh, yes, Mrs. Marvin has taken a special interest in influencing commissions for me in her society circle." "A sweet little lady, that," commented his friend. "Wasn't that her husband who just walked away? A fine fellow but spoiled. Money, social standing, a charming wife, but fast on the downward path, I fear."

"I had not heard of that," murmured Boyd, very greatly troubled. "She don't know the worst and he don't realize it," went on the other. "So far his weakness is only getting with a lively crowd of old college chums and drinking champagne. You can infer what that will lead to in time. He has a bout, say once a week, is brought home jolly but boisterous, is all savage and disgruntled the next morning. It's breaking that poor little woman's heart.' All this was a revelation to loyal Roslyn Boyd and he was deeply grieved. Mrs. Marvin called him in a day or two later to see about en larging some family pictures. He fancted he could trace a repressed sorrow in her manner, the lines of care about her finely-chiseled lips. However, he dared not broach the subject resting weightily on his mind, nor proffer the earnest, helpful sympathy that stirred his honest soul.

"Poor woman! If I could only assist her," was the constant burden of his thoughts He saw the friend who had advised him of the situation and

University of Pennsylvania profess ors claim to have unearthed an ancithe cantain of the a

The automobile has brough the country circus, which motors from town to town and gives a performance on the village green.

While a stabilizer for aeroplanes is tablish a station in Borneo to study no doubt a good thing, what we really