NAVY YARD HERE TO BE BOOMING

$200,000 More Recommended Besides the 250,000 now Available.

Complete restoration of the navy yard at New Orleans, with extensions and the prospects over which Representatives of Louisiana were elated.

A report by the Helm commission on navy yards and stations now on the desk of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, recommends specifically, that the plant equipment be restored to efficiency and placed in such condition that repairs can be undertaken, when necessary, upon such vessels of the fleet as the exigencies of the service may make it desirable to assign to this yard during peace or in time of war.

The report was submitted within the last few days to Secretary Daniels. Because it indicates that time will be necessary for a study of conditions in order to determine how the yard can best be utilized in the interests of the efficiency of the entire navy, big steps will be taken at the present session of Congress.

Beginning with a statement that the station at New Orleans is well located so far as concerns fumunty from attack by sea, depth of water and anchorage area in its vicinity, proximity to a large center of population and source of supply, ample transportation facilities by land and water and good supply of labor, the report continues with a history of the establishment of the yard and its present availability not only as a repair station but as a base for submarines, destroyers and auxiliary vessels.

"It has definite possibilities, however, as a naval station for the repair and maintenance of vessels of the fleet up to the capacity of the floating dry dock now moored at the navy yard. It also has definite importance as a base for submarines, destroyers and also for auxiliary vessels in time of war."

It is declared by the report that the dry dock at New Orleans, so far as its lifting capacity is concerned, will accommodate 88 per cent of all the effective vessels which will be on the navy list in 1921. Also it will be available for the large number of American owned vessels which will make New Orleans a regular port of call and which could be taken over as naval auxiliaries in time of war.

The importance of New Orleans in time of war as a supply center and base for repair, the report says, impels the commission to submit at this time definite recommendations for the improvement of the station along the lines indicated.

An appropriation of $200,000 is recommended to start the work of improving the yard. This is to be in addition to $250,750, now available and $60,000 already submitted in the estimate of the navy department and carried in this year's naval appropriation bill now pending.

The total expense contemplated to put the yard in shape is approximately $2,000,000. The industrial manager of the yard in a letter dated Dec. 2, 1916, which was approved by the commandant, estimated an additional expenditure of $626,530 as necessary.

"The commission," the report says, "in recommending an appropriation in addition to estimates now before Congress, regards the work of construction of a wharf along the whole water front as one of primary importance which should be undertaken without delay. Also that the most urgent deficiencies in machinery and power plant, shop and storage facilities should be remedied."

JAS. TALLON ROBBED.

The saloon of James Tallon, corner of Delaronde and Bouny streets, was visited by thieves between 12:30 and 6 o'clock Tuesday morning and robbed of $60, which the thieves found in the cash register. Mr. Tallon, who sleeps on the premises, believes that he was rendered unconscious by a blow while sleeping, which prevented him hearing the thieves. He was compelled to seek medical attention Tuesday forenoon, as he was suffering from an injured side.

POLICEMAN'S BULLET IN LEBLANC'S BRAIN.

An X-Ray examination Tuesday morning showed conclusively that the bullet fired by Supernumerary Patrolman Fleming early Sunday morning entered the head of Howard LeBlanc, aged 21, son of Felix LeBlanc, proprietor of a saloon, 1601 Patterson St., which was raided by Fleming and where a violation of the Sunday law was alleged to have been found.

The bullet is still lodged in young LeBlanc's brain. At first the bullet was believed to have merely cut the scalp, ricocheted and did not enter. X-Ray pictures Tuesday showed the bullet resting just above the center of the brain. His condition is now regarded as extremely critical.

Patrolman Fleming, upon advice of District Attorney Luzenberg, was charged Monday in the second city criminal court with shooting and wounding. He was paroled later by Capt. Boyle, acting superintendent. From facts gathered by the police, the acting superintendent is satisfied that Fleming acted within his right when he returned the fire of the elder LeBlanc. The son received one of the stray bullets fired by the policeman.

Distinguishing Refinement Belongs to The Woman Who Selects Her Corset With Discriminating Care

To avoid expensive selection is part of the "discriminating care" which brings the atmosphere of refinement, for lavishness is usually stamped with loudness. In corsets models should be your choice first, because they supply a different atmosphere—they mark the choice of the woman of taste. And then they are not expensive—they cost but a trifle more than ordinary corsets while supplying every feature of Parisian-made garments of the individuality of the corsetier's special making.

Dressmakers endeavoring to reproduce the quiet dignity of the truly artistic gowns shown in leading fashion-plates, and have them portray their full character, will require such complete and graceful freedom as La Victoire or exclusive hand-made corsets can give. The effects of fitting over these exclusive corsets can be compared only to the individual work of famous designers as shown upon distinguished women of society.

Miss Jean Lewis, an expert corsetiere representing the manufacturers of La Victoire Corsets, is in our Corset Section. You are cordially invited to consult her regarding your Corset problems.
