DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MR. SUN CHANGES HIS SUIT.

"Mr. Sun was so proud some time ago when the Eclipse came," said Daddy.

"What's an Eclipse?" shouted both Nick and Nancy in one breath.

"An Eclipse," continued Daddy, "is a darkness or strange light over the Sun or Moon. When an Eclipse comes over the Sun it means that Mr. Moon has got in the way in his travels between the Earth and Mr. Sun. And when an Eclipse comes over Mr. Moon it means Mr. Sun has got in the way between the Earth and Mr. Moon."

"The other day, you see, Mr. Moon was wide awake in the Daytime when he should have been sleeping soundly. And Mrs. Moon was getting restless too. So they thought they would 'Eclipse' old Mr. Sun as they said.

"And right in between the Earth and Mr. Sun they went—just when Mr. Sun was shining down on the Earth with all his might and main.

"But do you think Mr. Sun got mad? No indeed, he was delighted. He loved seeing all the People come out on their porches and out on the sidewalks and look at him.

"Well really he was quite wonderful. All sorts of marvelous and queer Spots came out all over."

"That doesn't sound very beautiful," said Nancy. "Spots are never nice, are they?"

"Well, the Spots on Mr. Sun were lovely indeed and quite unlike any other Spots you have ever seen. There were red Spots, green Spots, and then every little while he would become quite, quite dark and it would look as if Night were coming on.

"When it became so dark the owls in the Woods came out and thought it was getting-up time, and the little Birds all put their heads under their wings and went to bed.

"Then it would grow lighter and in turn the different colored Spots would come on Mr. Sun.

"Of course as you can imagine the Queen of the Fairies and the rest of the little Fairies, were all watching this from their corner of the big Woods which looked out on a wide, open Field.

"I know," said one of the Fairies, "that Mr. Sun is having a fine old time today. He just loves to change his Suit like this all the time. He is as proud as proud can be.

"And as for Mr. and Mrs. Moon they are having glorious fun, and consider this one of the biggest larks they have had for many a day. They love to travel, and an unexpected trip like this is just what they enjoy above all things."

"At that very moment Mr. Sun became quite, quite black again and once more all the little Creatures started to go to bed, and this time the Bats came out and flew about. But then didn't that jolly Mr. Moon and his good-natured Wife laugh! And as the Bats were beginning some good old races, a great red Spot almost covered up Mr. Sun and it became very bright again.

"And all the Fairies watched and kept saying to themselves how glad they were Mr. Sun was having such a gay time wearing so many different Suits in one day!"

The Fairies Were Watching

"Thought it was Getting-Up Time."

"Love at First Sight."

"Do you believe in love at first sight?" "Of course, I do. There's Higgins, for instance. Do you suppose his wife would have married him if she'd taken a second look at his face?"

JOHNNIE HAD GOOD MEMORY

Easy for Him to Remember When He Was Told to Stand Up and Have His Eyes Put In.

Robbie (boastfully)—I'll bet I kin remember farther back'n you, Johnnie! Johnnie—Huh! Let's hear you! Robbie—Well, I remaember when Uncle John took me in his arms an' said, "My, what a bright little chap for a week-old."

Johnnie (with high disdain)—That's nothin'. Why, I kin remember when they said, "Stand up Johnnie, and have your eyes put in!"—Exchange.

WANTED HIS PIE FULL-SIZED

Bobbie Didn't Want to Be a Bother, but Preferred to Have His Pastry in Regular Dish.

When Bobbie went to see his grandmother he was much interested in whatever went on in the kitchen. One day she said to him: "I'm going to make you a nice little pie in a saucer, all for yourself. Don't you think I'm pretty good to take so much trouble?" Bobbie pondered. "Grandma," he said, at length, "mother told me not to be a bother, and if it's goin' to be any trouble, yu can just as well make my pie reg'lar size."

Less Gossip Then.

True Friendship.

We are all inclined to lean too much on friendship; to depend not on our own souls for strength, but on the strength that comes from other souls. So the building in process of erection has many props to support it; but as it nears completion prop after prop is knocked away, and it is secure only as it rises firmly in its own foundation. No friend can bear our burden for us; the most he can do is to help us to bear it well, prompting us to endeavor by his sympathy and wisdom. If we have so used friendship that we have lost the power to stand alone, we have misused it.

Use of Soy-Bean Oil.

Soy-bean oil has been studied with other oils in a series of experiments carried on by the office of home economics and found to compare favorably with the more common culinary table oils with respect to the thoroughness with which it is assimilated.
