THE TAPPED WIRE

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR.

Vance Illsley was neither acrobat nor gymnast, but his college training had taken in that muscular exercise which makes a man agile and nimble.

He was hanging with his head down and slipping, slipping, the only obstacle to a sheer earthward plunge being a loose wire in which the climbing hook had caught.

One hand of the latter showed a bad burn, the body was limp, the eyes closed, the face ghastly pale; but Walters breathed slowly, painfully.

These were the circumstances: Illsley had come to Moorville to visit an old invalid uncle, and his intended sojourn had glided into a month because he had met Breda Lorne.

Illsley closed the chapter of his one life romance by striving to forget, which was impossible, and arranged to get back to the city, where distance and occupation might assuage the deep heart pain he experienced.

Both times she was with her constant companion, Corinne Mayhew, who was a visitor from another town, and whom Illsley had met several times at the Lorne home.

Illsley had said good-by to his uncle and had reached the railway depot just at dusk, three days after his timely services in behalf of Ned Walters.

"Just in time!" the line repairer panted out. "Mr. Illsley, you must come with me for an hour or two."

"You will defer it, I am sure, when I tell you that your future happiness depends upon your learning what I know."

"What do you mean?" questioned Illsley. "That a certain letter you received was never written by Miss Lorne, who never read your own; that a Miss Corinne Mayhew has been scheming to discredit you with Miss Lorne in the interests of her brother."

Illsley was astounded, almost incredulous, until Walters took him to a room which had a wire running into it to a temporary receiving instrument.

"Listen at that receiver until there passes over the wire a message from Miss Mayhew to her brother, which I happen to know will occur within the next hour. I have caught many such in the course of my work during the past few days."

Twenty minutes later Illsley heard Miss Mayhew inform her brother that Illsley had abandoned the field, and that her brother must the next day begin the siege of Breda's heart.

Illsley did not leave the town that night, nor the next—in fact, not at all. He saw Breda and the situation was cleared at the sacrifice of her false girl friend. Illsley settled down in Moorville and left it only temporarily a year later. That occasion was their happy honeymoon.

Safe Guncotton. Guncotton, properly made and completely purified from "free" or uncombined acid, is not liable to spontaneous combustion.

Poor Man! According to Plutarch, Cato said that in his whole life he most repented of three things. One was that he had trusted a secret to a woman; another, that he went by water when he might have gone by land; the third, that he had remained one whole day without doing any business of moment.

IT WON HIM

Frances—I'm afraid you don't like my game of bridge.

Francis—I am bound to like anything that costs me as much money as that.

The Preacher—Doesn't it worry you to have so many patients die on your hands?

Young Doctor—No. Just think of the experience I'm getting.

SMITH THE SIGN MAN

MYSTERY HOVERS OVER LAKE Body of Water in Central Africa Has Most Curious Effect on Minds of Travelers.

Cold and gray are the waters which Lake Tchad spreads over the lowlands of central Africa.

The traveler in Africa finds the mystery of the dark continent more haunting and unfaithful here than in the baffling mazes of the jungle or in the silent smile of the sphinx.

As far as the eye can see ahead are the reeds and rushes reaching up through the water in tangled masses.

The traveler gazing across Lake Tchad for the first time feels the thrill of discovery. The knowledge that he is not the first to stand upon the banks does not dispel the feeling of entering the most shut-off place in central Africa.

Guncotton, properly made and completely purified from "free" or uncombined acid, is not liable to spontaneous combustion.

Poor Man! According to Plutarch, Cato said that in his whole life he most repented of three things.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Potts, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my back.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did for I began to improve when on the second bottle.
