J. CASTROGIOVANNI AND SIREY FIGHT DRAW.

Officers and enlisted men at the Naval Station were furnished a corking good boxing program Saturday which was brought to a climax by a four-round draw between George Sirey and J. Castrogiovanni. Sirey, a product from the local ring who figured in preliminary bouts some time back, gave the sailor-barber the hardest scrap he has experienced at the station.

From the time the going sounded, Sirey and Castrogiovanni battled away in nip and tuck fashion. In the third round when it appeared as if he was all in, Sirey sent a right cross to the jaw of his opponent which sent him to the mat. However, he was up on his feet at once and his strong finish gave him a draw verdict.

This was the feature bout of the card and kept the bluejackets on their toes from the opening gong until the verdict given by Referee Murphy.

Red Dolan and L. Landrieu fought a three-round exhibition. Young Wolgast and Young Dolan, former preliminary boys here who are now in the service, also fought an exhibition bout.

The negro mess attendants furnished an amusing spectacle for the fans in a battle royal. In another scrap, Shorty Fox put over a wallop that put Winslow to sleep for several minutes.
