

"VE-NEL" OPENS FOR BUSINESS

LATEST MACHINERY INSTALLED AND READY FOR OPERATION.

Equipment Costs Several Thousand Dollars.

This morning the "Ve-nel" Company makes its initial bow as a new industry to the Algiers public. As will be remembered some time ago this firm had a guessing or suggestive contest in order to give their firm a new name, and the name "Ve-nel" was selected being a combination of Vezen and Nelson.

The new firm begins its operation under the name of the "Ve-nel Dry Cleaning, Pressing & Renovating Co." They are established at 539 Patterson Street, where they occupy both the ground floor and the second floor. They have installed for this new industry the very latest machinery that could be had, among some of the machines installed is a gasoline still which converts the gasoline after it has been used on clothing to vapor and again condensed into a clear solution. Besides the gasoline still they have several large pressing machines and washing machines and also an apparatus for not only extracting the gasoline from the clothing, but they have installed a machine which by the combination of dry heat and steam they drive away entirely all of the fumes which were in the gasoline and which is so necessary for renovating clothing.

The company also has a new truck and they are now starting out soliciting business.

Mr. Raymond Nelson or Mr. Henry Vezen need no introduction to the Algiers public; they are both local boys and have made good.

We have considerable amount of pride in the success of their new industry and we congratulate them on the confidence they have in the future possibilities in this line in Algiers.

Regular Democrats of Algiers Attend Meeting in Big Body

MORE THAN THIRTY AUTOMOBILES TAKE BIG CROWD TO ATHENAEUM.

To attend the big celebration of the opening of Colonel Stubbs campaign at the Athenaeum on Tuesday, night, the Algiers supporters of the regular Democratic organization got up a novel parade for helping Colonel Stubbs make his campaign a success.

The different precinct leaders made arrangements to take large delegations over in automobiles and besides some twenty-five or thirty local machines, the two big Higgins Touring Cars of the city holding perhaps twenty-five or thirty people each were also brought over to Algiers to help take over the crowd.

From the time the automobile parade left the Canal Street ferry on the city side till it reached the Athenaeum the boys kept up a continual cheer that every one knew that Algiers was on its way to the big show.

There was a great deal of disappointment however when the crowd reached the Athenaeum for the fact that they were unable to get in and mirers unbounded pleasure, and entitles him to the support of all who admire patriotism.

With a natural liking and marked aptitude for things military, Colonel Stubbs early in life took up the science of military tactics, and when but a mere youth aligned himself with the National Guard of Louisiana, continuing with zeal the fascinating study during his four years of student life at Louisiana State University, his proficiency being rewarded by his selection as one of the Company Commanders of the school battalion. The closing behind him of the doors of his Alma Mater did not dim his ardor for things military, and he was soon again actively associated with our State Militia, which has since continued practically uninterrupted. When the U. S. S. Maine went down, with "Old Glory" lying in Havana harbor in February, 1898, he was in command of the Monroe Company, known as Company B, Louisiana National Guard, and he and the entire company offered they had to content themselves by hearing orations at some of the overflow meetings held on the outside.

Colonel Stubbs was given a very warm greeting by the regular Democratic body in the city. Immediately following his presentation the crowd greeted him with a roaring applause. It was many minutes before he was able to begin his address. For the benefit of those who were not able to hear all of his speech, it was printed in full in Wednesday morning's Times Picayune.

The following is a sketch of Colonel Stubbs career and will give our readers many interesting points regarding his life both as a public and private citizen.

In Colonel Frank P. Stubbs all factions of the Democratic party find an ideal candidate who commands the support of those loyal to the best interests of the State. Colonel Stubbs is not the "hand-picked" candidate of any organization or combination of aspiring politicians, but his candidacy is in response to the spontaneous and insistent demands of those who know him best and appreciate his noble qualities of mind and heart and his sincere and laudable desire to serve the people of his State to the best of his ability. He is seeking the support of all men qualified to participate in a Democratic primary, and gladly welcomes the hearty and cordial support of all voters. The endorsement of any organization in any section of the State will be most graciously received. Colonel Stubbs recognizes the fact that the active leaders of the Democratic party in Louisiana are men who have proven their worth and loyalty and he gladly accepts the support of such men, believing that by virtue of the fact that they are leaders in the party councils, is sufficient guarantee that they are entitled to the consideration of all men.

Colonel Stubbs is in the very prime of life; active, vigorous and full of energy. He is an educated gentleman, qualified by long years of close application to the solving of legal problems to cope with any question. He is a successful business man, being the head of one of the biggest financial institutions in north Louisiana. He, with his brother, have made a remarkable record as successful farmers, knowing and practicing the science of agriculture. Thus, in Colonel Stubbs, is found the rare combination of a prosperous attorney-at-law, a successful business man and a progressive farmer. But the record he has made as a soldier affords his friends and ad-their services to our country when war was declared by us against Spain. Captain Stubbs and most of the old "Ouchita Guards" were soon inducted into the service of the United States, the company becoming Company B, First Regiment Louisiana Volunteer Infantry, and, while it saw no active service in the Spanish-American war, its excellence as a military unit was officially commended. While the regiment was stationed in Florida Captain Stubbs was tendered a Major's rank; but, having given his promise to the parents of the boys who went into our country's service under him, at a farewell banquet tendered the company just before leaving home in April, that he would look after their sons and remain with them, come what might—he declined the proffered promotion for the greater honor which the trust of those at home implied and whose confidence was not misplaced or abused. Shortly after the Spanish-American war, the State Militia was reorganized, and Captain Stubbs was tendered and accepted the colonelcy of the First Regiment, with which he later served as commanding officer on the Mexican border and with which he went as its colonel to France, the regiment being at that time known as the 155th Infantry. In recognition of Colonel Stubbs' military services overseas and in appreciation of his general fitness and personal qualifications, he was TWICE recommended for promotion to a Brigadier-Generalship, and only the sudden termination of hostilities prevented the issuance of his commission. Though still a young man, Colonel Stubbs has served his country with distinction and honor through THREE wars, each time among the first to volunteer, and not sheathing his sword until the issue had been satisfactorily decided.

This splendid record shows that Colonel Stubbs was actuated by the noblest and purest motives of patriotism, and his thousands of friends were quick to recognize the fact that in him were centered the qualities which should be possessed by any man who aspires to govern a great State. Hence it was that Colonel Stubbs, after much urging, consented to make the race for Governor. Since then he attracted to his standard many of the recognized leaders of the Democratic party, for they recognize in Colonel Stubbs a man of ability, unquestioned integrity, unswerving devotion to the best interests of the State, and whose patriotism impelled him to follow Old Glory to the battlefields of France. They realized that these qualities were such as to command the cordial support of a generous and grateful people; and, without attempting to criticize or humiliate other spontaneous gentlemen, they rallied almost spontaneously to the support of Colonel Stubbs.

GUESTS AT FORT ST. PHILIP

It is not the policy of Colonel Stubbs to deal in personalities in this campaign. He will discuss measures, not men. It is his desire to be Governor of Louisiana, believing that he is qualified by his experience in various capacities; and by his knowledge of men and how to obtain the best results, will enable him to still further serve his people—serve them in times of peace as faithfully and successfully as he served them in war.

TO BUILD CHEAP HOMES FOR THE PEOPLE

FACTORY BUILT HOUSES TO SAVE MORE THAN 30 PER CENT—THOMAS B. BROWN LOCAL REPRESENTATIVE.

Those who went to the Folly Theatre a few nights ago and viewed the "Ford Weekly" of how factory houses are already cut out at the lumber mill and put up within three or four days, will have a good idea of a new industry that is shortly to come to this city.

The Coons Cypress Silt Company of Patterson, La., has already announced their intentions to come to the city of New Orleans to erect a factory for this purpose. They have purchased two squares of ground at Carrollton and Washington Avenues for which $15,000 paid.

The company expects to build for the people not what is known usually as the knock-down houses which are shipped from northern points, but they will take a contract to build a certain house for you at certain prices but instead of the material all being cut out on the premises or the lot where the building is to be erected, this work will all be done by machinery at the factory saving many days of labor cost and assuring a more substantial structure throughout.

Mr. Thomas B. Brown, one of our local builders well known here residing at 717 Opelousas Avenue, will become the local representative of the Coons Cypress Company in this district.

The company has already begun the moving of its plant here and will be prepared within a short time to begin the erection of cottages at a price that will make it possible for landlords to erect premises for rental purposes.

Mr. Brown is very much elated over the fact that the big concern will move to New Orleans so that the people here will have an opportunity to go to the office, select their building, by photograph of the house, see the plans, and also have the pleasure of seeing the building put up by the company's own workmen in a short time.

De Rocha, financial secretary; John Singer, recording secretary; A. Rooney, grand marshal; E. Boudreaux, reporter, and W. J. Boylan, custodian. Mr. Donner was toastmaster. The next meeting of the club will be held at McMahon's Hall, when another fishing trip will be planned. The new lodge of the club is a two-story structure with eight rooms. It is built near the water's edge of Lake Catherine and is very attractive. This, combined with the progressiveness of its officers, tends to make it one of the finest in the State, and is a place where young men can spend a few weeks' vacation in the summer and a hunting trip in winter.
