

There's No Doubt About It, They're Wearing Them Longer in Paris This Spring and Summer

(C) CROWN INC. FROM MAZAOFF

A Jersey de Laine sport dress of the new rust color. A Melange of colored embroidery on the side panels gives a charming effect.

A crepe gown with large printed motifs, an entirely new idea in printing which gives a decided variation from the old all-over pattern.

A Novelty Waist in Embroidered Morocco, with flowing sleeves.

A Canton crepe dress with Arabic embroidery in various colors, intermingled with strands of gold and silver metal thread.

Navy taffeta gown, showing a novel plaid effect, formed by drawn work on bodice.

A new Parisian interpretation of the use of Jersey de Soie, destined for the Riviera.

Jersey de Laine is the material for this ideal walking gown, elaborately embroidered and beaded.

A taffeta dress for the debutante. The bodice and underskirt are embroidered in Scotch plaid effect and the tunic is handkerchief style.

One color taffeta gown with simple waist and petal trimmed skirt.
