

The Best Place. The illustrated Bible had a strong fascination for small Geraldine. With the book upon her lap, she looked up and said: "Mother, do folks marry in heaven?" "The Good Book says they do not, Geraldine."

A Gruesome Sneer. "I have discovered a means of saving health and prolonging men's lives," said the exultant scientist. "That's a good idea," replied the cynic. "There's no telling when some of your political scientists will need men in order to demonstrate the efficiency of new military machinery."

Violated Neutrality. "Why, Johnny, what's the matter with you?" "We had a free fight, mother." "What do you mean?" "There's twenty-three fightin' nationalities in our school, mother, and only three stayed neutral."

Caught. "I was looking at some $20 hats today," said his wife, "and I brought this one home to see what you think of it." "Frightful," said her husband. "That's what I thought. This is a cheap $5 hat; let me have $15."

The Latest Shade—When on earth I was an automobilist. His Satanic Majesty—Ah! Then please be kind enough to crawl under that furnace and see what's the matter with the grate; it seems to be clinkered up.

The Cycle. Four score years he knew With all that man esteems; In youth his dreams came true. In age his truth turned dreams.

Awkward Beginning. "You say the man who robbed your house introduced himself as a piano tuner?" "Yes." "Didn't you suspect that he was a thief?" "No; but I thought it rather strange that he tried to get into the piano with a crowbar."

A Horrible Possibility. "Railroads have already begun to put up the price of tickets," said the apprehensive citizen. "Yes," replied the patient person; "but I'm not going to kick. They're entitled to credit if they don't fix up a system for standing in with ticket speculators."

A Pretty Deception. Crawford—So you found a package of old love letters you wrote your wife years ago. What did you do with them? Crabshaw—Changed the dates and sent them to her while she was away in the country.—Puck.

No "Heart Interest." Here's a name written on this egg. It's "Guinevere." How romantic! "Nonsense," said the dealer. "Guinevere" is merely the name of the hen that laid the egg. She's a prize fowl!

Concerning Compensation. "Do you think a man ought to be docked for absence from congress?" "No. In some instances he ought to get a bonus."

REFINING INFLUENCE.

"I suppose your company experiences beneficial results from reform." "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "It is having the effect of making the boys more refined. Music is having a boom out our way such as it never experienced before."

Keeping Swell Tradc. "What's yours?" "Coffee and rolls, my girl." "One of those iron-heavy, quarter-inch thick mugs of coffee was pushed over the counter. The fastidious person seemed dazed. He looked under the mug and over it. "But where is the saucer?" he inquired.

FEMININE AMENITIES.

Miss McFlirter—Your husband and I have been having quite a long chat over old times. You're not jealous, are you, dear? Mrs. Noobride—Oh, not in the least of you, dear. I would be, though, if it were any other girl.

Obscure Luminosity. The constellations hang on high Like mighty poems in the sky. Their meaning none of us can trace. They're just put in to fill up space.

A Modern Mercenary. "You should think of our illustrious ancestors who steered this ship of the republic through the troubled waters—" "I'm kind of losing respect for my illustrious ancestors," interrupted Senator Sorghum. "Too many of them were inclined to boast that they left politics poorer than they were when they accepted office."

Overtaxed Vision. "You say you have difficulty in reading?" said the optician. "Yes; I need something restful. All I want is a good minifying glass." "A minifying glass?" "Yes; I want to be able to hold the paper off and read the war news headlines without having to crane my neck as if I were looking at the tall buildings."

Overshadowed. "I don't quite see how you figure that this foreign conflict is interfering with your political prospects?" "It's very plain," replied Senator Sorghum. "The papers out home haven't space to print my speeches. And if they did print 'em nobody would read 'em."

IMPROVING.

Miss Stoute (as swing descends and she bumps into Mr. Slim, who is swinging her)—You're doing much better now than you did at first. Mr. Slim—Yes, I seem to be getting 'be swing of it, all right!

Pardonable. "You told me it was one o'clock; it just struck three," wife mutters. "But, dear," he said with aching head. "You know that old clock stutters."

Nature as Milliner. "How beautifully your fall hat is trimmed." "But this is my summer hat, my dear." "Oh, I see. The autumn leaves have been falling on it from this tree we are standing under."

HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Walnut Rolls: Sift two cupfuls of pastry flour with one-half level teaspoonful of salt and four level teaspoonfuls of baking powders. Rub in three level teaspoonfuls of butter. Add one cup of chopped walnut meats and one-quarter cupful of sugar. Use milk enough to make a soft dough that can be handled. Shape into small balls and set these in a buttered pan. Brush over with milk and bake in hot oven.

To arrange any short-stemmed flowers artistically and easily, fill a shallow dish or bowl half full of water and throw in eight or ten common bottle corks. Arrange the flowers among the corks which will be entirely hidden by the leaves and petals and which will at the same time, hold the flowers and the leaves above the water in a most satisfactory manner. This suggestion is especially useful for pansies, violets or short stemmed nasturtiums.

Boil water and a lump of alum down to a thick paste. Any breakage in the household may be fixed with it such as dishes, furniture or anything that needs fixing. This will wear like iron.

If you are troubled with insomnia try a hot bath just before retiring. There is nothing better to rout sleeplessness. If you are not strong do not remain in the water long. A glass of hot milk is also beneficial for insomnia.

Boston Roast: Mix together one can of kidney beans, mashed, one-half pound of cheese, cut fine, and a few crackers or bread crumbs. Moisten the mixture with milk so that it can be molded into a loaf. Bake one-half hour, basting with hot water in which a spoonful of butter has been melted.

To prevent hot lard or butter from spattering when potatoes, eggs, etc., are dropped into it, sift a wee bit of flour in the beginning of the process.

The latest fancy is to decorate the bureau china to correspond with the embroidery pattern of the cover. The girl with a taste for china painting can decorate her own boxes, trays and brush backs, piece by piece and if she cares to do so, can use the same design for the cups saucers and teapot on her tea table, copying the designs in colors on her tablecloths, doilers and whatever cover she needs on her various dressing tables, chiffoniers and tables.

She might even add an embroidered pillow cushion or two to her window seat. To correspond she should use a design as similar as possible to the wall paper or drapery. Of course the large splashy cretonne pattern could not be satisfactory reproduced on chintz even though the cretonne itself could be bordered with lace and used for covers, but a flower design from the mass on the cretonne could be used on the china if so desired.

Alabama Goes 'Dry'

Alabama will become a prohibition State July 1 under two related measures which became law Friday night without executive approval. Within a few hours after Gov. Henderson had vetoed the bills and had appeared in person before the legislature to ask that the prohibition question be submitted to voters at a special election, both houses voted down his proposal and re-passed the bills by overwhelming majorities. The vote in the House on re-passage was 73 to 29. In the Senate it was 24 to 10.

The prohibition measures practically enact the prohibition law repealed in 1911 after it had been in force two years. Under the 1911 local option law all but eight of the sixty-seven counties have voted dry.

TOO MUCH FOR RUFUS

FIREMAN COULD NOT UNDERSTAND OBEDIENCE OF GAUGE.

Veteran Engineer Tells Amusing Story of Experience With Negro Fireman—Really Was Nothing Like a Miracle.

Just as the actor has his understudy, so the engineer has his fireman, who is some day going to take his place, and begins his training by cultivating habits of silence and check-er playing.

"Well," said W. C. Robinson, who had been running a locomotive since 1879, when he had the run from Bayard to Philadelphia on No. 54, "I once had a run on the West Shore with a freight down from Albany to New York. There was another freighter behind us, 35 cars loaded with bellowing cattle. She kept her distance all the way down from the capital, always a block behind us, slowing up when she came to the downhill stretches, keeping her regular distance on the level. And she kept clear for 144 miles, and when we got to the Jersey terminal she hit our caboose square in the middle. The most careful man hits something sometimes."

"A man can be careful," suggested someone with a large peaked cap who had just come in, "but those that are under him's got to be careful, too."

"I was on a southern run once, through the palmetto country, and the road was short of firemen, so we got a big, husky dardy, who had been a coal heaver, to fire on the run from Greenville to the sea.

"I had given the man the preliminary instructions on how to handle the coal to the best advantage, but there was one thing in particular that I impressed upon the swarthy son of Ethiopia.

"Keep the pointer of the steam gauge always toward me," I said as we started out for the long run.

"Yes, sah," said Rufus, and he was right willing and nearly worked off his round, perspiring head, but to no avail. The pointer leaned to the right, and despite the shovels full of coal that he heaved into the fire it would scarcely budge.

"The obstacle was too hard for Rufus to overcome. He should have been a fireman on an all downhill road on the run to the bottom.

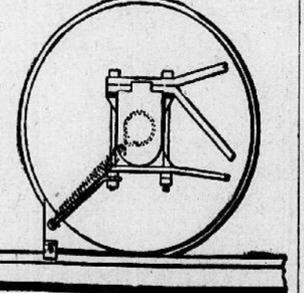

"He ran over to me and yelled into my ear, 'I spec, sah, if you want the pointer as you said, ye bettah sit ovah on de oder side, sah.'

"I took a look at the steam gauge pointer, with Rufus standing by, when it suddenly swerved in the direction toward me. Rufus marveled at its obedience. But it was very simple. We had struck a down grade."

AUTOMATIC CLAMP IS NEW

Designed to Prevent Movement of Either Wheel or Truck in Its Direction.

This invention relates to track clamps or grips used in connection with railway tracks and truck wheels. The device is for use in connection with a truck wheel whereby the clamp will automatically act between the wheel and the rail to prevent movement of the wheel or truck in the direction of the clamp. An advantage of this device is with respect to its reliability of operation and facility with which the biting element thereof may be renewed or replaced or with which the entire clamp may be detached or swung out of the way when not to be used for a clamping purpose.—Scientific American.

Fuel Oil Experiments.

The Chilean government which has had under consideration for some time the installation of oil-burning equipment on all the government-owned railroads of the country, has decided to turn over one entire division of the Longitudinal railroad, about one hundred and twenty-five miles long, for exhaustive experiments. The proposition was worked up and will be carried out by engineers from the United States. The consumption of fuel oil in Chile has increased since 1904 from 5,600 tons to over 230,000 tons last year.—Scientific American.

Getting Rid of Squeaks.

When a car has been in service for some time it generally develops annoying little squeaks here and there about the springs and body. The owner or driver will find it well worth while to get rid of these, as the labor involved is slight and a quiet, smooth-running car is always desirable. Squeaks can generally be remedied by tightening the car parts affected or by the application of a little adhesive tape.

WITH THE SAVOR OF THE Moving Picture Drama, "When Ship Came In," Has Scored Deserved Success.

Featuring two of the stars of the studio, Bessie Eyton and Thomas Santschi, the Selig company has put on a drama which has "caught" wherever shown. Briefly the story is as follows:

Neptuna, a vivacious, beautiful lives in the fishing village of Port with her aged grandfather, Captain Melody. She hates the life of poverty and petulant clares that she will leave the village if opportunity presents itself, and try her fortunes in the neighboring big city.

Josh Rawlins is a sailor on board the schooner, "Maid of the Mist," owned by his uncle, a crabbed old sea captain. He is repulsed by Neptuna, his sweetheart, who has developed a peevish disposition since he went away. She tells him she is sick and tired of life in the fishing village, but that she will marry him only if he has money. A short time after this Neptuna, while strolling on the beach, discovers a discarded $5.00 bill. Hastening to the house she steals silently in, writes a brief note farewell to Josh and makes her way swiftly to the railroad station. When Josh discovers the note and reads he finds that she has directed him to seek for her "until your ship comes in."

Neptuna finds work in a laundry, her inexperience and lack of skill cause her to lose her position. Out employment and without friends, Neptuna wanders instinctively to wharfs where she discovers a schooner "Maid of the Mist" all ready to sail. She steals aboard and conceals herself. Alarmed by a small smoke from a hold where gunpowder stored, the sailor embarks hastily in two small boats and row rapidly away from the vessel, as they expect her to blow up at any moment.

Neptuna is most overcome by the smoke, her good fortune has not forsaken her. The schooner having broached to, and with a

Thomas Santschi, sails set because of no hand at the wheel, is overwhelmed by an enormous wave which bursts through the open hatches and puts out the fire. Neptuna brings the schooner upon her course toward Home-Post and remains at the helm for twenty-four hours. She is sighted from the shore by Josh and her grandfather who immediately put out in a boat to meet the vessel. The find Neptuna unconscious at her post of duty, but she is easily revived. She brought Josh's ship in herself and thereby furnished her own wedding dowry. Thus were the lovers happily reunited.

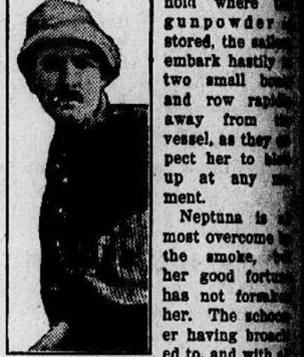

Honor Popular Star. While spending a week end with relatives at Lake Hopatcong recently Miss Nesbitt, leading woman, was given a royal reception by many of the natives and vacationists. When it was ascertained that Miss Nesbitt would visit Hopatcong for a brief holiday plans were at once formulated for a reception and dance to be given at one of the principal hotels in her honor. Upon her arrival at the lake, Miss Nesbitt unreluctantly accepted an invitation to attend the dance. Not anticipating any celebration or demonstration, she was astounded when her screen admirers collected in the gayly decorated ballroom and showered her with congratulations for the delightful characterizations she has displayed in the films.

Production Should Make Hit. Ed J. Le Saint, the Selig producer, is putting on a particularly pleasing one-reeler entitled "One Traveler Returns," in which Stella Razeto takes the part of a minister's daughter, a delightful character. The plot hinges around a young man who marries a parson's daughter and who has previously had dealings with another woman. The manner in which the latter plans revenge and how her spirit prevents the consummation is novel and absorbing. Lamar Johnstone plays the lead, Jack Macdonald an old lawyer, and Adda Gleason the other woman.

Star Is Children's Favorite. Edna Malson of the Universal company, who is such a favorite with children, has two big dolls and a Teddy bear hanging in her room. They are now entirely new and Edna is a big girl for dolls now, but they were all presented to her by small girls who were happy in the giving. The little girl who presented the Teddy bear drops in occasionally and says, "May I borrow your Teddy bear to play with?"
