NICE THINGS SAID ABOUT MAGIC CITY AND BOGALUSIANS IN ISSUE OF "LOUISIANA"

This month's issue of "Louisiana" the new and altogether different magazine devoted several pages to Bogalusa and Bogalusians. The Enterprise regrets that we are unable to publish the entire story which was cleverly written. Following a part is reproduced.

It's a wonder, that town of Bogalusa.

Long live Bogalusa, the Magic City!

Los Angeles has nothing on Bogalusa.

The Eldest Magician of Bogalusa is a Canadian.

One thing to be remarked about Bogalusa is the entire absence of weeds.

Another thing that held our open-eyed, and I'm afraid open-mouthed, interest was the cattle.

We had not seen a cow in so long we had almost forgotten which end was adorned.

I like Dr Slaughter. He believes in the health-giving properties of Bogalusa's wonderful wells, and so do I.

They are all young men, well educated, and of keen business ability. One of them looks like President Wilson, but that's not his fault.

"I'm out of politics," said Mr. Sanders. "I was in active politics for twenty years. Now, I'm a plain citizen, a lawyer—that's all."

Mr. Beall was one of the pioneer settlers from McComb City; he came early and had the pick of the beauty spots about the proposed town.

They told me in the office that piece of machinery was called "the nigger." But I've lived in the South practically all my life, and I never before saw a nigger who was that spiteful.

Passing through the newly planted orange country—which ex-Governor Sanders says is the most interesting thing within fifty miles of the new postoffice at New Orleans—we came to Slidell and went right on.

Alone save for a man who was having a buffet breakfast at the end of the parlor car, we settled back in our two comfortable chairs and blissfully slumbered till the brakeman called out "Talisheek." The biggest thing about that town is its name.

You will notice I said "dug." The man who was giving us these figures used the more euphonious word, "taken." "Three hundred bushels of potatoes," said the man, "were taken from a single acre." "Is that so?" said the Editor, much interested. "Who do you suppose could have left them there?"

Picture to yourself a quiet man, with honest brown eyes that look straight at you, a clean, rare smile and a slow, pleasant voice and you have the Honorable C. Ellis Ott, Judge of Bogalusa's City Court. What I most remember is the smile, and its rarity.

Bogalusa is a corporate city, a permanent city, with a Commission form of government, public parks, public market, building and loan association, chamber of commerce, state banks, fraternal societies, associations for the benefit of the farmer and truck-grower, and all the other good things that are necessary to the convenience and happiness of the inhabitants of a modern city.

Louisiana and its needs is the subject that lies nearest Governor Sanders' heart. Nobody understands the State or its people better; nobody loves them more; nobody believes in them more than does their one time Governor.

Around Bogalusa, which is only 72 miles from New Orleans, on a hustling railway, and in itself a thriving market, good farming and truck-growing lands may be had as low as ten dollars an acre. A man, with a family of four, can live, educate his children, and lay by something for his old age on two acres of this land.

Bogalusa is not built close up around the town square, with one main street holding all of its business houses, like most Southern towns. It is a city of "magnificent distances"—truly American. From its City Hall to its Post-office is a fine, healthy, and—if you walk it in the noonday sun—growing mile. So far there are no street cars in Bogalusa, and no jitneys.

Mrs. I. M. Dimitry, went to Bogalusa six years ago, is from New Orleans. She is the mother of Dr. T. J. Dimitry, now connected with the Charity Hospital, and Mr. M. D. Dimitry, an attorney of New Orleans. Mrs. Dimitry believes in Bogalusa, and in its future, and the city can boast no more loyal citizen.

All ice is not clean, but the ice manufactured by Bogalusa's ice plant is clean. Its very name, "Ozone Ice Plant," suggests cleanliness, and every one who knows its manager, Mr. M. K. Pearce, knows that he will stand for nothing that is not clean and wholesome. The plant has a capacity of thirty tons, with a sixty-five ton refrigerator. Deliveries are prompt and regular, and the service in every way excellent.

Dr. Herbert C. Cole, president of the City Board of Health and chief surgeon in charge of the Bogalusa Hospital, is considered by his profession an authority on efficiency. He is a contributor to the American Journal of Medicine and other medical journals of high repute. He is married and lives in a pretty yellow pine bungalow in Bogalusa.

Prof. J. F. Peters, superintendent of the Bogalusa schools, is an Illinois man. Since the beginning of Bogalusa the schools have existed, with Prof. Peters at their head. He keeps abreast with the progress of education, and under his direction the teachers in the Bogalusa schools give to their pupils advantages it would be hard to equal in public schools anywhere else in the South.

The New Orleans & Great Northern shops in Bogalusa furnish employment to three hundred men daily, while the Big Mill has kept nearly thirteen hundred men at work, dividing the work into day and night shifts, all during the "hard times" everybody's been talking since the beginning of the European war.

McClellan Leaves Town.

W. F. McClellan, who has been in Bogalusa since the opening of the paper mill, left last week for New York where he will assume charge of a large paper mill. Mrs. McClellan and family will follow at the close of school.

A Nervous Woman Finds Relief From Suffering.

Women who suffer from extreme nervousness, often endure much suffering before finding any relief. Mrs. Joseph Snyder, of Tiffin, O., had such an experience, regarding which she says:

"Six months I was bedfast with nervous prostration. I had sinking spells, a cold, clammy feeling, could not stand the slightest noise. At times I would almost fly to pieces; stomach very weak. My husband insisted on my taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I began to improve before I had finished the first bottle until I was entirely cured."

MRS. JOSEPH SNYDER, 222 Hudson St., Tiffin, Ohio.

Many remedies are recommended for diseases of the nervous system that fail to produce results because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven its value in such cases so many times that it is unnecessary to make claims for it. You can prove its merits for yourself by getting a bottle of your druggist, who will return the price if you receive no benefit. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.
