

What Do You Get For Your Labor?

BOARD, clothes and an occasional "good time"—is that all? Why not begin now to make preparation for future comforts and necessities—things you will want and need when you reach the period in life where you are unable to earn as you do today?

To accomplish this isn't it important that you give the same degree of care to conserving and protecting your income that you give to producing it? In fact, insofar as your future is concerned, isn't your yearly accumulation of greater importance than your yearly income?

For conserving and protecting this income, increasing your accumulation, no other plan is so safe, so systematic so productive of results as a savings account with machine and for the machine, or a government by the people and for the people.

If either of these pledges of the executive had been in any wise lived up to, this meeting tonight would never have been held. On the 17th day of this month, the governor in his message to the legislature, then just convened, used this language, whatever may be said otherwise, a constitutional convention in the near future has become an imperative necessity. The state's fiscal system has broken down under the increasing weight of public needs and demands. In order that we may arrive at some just conclusion in regard to the breaching down of the state fiscal system, it would be well for us to ask some questions and to see if we cannot ascertain why and how the state's fiscal system, it would be well for us to ask some questions and to see if we cannot ascertain why and how the state fiscal system has broken down.

As is well known to all, Governor Nichols, in making his campaign preceding his election in 1888, pledged himself to certain fiscal reforms and that if elected the appropriations under his administration would be kept within the revenues. It is recalled that under the able leadership of Hon. George W. Bolton, of Rapides parish, who was chairman of the committee on appropriations of the house, that his pledge was scrupulously kept, and when Murphy J. Foster became governor in 1892, he found the state upon a cash basis. (Continued next week)

BETTER TIMES COMING

A matter of fact they are here now and while Bogalusa has enjoyed better times during the recent so called "business depression", due to the great European conflict, than possibly any other others of its size in the South. While hundreds of men have been out of employment in other cities, soup houses were opened in many cities and deserving people were actually in need of the necessities of life. In the larger cities, larger forces of men, skilled and un-skilled, were out of employment and unable to procure work. And all this time Bogalusa was forging ahead. True the past winter was not up to the Bogalusa standard but considering the condition of other parts of the United States we may consider our selves fortunate indeed.

Not one business failure was reported in Bogalusa since the start of the war; where is there such a record in all the South! The price of lumber is slowly advancing while the demand shows a healthy gain. The Railroad Shops are working almost as large a force of men as in its history. The resumption of work at the Paper Mill is promised at an early date; the Creosoteing plant is working a large force of men and there has not been a week that new enterprises do not open in Bogalusa. New homes have been erected each month and from every line of business comes the report that business is improving.

Meanwhile this store is doing everything it possibly can to supply you with the best merchandise at prices that are fair to all concerned. We have aimed to improve our service and efficiency and make this store your Store. The place where you will want to do your shopping, and a store that is keeping up with the progress of the city.

Remember that our phone service makes it possible for you to do your shopping with the same satisfaction as if you visit store in person.

MAYBE SHE IS LUCKY THEY FOUND TUBE AND PACKING

Charging that two years after an operation it was discovered that the surgeon left a drainage tube and packing in her hips, Mrs. Talmadge Saucier of Saucier, Miss., sued Dr. T. E. Ross, president of the Hattiesburg Hospital, for $30,000 alleged damages.

Judge Johnson, in Forest County Circuit Court dismissed the suit in favor of the defendant, ruling that Dr. Ross was blameless.

The operation was in November 1910, the suit charges. In December, 1912, another operation was performed and the tube and packing found, it is charged.

Breaking All Records.

Since the change of officials of the N O G N the railroad shops in Bogalusa have undergone the most gratifying changes. The shops are working almost as many men as at any time in the history of the and now comes the announcement that the men are working 10 a day instead of 8. It is necessary to do the extra work day in order to keep up with repairs work.
