BADLY MANGLED BY HUSKIES

Eleven-Year-Old Boy Has Narrow Escape From Death When Attacked by Savage Brutes.

Jack Craig, eleven years old, son of Fred Craig of Fox, Alaska, was saved in the nick of time from being bitten to death in a thrilling battle with trail dogs recently.

Three large dogs, half wolf and half Malamute, attacked Jack within a quarter of a mile of the village. He fought off the big brutes while he called for help.

"John the Finn," a local trapper, heard his calls and saw the battle from a distance of about 3,000 feet. He ran from his rabbit traps across the snow. When he lifted the boy, who had thrown himself face downward to escape the dogs, the big animals jumped on the man, and for a time the trapper had to fight. This second battle ended only by the timely arrival of a crowd of men who ran out from Fox, bringing with them a gun.

The boy's clothes were torn to shreds, and on his scalp alone 21 marks were counted by the physician who was summoned from Fairbanks.

The dogs are handsome specimens. They belong in Fairbanks and are usually kept shut up, but it is thought that when let out they wandered out along the trails in search of rabbits. From them they must have gotten their lust for blood.

CARTRIDGE CASES OF PAPER

German Chemist's Invention Is of Immense Importance in View of the Conflict in Europe.

A new application of extreme interest at the present time of the metal sprinkling process invented by Mr. M. U. Schoop, an engineer of Zurich, consists in the manufacture of cartridge cases from metalized paper in lieu of brass or copper. The advantages of such a process are apparent even to the layman. A certain independence of the large quantities of brass and copper hitherto required is obtained. In addition to this, there is a saving in weight of three to four grams in each cartridge, as a result of which the soldier can carry a considerably larger quantity of ammunition than heretofore. In the Schoop process the liquid metal is crushed by means of compressed air and is then inflated by any known method into extremely fine particles. Metalized cardboard or paper can in this way be provided with any durable and well-adhering metal coverings of any desired thickness. For the purpose above mentioned very thin coatings of a few thousandth parts of a millimeter in thickness are of course sufficient.—Scientific American.

MERELY A SUGGESTION.

"I hope you will be careful to close the front door securely when you come in at night," said the landlady to a careless roomer who had the midnight habit.

"What's up now?" asked the roomer.

"Burglars are in the neighborhood," replied the landlady. "Last night they got in the adjoining house and cleaned out every room."

"Well, if that's the case," rejoined the careless one, "I would suggest that you discharge the chambermaid and leave the front door open every night."

IDENTITY.

"What's the distinction between an optimist and a pessimist?"

"There isn't any. They're both the same man on different occasions."

NATURALLY.

"The real facts in his story leaked out."

"Of course they did. I knew his story would not hold water."

CRUEL SUGGESTION.

Musician—I don't know how to kill time this evening.

Friend—Why not execute one of your musical compositions?

A PROOF.

"Have the shellfish any intelligence whatever?"

"Why, haven't you ever seen a clam-bake dinner?"

GETTING NEXT.

"Did you ever have a ride in an automobile?"

"No, but one knocked my brother down."
