HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.
 Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, sniffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.
 Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.
 It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

SON OF ATTORNEY MILLER WOUNDED

The following letter is from Lieutenant Benjamin W. Miller to Mr. Felix Limongi. Lieutenant Miller is the son of Honorable Benjamin M. Miller, the well known attorney:

My Dear Felix—All my days I shall look upon you, my dear friend, as my preserver and benefactor. Though you do not know it, you have saved my life.

After one of our advances, together with some of my men I occupied a captured German dugout. A usual I carry your photo, my good luck emblem, in my pocket. A shell hit just outside, waking me. I heard another coming and sat up; my arm curved above my head, when the shell entered and exploded. Then came the miracle—the shell exploded so close to me that I was tossed about like a jack-straw. My face was badly burned, but no further injury was received than a shattered and torn elbow, the right. How it came that my arm was not broken I will never know. Your picture, my fetch friend, saved me.

You will pardon my deformed writing. I have not yet learned to write with the left hand. Please write as at American Red Cross Hospital No. 3, Paris.

As ever,
 BEN.
 Mr. Limongi, being familiar with the location of the hospital above referred to, furnishes us the following information:

The hospital is situated in the immediate suburb of Paris, at Trappes, Seine. It was built by the "Lydie Pasteur," but never occupied as such. At the opening of hostilities the American colony in Paris obtained a new hospital building. It has been used continuously. It has a capacity of 2000 beds; a frontage of 600 feet on the Boulevard Tinkermann. I have seen in its courtyard upward of fifty auto ambulances ready for immediate service. Knew a few of the personnel, especially the chaplain.

$20,000 IN XMAS MONEY COMING

The Washington Bank and Trust Company announces that within a few weeks they will pay out about $20,000 in Christmas savings checks to the citizens of this parish. This bank announced several weeks ago that owing to the necessity of subscribing to thrift stamps and Liberty bonds that they would not have a Christmas Club during 1919, but since the war has ended they have announced that such a club will be continued and hope that it will prove the most successful ever held in the history of the parish. "The war has taught everyone to save," said Cashier O. B. Magee, "and there will be no reason for almost every man and woman in the parish not belonging to our 1919 Christmas Club, as we will have every class, ranging from one cent the first payment to as much as you wish to deposit."

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Morris Writes an Interesting Letter

A. E. F., October 18, 1918.

Dear Mr. Cassidy—Your letter of September 17th received and glad to get it. Also glad to hear everything is moving along smoothly at Bogalusa. We are very busy here at present and have been ever since the Allied offensive started July 15th at Chateau Thierry. The Kaiser started his last and fatal drive for Paris on July 14th, with all his soldiers dressed in new uniforms, with everything arranged for a grand time celebrating over his victory, but the reception he received just after he started was something awful. The Allies knew just what he had up his sleeve and were on hand to entertain him. You know that July 14th was France's national holiday. The French people tell me their holidays have all been disturbed by the Germans every year since the war started. Not one has passed without some kind of trouble with the Germans; either a battle or a raid. The Kaiser figures on starting something especially on these days.

Speaking of the St. Mihiel salient drive, the Americans had a walk-over in this battle, but they are having a hard fight in the Argonne forest, but gaining ground little by little. I have seen lots of prisoners in the last few days. We have been handling them by the train loads. There was a German the other day on one of the trains who could speak English. Some of the boys asked him where he was going and he said to America, but he certainly dreaded the trip across on account of the "subs."

Well, I finally run into one person I knew, Lieutenant Miller from Covington, son of Lawyer Miller of our road. We were glad to meet up. I was handling a hospital train at the time and he was on his way to the front. He says if that is the kind of training I am running over here he didn't want to take a ride with me on this side. He looks good and was feeling fine. I think that our bunch from Bogalusa has been split up again on this side; I am not sure, but have been told so. We had another young man from Bogalusa killed, Houston Crane, probably you know him.

The war is coming to our very door at home. It is wonderful how our wounded feel and talk relative to returning to the front as soon as their wounds have healed. Everyone I talk to wants to get back at the Huns as soon as possible. The style of President Wilson's reply to the Kaiser's peace proposal just caught the bunch right on this side. They say we are not through with those birds yet. We know positively that Germans are throwing their reserves against the Americans on the Argonne front, with instructions to hold the "Yanks" at all costs, weakening other fronts to do this. Despite this, we are advancing right along on all fronts. Not long ago, in a certain place, the Germans expected to pull a counter-attack; the Allies were onto his game and sent 350 airplanes to the place and bombed the whole business off the face of the earth. This was done in daylight. You probably read about it, but it is a great sight to see that many planes in one bunch. I know it beat anything we had ever seen here. When our aviators began to promenade up and down the Rhine, knocking down the bridges behind the Kaiser's army, cutting off supplies, look out—there will be something doing, for it is a true saying that an army fights on its stomach.

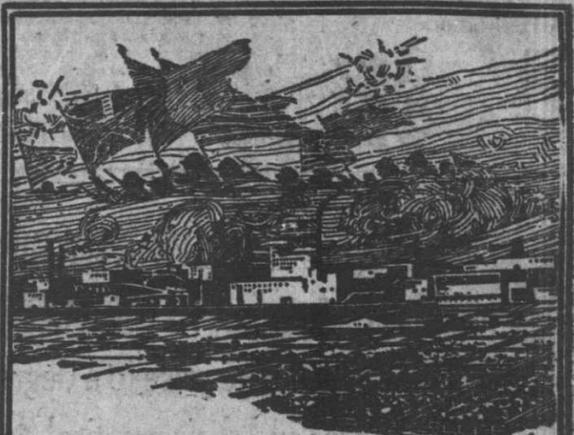

I am anxious to hear the results of the Fourth Liberty Loan. We feel confident that they will go over the top, as usual.

Yes, I had heard about Mrs. Sullivan's death. Was an awful loss to Bogalusa. She was such a grand woman. Her kindness shall never be forgotten by the soldiers from Bogalusa and vicinity.

I wish we could send you a few thousand German prisoners to use in the logging business. We have plenty on hand and increasing the number every day. My understanding is that they expect to keep them on this side, but if I had my way, we would build some roads in American with them like we have in France. The roads here are fine. No matter how much rain, the heavy trucks don't cut them up. Lots of rain and mud in the trenches, the dough boys look like mud turtles.

Hoping that the year 1918 will finish the Hun and that you let me hear from you when convenient, I remain
 Yours very truly,
 J. J. MORRIS.

An International Service Built on Tiny Profits Per Pound

Some industries have been able to get in step with war demands more quickly than others.

In many cases mighty plants have sprung up—but at a prodigious cost.

The packing industry was able to adapt itself to unheard of demands more quickly, perhaps, than any other industry. And this was because the vast equipment of packing plants, refrigerator cars, branch houses, etc., had been gradually developed to its present state of efficiency, so that in the crucial hour it became a mighty international system for war service.

And how had this development taken place?

Not by making vast inroads into the capital wealth of the country, but largely by using, from year to year, a portion of the profits, to provide for expansion.

Swift & Company's profits have always been so tiny, compared with sales, that they have had practically no effect on the price of meat (amounting to only a fraction of a cent per pound).

And yet the owners of the business have been content with reasonable returns on their capital, and have been able, year after year, to put part of the profits back into the business to provide for its expansion.

These fractions of tiny profits have been repaid to the public many fold in the form of better service, and better and cheaper meat, and made it possible for Swift & Company to meet, undaunted, the sudden cry for meat for overseas.

Could any other method of financing a vital industry involve less hardship to the people of the country? Could there be a better instance of true "profit-sharing" than this return in added usefulness and in national preparedness?

Swift & Company, U. S. A.
