A stubborn backache that hangs on, week after week, is cause to suspect kidney trouble, for when the kidneys are inflamed and swollen, bending the back brings a sharp twinge that almost takes the breath away.

It's hard to work and just as hard to rest or sleep.

Doan's Kidney Pills relieve sluggish kidneys—relieve congested, aching kidneys—relieve the back with an amazing collection of backache testimonials.

IN WARFARE OF FACTIONS

Snapshot of Quiet Domestic Scene When Rivals Fought for the Control of Mexico.

There was a dramatic silence. "We need butter for supper," said the wife and mother firmly. "I don't see how we can get along without it. I'll send Johnnie to the grocer's. It's just across the street, you know. He's little and can run fast."

"No," said the husband and father firmly. "I will go."

But the wife flung herself on his breast as he took down his hat. "No, no, John," she cried; "you can't be spared. I will go."

He caught her by the arms. "I can open a tumbler of jelly," said the wife and mother.

"Gimme jelly," cried the child.

So they sat down and ate their buttermilk supper.

And all this happened because they lived in the City of Mexico, and the rival factions were using the streets for gun practice.

LIFE SAVING CREW RESCUES ORPHANS

Captain Carland and Men From Chicago Do Fine Work at Fort Wayne.

LEADER'S STORY IS GRAPHIC

Five Boatloads of Children Taken Safely Across Mile of Rushing Water—Incidents of the Flood at Peru.

Chicago—Half-frozen and without food, fifty-eight children and their attendants were rescued from the Fort Wayne Orphan Asylum by Captain Charles Carland and his crew from the Chicago life-saving station. Captain Carland and six life savers returned to Chicago from Fort Wayne with their surf boat, but immediately departed for Terre Haute to continue their rescue work.

Captain Carland's story was graphic. He told how he and his men arrived at the asylum just after four children had met death when an attempt was made to rescue them. Five trips to the asylum were made by Captain Carland and each time a boatload was taken safely across half a mile of swiftly flowing water. Besides the children four matrons and six men were rescued from the building.

"We arrived at Fort Wayne when the water was highest," said Captain Carland. "No sooner had we arrived when a report reached us that the children were marooned in the Orphan Asylum. One attempt had been made to rescue them which ended disastrously for four of the children and two brave men. The small rowboat in which the would-be rescuers had reached the building overturned after four of the children had been taken from a second-story window. All were drowned.

"Conditions in the asylum were awful when six men and myself finally reached the building. In one small room, huddled together half frozen and hungry, were the little girls and boys with their attendants.

"Many were crying, a few were asleep from exhaustion. One of the women had fainted.

"At first they refused to trust their lives to our boats. They had witnessed the fate of the first boat and were afraid. We finally carried twelve of the little ones out of the second-story window and then our fight back started. It needed the combined strength of every man on the boat to fight the current and prevent the boat from overturning. Then we were hampered by the cries of the children and at times the one matron we took with us would become panic stricken. After getting to shore the children were placed in the care of merchants of the town, and we went back for another load."

"We received a different reception on our second arrival at the asylum. A shout of joy went up when they heard that the first load had been landed safely. A little confusion resulted from the natural anxiety of the tots to get into the boat. No one was hurt, however, and after five trips we succeeded in removing all the children and their attendants to safety.

Children Go Hungry. "The merchants thanked us for what we had done. One of the matrons told us the children had not had a full meal for 48 hours. They had run out of coal and were breaking up the furniture in the place for fire wood. The fire they kindled in the middle of the room, braving the danger of the entire building burning up."

Brings 200 Peru Children. Charles H. Thacher and his wife, who live at 3250 Groveland avenue, arrived here from Peru, Ind., with 200 Peru children, many of them now orphans.

A man in Peru, having a boat, demanded $50 from Thacher to take the two away. There was another woman in the marooned house, and the boatman refused to take her.

"A shot was fired and the man fell out of the boat, dead," said Mr. Thacher. Mr. Thacher escaped with his wife and the other woman in the boat. A second man, Dr. Hupp, offered a boatman $100 to take his wife to a hospital, there being imminent a visit from the stork. The man refused and the doctor knocked him out of the boat with a brick. A Winona college student rowed the doctor's wife to the hospital, where a baby was born, mother and child being saved.

Trio in Stolen Boat Drowned. Three unknown men were drowned at Peru when a leaky boat, which they had stolen, sank. The boat was owned by Oliver Wilson, a farmer who lives near the water line of the interurban tracks. Wilson discovered the theft when the three men were 100 yards from shore. When they had gone a half mile, they appeared in distress. The Wilson family watched the men struggle in the water and disappear. No effort has been made to recover the bodies.

At Logansport heroic work was done by the crew sent from Lake Bluff and by the cadets from Culver Military academy in saving lives. Many pathetic incidents marked the work of rescue.

In all more than 5,000 persons were rescued from marooned homes and taken to safety in rowboats. Many lost everything they possessed. Horses, cattle and other animals were killed by the hundreds.

"Come now, Alice," ordered her mother. "I want you to take a spoonful of this sulphur and molasses."

"Oh, mamma," pleaded Alice, "you aren't consistent—you told me never to do anything that isn't in good taste!"

Really Quite Probable. "I think it is highly probable she would have died sooner or later if she had not died then," observed a doctor at a Hackney (England) inquest.

BOY BRAVES COLD NIGHTS

Sixty Degrees Below. With Wet Feet and No Blanket, He Pulls Through.

Dawson—Old time mushers, hunters and trappers up the Klondike river are taking their hats off to Kid Cox, the tough young bundle of muscle and sinew, who has been taking an outing in that region.

All through the coldest period of the late cold snap, when it was more than 60 degrees below zero, Cox was out at night without even a blanket, a robe, a scrap of canvas or other material for protection or shelter. He did not even wear a parka. The story is brought by S. A. Ringle, who runs Ringle's roadhouse above the north fork of the Klondike.

Leaving Dawson in December Kid Cox mushed up the Klondike river, drawing a Yukon sleigh by hand.

As the kid made his way up the Klondike he expected to find an unoccupied country for trapping, but in each was surprised to find a line of traps out and some one busily covering each locality, so he turned back. When getting toward the upper stations on his sleigh, and took a little pack of food on his back. Arrayed in a black suit, with black fur cap, moccasins and mitts he defied the cold. With only curpants, a little flour, tea and a frying pan he made up his daily fare, melting snow to drink.

Now and then Cox would knock over a rabbit with a little 22 rifle which he carried, and into his hand of flour would go Mr. Bunny, to vary the fare for the wayfarer in the way of a stew.

On getting back to his sleigh Cox dragged it steadily through the deep snow until within four miles of Chisholm's. There he stepped into a little water, and slightly wet his feet. Realizing his great danger should he get badly frozen, and feeling a sharp touch of cold, he dropped the sleigh and hopped to it the four miles to camp. Staying there a day or two, he went back, got the sleigh and mushed again to camp. Finally he got to Ringle's, put in four days resting and then came on another stage, feeling fine and anxious for adventure.

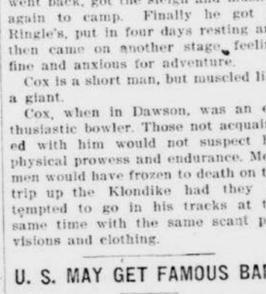

Cox is a short man, but muscled like a giant.

Cox, when in Dawson, was an enthusiastic bowler. Those not acquainted with him would not suspect his physical prowess and endurance. Most men would have died to death on the trip up the Klondike had they attempted to go in his tracks at the same time with the same scant provisions and clothing.

U. S. MAY GET FAMOUS BARN
Most Treasured Building in London Is Offered for Sale and American Offers Big Price for It.

London—It is scarcely conceivable that Maidstone and Kent will allow the Tithe barn, which is one of the most treasured possessions of the county capital, to be pulled down, and it is quite unthinkable that, having been pulled down, its fragments should be exported to America.

The Tithe barn, a long range of buildings in Mill street, belongs to the decorated period, and is probably older than the archbishop's palace, a stately gabled building of perpendicular and Elizabethan date, standing at the north side of All Saints' church. That was begun by Archbishop Courtenay in 1395, and it was completed by his successor, Archbishop Arundel.

The barn is no longer a part of the ecclesiastical buildings and is now for sale. An American has offered 1,600 pounds for it, and proposes to transfer it to the United States, where it would be re-erected.

In the circumstances an appeal for the necessary funds to buy the freehold of this 600-year-old building ought to be responded to at once.

ARCTIC SKEPTICISM.

"Did you see the janitor?"

"Yes, I told him it was as cold in our flat as at the north pole."

"He merely looked supercilious and asked for my proofs."

Queer Ironing. A writer in the Wide World magazine says that the most curious sight he saw at Cairo was men ironing clothes with their feet! The men were employed in the native tailoring establishments.

Except for the long handle, the irons were shaped like the ordinary flat-iron, only larger. A solid block of wood rested on the top of the iron, and on this the men placed one foot, guiding the iron in the desired direction by means of the handle. For the sake of convenience, ironing boards were raised only a few inches from the ground, and, however strange the method may seem to us, the work was done very well and very expeditiously.

The Effect of Coffee on Highly Organized People.

"I have been a coffee user for years, and about two years ago got into a very serious condition of dyspepsia and indigestion. It seemed to me I would fly to pieces. I was so nervous, that at the least noise I was distressed, and many times could not straighten myself up because of the pain."

Tea is just as injurious, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.

"My physician told me I must not eat any heavy or strong food, and ordered a diet, giving me some medicine. I followed directions carefully, but kept on using coffee and did not get any better."

"Last winter my husband, who was away on business, had Postum served to him in the family where he boarded. He liked it so well that when he came home he brought some with him. We began using it and I found it
