

THE UNEMPLOYED.

In commenting upon the advent of the large number of men fleeing from the impoverished west, and coming to that city for the purpose of seeking employment, the Picayune very correctly observes that "there is no crime in being out of employment. It is not in violation of any law to seek for work. Keeping these facts in mind, the police have no right to arrest these people, nor have the authorities any warrant of law to order their arrest so long as they commit no overt act against the public peace or in violation of the rights or property of any other person." This contention, every fair-minded man, we believe, will approve. This protest of the Picayune was made when chief of police Gaster gave it as his determination to arrest and put these people to work on the streets of the city, and it had a most wholesome effect, for the threat fell still-born. The idea of those in authority taking upon themselves, without semblance of law or right, save the autocratic power that their office confers upon them, to persecute these people, for that is what their arrestation and compulsive labor means, is a wrong that should cause a protest. It is a pleasure to note that the city press are a unit in giving emphatic expression to these views.

In the death of Mr. John McCormick, editor of the Lake Commercial, the press of Louisiana loses one of its oldest and most useful members. We knew Mr. McCormick, having worked for him several months. He was kind and generous, and those who worked for or with him, love him, for he was cordial in his relations and honest in his dealings, and never did a wilful wrong in his life. He leaves a widow and ten children to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

Mr. B. F. Sherrouse, representing that well and favorably known household remedy Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic, was in town this week, and gave The Gazette a half column advertisement which appears in this issue. It is well to note the fact that these are all home testimonials, of representative citizens, and should therefore inspire confidence in the merits of the medicine.

Royville Items.

The Lafayette weeklies, due here every Saturday, did not reach our town until Monday. We trust this delay will occur no more, as it is a treat to Royvillians to peruse the contents of the local papers on a dull Sunday evening.

Mr. P. B. Roy has contracted with Mr. Naco LeBlanc, an old sugar planter, to cultivate his whole Vallot plantation. Dr. Scranton has purchased several acres of seed cane at $50 and will plant from twenty to twenty-five acres on his LeBlanc farm near Broussardville. We hope more planters will follow the example set by these gentlemen and give the sugar cane a fair trial, resulting, we are satisfied, financially a success.

Mr. B. P. Landry's friends will be happy to hear that he is now up, and fully recovered from his severe spell of sickness.

The cotton gins are still in full blast, with the crop larger than at first expected. At the end of the ginning season your correspondent will send the exact number of bales ginned by the two or three gins in and around Royville.

Royville society is at present seemingly in a dormant state. Can it be that our beaux and belles are contemplating matrimony, and prefer tetes-a-tetes to soirees and parties. A progressive euche, german, or private dance, would be, we are certain, enjoyed by our young folks. Who will be the first to make an attempt.

Miss Elvia Bourc who has been confined to her bed for the last four months, and was reported better a few days ago is now worse, and is in a critical condition. We hope she will yet recover and enjoy her former good health.

Mr. Calvin Moss has on exhibition at our office a bunch of eleven orange, attached to it. They are the finest and sweetest Louisiana oranges we have seen this fall. They are measured 1 1/2 inches in circumference. How this for Lafayette, is it not?

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pelletier visited friends and relatives in Lafayette Sunday.

Hon. O. Cade, superintendent of the New Orleans Mint, spent Saturday and Sunday with his family at his lovely Bellevue Home.

Mayor Theall was absent this week attending to business.

Mr. Alcatoire, of New Orleans, is the guest for a few days of his friends Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Roy.

An army of rats and mice had taken charge of our sanctum; we begged for a cat, but none were to be had. We then had a standing offer of 50 cents for a good young cat. Next morning we were sent three, and since that day, one or more, made their appearance every morning. How to stop the army of cats is now the question. Any one in need of young maltese cats, would do well by calling at our office.

AN ELEGANT AFFAIR.

The marriage of Miss Rose Bendel and Mr. Sig B. Kahn, of Pattersonville, was an event in Lafayette society that will long be remembered for its brilliancy. Miss Bendel, the lovely bride, has been reared in this town, and possessing in a marked degree all the necessary requisites to endure herself to a host of friends, it followed that a very large number of people assembled to witness the impressive marriage ceremonies.

The wedding hour had been set for five o'clock, last Sunday evening, but long before the appointed hour, the little temple was crowded with friends and well-wishers of the fair bride; that edifice, however, was too small, by far, to contain all, and the front of the synagogue, as well as the banquettes, from block to block, presented a large concourse of people.

At the hour designated, the bridal party arrived and entered in the following order: Mrs. Falk, the mother of the bride, handsomely attired in an elegant black silk dress, with white stripes, en train, accompanied by a brother of the groom;

Next came the bridesmaids, handsomely gowned, who were: Misses Lena Flonsky, in light blue brocade; Rose Reims, in cream crepe de chine and embroidered chiffon; Flora Flonsky, in white silk; Lena Levy, in pink crystal cord; Louise Eystein, pink silk with point lace and flowers; Octavie Lehman, light blue green, elaborately trimmed with satin ribbons of same color, and a bertha of point lace on the corsage; Jennie Norman, cream crepe de chine and satin ribbons; Seraphine Heyman, light lavender silk; Emma Falk and Laura Flonsky, each wore a rose silk, of a soft nature, trimmed with lace;

The little flower girls, who followed, were: Josie Moch, in white satin and embroidered chiffon, carrying a magnificent bouquet of cut flowers; Gussie Flonsky, in green; Bessie Kaufman, lilac satin; Carrie Reims, white silk and crepe; Wilhel Schmalen and Aime Ouallie also were most tastefully and elegantly dressed;

Then came the Maid of Honor, Miss Louise Bendel, a sister of the bride, who wore a most becoming and elegant dress of white imperial silk, en train, trimmed with point lace and hyacinths, and, as a mark of distinction, wore a white veil;

Gracefully leaning on the arm of her step-father, Mr. B. Falk, came the bride, and as she entered, the organ wafted the sweet strains of the wedding march. The bride was attired in a robe of white Duchesse satin, beautiful in its simplicity; the corsage was trimmed with real lace, mugges and orange blossoms, and on the skirt was a cascade of the same ferning an apron drapery, the whole a dream of the dressmaker's art. In her ears were diamond drops, and in her hair shone a resplendent diamond pin, which heightened the effect of the tasty coiffure. The bride appeared, indeed, a vision of beauty.

The groom's best man was Mr. Ike Bendel; the groomsmen were Messrs. Paul, Manuel and Albert Congenheim, Leopold Kling, Sam Bendel, Henry Bendel, Meyer and Lucien Lehman; and the ushers, Messrs. Sam and Ike Levy.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Leucht, of New Orleans, and was most impressive. The interior of the synagogue had been elaborately and tastefully arranged, and the couple made their marriage vows beneath a glittering snow white bell, made of flowers and silver spangles, suspended by four streamers; the maids being grouped around the bride, thus forming a transcendently beautiful scene.

Immediately after the ceremony the party and guests repaired to the Opera House, where the newly married pair received the expressions of good wishes of their friends. At six o'clock the party descended to the lower floor where the dining hall had been located, which had been lavishly decorated with ferns and pot plants, and variegated Japanese lanterns were profusely, and with exquisite taste, strung about, its many lights shedding a lustre of pretty hues over the scene, heightening admirably the effect of the whole. After partaking of a sumptuous banquet, where good cheer and the flow of wit reigned for the entire time, the sweet strains of the Beaux Bridge band summoned the one hundred and sixty-two people from the dining to the reception hall. The votaries of Terpsichore were afforded ample opportunity to pay homage to their Goddess, and right royally did they prove themselves worthy to worship at her shrine. Every one who attended this grand affair, wish the couple, who begin their married life under such favorable auspices, a long life of unalloyed happiness and prosperity to which The Gazette begs to add its own best wishes.

Proceedings of the School Board.

To Planters and Merchants

The Caronero Union Ginnyery, Limited, using the complete Mangle System of Dallas, Texas, as now seen in operation at the Chicago World's Fair, is ready to do all the ginning that may be entrusted to it, at the following rates: 40 cents per 100 pounds, and $1.25 bagging and ties, seed accepted for toll at New Orleans quotations, and the surplus cashed to the owner of cotton. Shipping attended to from ginnyery free of cost, and bills of lading mailed as per instructions. Those wishing to sell on the spot may do so easily, buyers' orders on hand. This ginnyery stood without boast or advertisement for three years, on its merits, but department rumors being circulated on its supposed deficiencies, forces it to have a standing offer of $100, as a wager to any other ginnyery in this parish, on the following general points: 1st. Capacity of bales turned out per day. 2nd. Convenience of unloading, as a 20 year old boy knowing how to drive is all that is necessary, with the gins running. 3rd. Yield of lint to a given number of pounds of seed cotton. 4th. Quality of lint or grade of sample received on any quality of cotton, this invariably being the highest market price. Any communication will be promptly answered by C. C. BROWN, Manager.

COLUMBIA RICE MILL

NEW YORK.
We beg to call attention to the fact that we have commenced milling for the new season. Planters who propose shipping rough rice—to be milled on toll—will do well to write us as to the amount they are likely to ship and the probable date of shipment. This will enable us to place same on our mill roster and by the turn being thus engaged, immediate attention secured as soon as it is rough received.

Holder of old crop will do well to send it right along before the new crop makes it "take a back seat."

Do not mix the old and new together as they will differ and they both suffer.

Care should be taken to pack in good strong bags, also to mark plainly that lots may not get mixed with others coming to us by each incoming steamer.
