Agonizing Headaches

Indigestion—Distress in the Stomach.
Hood's Sarsaparilla Accomplishes Desired Results.

"Dear Sirs: I gladly testify to the efficacy and curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla and cheerfully state that it has done wonders for me. For years I have been a great sufferer from agonizing headaches and Distress in the Stomach after eating and at other times, accompanied by sour stomach. I was very bad with indigestion also. I noticed in different papers much of the cures Hood's Sarsaparilla had wrought and thought I would try it. It has accomplished the desired results. The pain and distress in the stomach and the severe headache spells have been overcome as well as my indigestion. I can now enjoy a meal without any distress and can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best of medicines. ELIZA E. HILLS, Fenner, New York.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, always reliable, and efficient.

From away up in British North America comes the following greeting to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Chief Consulting Physician to the valuable Hotel and Mineral Springs, at Buffalo, N. Y. Mrs. Allen Sharrard, of Hartney, Selkirk Co., Manitoba, whose portrait is her usual, writes as follows: "I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for 'falling of the womb.' I was troubled with bearing down pains and pains in my back whenever I would be on my feet any length of time. I was recommended to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did with happy results. I feel like a new person after taking three bottles of it."

As we have just heard from the frigid North, we now introduce to our readers received from the Sunny South. The following is from Mrs. J. T. Smith, of Oakfuskee, Cleburne Co., Ala. She writes: "I was afflicted and suffered untold pains and misery, such as no pen can describe, for six years. I was confined to bed most of the time. I expected the cold hand of death every day. I was afflicted with leucorrhoea—with excessive flowing—falling of the womb—bearing down sensation—pain in the small of my back—my bowels costive—smarting, itching and burning in the vagina, also palpitation of the heart. When I began taking your medicine I could not sit up, only a few minutes at a time. I was so weak I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription three times per day. I also took your 'Golden Medical Discovery' three times per day and one of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets every night. I have taken seven bottles of the 'Discovery,' seven bottles of the 'Prescription' and five bottles of the 'Pellets' and I feel perfectly well. I am unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, relieving nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency. Even insanity, when dependent upon womb disease, is cured by it."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific and powerful, restorative tonic. It improves the circulation, builds up solid, wholesome flesh, and increasing the strength of the whole system. As a soothing and strengthening nerve tonic, it is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, relieving nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. ### THE WOODS OF VALOIS.

A Royal Game Preserve Where Fragrant Lilies Grow.

Chantilly is the game preserve of a hunter-prince, and everything about it is ordered for the chase. These wide-open grassy glades, studded with birch or oak scrub, are haunted by the deer, and in those thickets of golden broom the heavy does prepare their nurseries.

Great, floundering, russet pheasants come flying by; at every stop a hare or white-tailed rabbit starts up out of the grass. At the further end of the forest there are deep, unsightly thickets of mud and thorn, left darkling amid the trim order of the place, for the wild boar delights in them. As we walk or drive down the neat-slip avenues of the forest the roads appear impassable to the traveler, and we wonder at the contrast between their show of sand and the careful forestry that pares and cuts every wildling branch of the over-arching horn-beam roof. But the roads are laid on purpose every spring they are plowed fresh, lest they lose the lightness beloved of the horseman.

Every May a beautiful fault frustrates this skillful vinery, for thick grass, thick and sweet, the lily of the valley springs in all the brakes and shady places. The scent of the game will not let the across these miles of blossom. The hunters are in despair and the deer, still denuded with the winter's help of the hounds—the deer, who sets his back against the sturdiest oak and butts at the pack with his antlers, who swims the lakes and from his island refuge sells his life as hard as he can—the deer, accustomed to be always vanquished, beholds himself at last befriended by an ally more invincible than water or forest oak, by the sweet, innumerable white lily, innocent as himself, that every Maytime sends the huntsmen home.

The lily that saves the deer is the consolation of poor women. Every morning during the brief season of its blossom they are up before the dawn. Holding their children by the hand, they are off to the innermost dells of its forest, and before par breakfast-time they are back at the railway station, carrying in their baskets and with bunches of lilies, which they sell to the dusty passengers bound by the morning mails for London or for Brussels.—Chicago News.

ARP COMING HOME

He Tells Some Rare Fish Yarns to Keep His Hand In.

Railroads and Whisky Go Together—Blessings Are Not Wholly Unmixed—The Bad Follows Closely the Good.

Eleven men in buckram suits! Does it follow that every man with an oleaginous corporeosity is given to seeing double and trouble like Jack Falstaff? Dr. Hunt-Cooper, of Atlanta, came here the other day with his fisherman, Murphy Candler. They have been fishing all over the State and wound up at Clear Water. They came from St. Petersburg last and the doctor struck about the horrid sawfish that he helped to catch there at the end of the wharf. He got excited with his narrative as he told how, when the monster was hooked, the alarm was given and every man and boy in town ran down to see, and after the fishermen had tangled ropes and log chains all over it took every able-bodied man in town to draw it to shore. "It actually weighed," said Cooper, "over 500 pounds and I saw was the most venomous weapon I ever beheld. It had been broken off a foot or two, but which was left attached to the fish's back. 'Oh, mercy,' said my wife, 'isn't it awful. Girls, you must not go in bathing any more. Every day somebody would tell about these awful creatures—horrid fish and sharks and sting-arees and sawfish. It is a wonder they have not got some of us before now.'"

Dr. Cooper is a first-class gentleman and came from good old Baptist Georgia. His stockings, and is handsome and he knows it, but I noticed that every time he told a big yarn he appealed to Murphy for corroboration. "I caught it so," said Cooper, "I pledge you my word it was the biggest monster I ever laid my eyes on." "Murphy" simply nodded assent as he looked off in his professional way. "Murphy is a Presbyterian and his official position in the Agnes Scott institute is ever before him, but still he would not go back on his friends, especially when so far from home. He affectionately calls the doctor "Hunt," and the doctor calls him "Murphy," and they coincide on everything except that Murphy says the pretty girls along the route, and sometimes they miss a train by it, which is very provoking. And Hunt said that when pretty girls pursue a man it is their wife's bad manners to run away from them.

My wife remarked that night after we retired that she liked them both very much, very much, indeed, and that if every handsome married man when he went far away from home should have to wear a ribbon on his hat with "family name" written on it, as was the case with foolish girls, you know, I didn't answer. But still I didn't altogether discredit the sawfish story. The doctor's appeals in language were only a circumstantial display of fraud, as the lawyers say. Nevertheless I was jealous of St. Petersburg.

I didn't like to have Clear Water outdone in anything—not even in monsters, and so the next day I took particular notice of the doctor as he was fishing in the pass. I diagnosed him. He began to play the saw fish met a hundred-pound sawfish. The first reptile he caught he declared to be a six-pounder and tried to prove it by our honest Swede, Whitmore. "No," said Whitmore, "it was a fish of more as five pounds, but he is a fishy fish." Dr. Cooper quarreled him out of another pond, and so they fussed about every fish until Mr. Whitmore surrendered, and then the doctor caught a monster, the Swede said, "Dot fish way more dan any ten pounds—he is a fifteen-pound fish, certain."

The doctor's turn exactly, and that night he was gushing in his praise of the honest Swede. I heard that he overpaid him for his boat and made him keep it. Our cottage girls were out with them that day and they all had a glorious sport. They caught several hundred pounds of fish. Our youngest caught the largest grouper. It weighed thirty-seven pounds and was three feet long. The doctor and Mr. Candler shared the four largest on an oar and toted them from the dock up to the town and the load made them wriggle and twist their legs like drunken men in the great amusement of the people. They left their lodges on the plank walk and I had to hire a wagon to haul them away. After a glorious fish supper they spent the evening with us reciting the successes of the day, and both declared it was the best day they had had in Florida.

On parting the doctor said in sotto voce, "Now, Major, when you in your letters 'hew' your friends, don't speak of me as I am—nothing extempore, but as I am—down in colors—I have been backing you in all your marvelous yarns about Clear Water and can do so now with more self-respect than heretofore, and if you need a voucher for anything just write it out and sign my name to it. Clear Water harbor is the loveliest village of the plain, and I shall certainly bring my family home next winter. About your croquet business, don't speak of it. It is only one of Murphy's numerous vagaries. He imagines that because he is a Presbyterian and can't tell from grace that he is privileged to tell white lies, and so he is the father of lies of all colors, and Murphy had better be careful."

It was a goodly company that day, and when the doctor and Mr. Candler returned they were all in high spirits. Candler says he wants a bay from here by the idea of September.

Another week will find us journeying homeward, and that will bring another pleasure—a reunion with my dear friends. The poor, rejected and dejected hermit was made to say:

"And what is friendship but a name—A shade that follows wealth or fame—But leaves a wretch to weep."

That is not so. That was the utterance of broken-hearted love. Friendship is a sweet, savory reality, and next to the dearest tie on earth. There are not many who are bound like Damon and Phoebe, and that is from sympathy. It is a pleasure to believe that the friends at home who will lovingly give us welcome, and we know there are many there who will rejoice to see—to look into the eyes and grasp the hand of the one who receive their greetings. Love and friendship are the best treasures of life—better than fame or wealth. There are many friends who are new-found and new-made friends from whom we never willingly, for they have been kind and have done so much to make our prolonged visit pleasant. This is a happy little town.

I was sitting in my daughter's pretty little veranda this evening and counted six squirrels in the trees near by. I saw a pair of quails and two rabbits in the yard, and a great many other things. Fraser lies right opposite, and there was an owl sitting quietly on a limb near his veranda. A tall, venerable crane was standing in the water at the foot of the bluff. This is a story of the day, and ways there," said the colonel, "and when he straightens up full length looks as solemn as a Presbyterian preacher. Now, I have a great respect for the law. Clear Water, for it is against the law. Clear Water is certainly a peaceful little village, for there has not been a fight nor a quarrel since we have been here. Indeed, there are good people here who favor the town charter, because the Mayor and Marshal have nothing to do. But the Tampa railroad is coming very soon, and it will be a great blessing, maybe the Mayor and Marshal will find business. Railroads are great blessings, but every good thing has some bad mixed up with it, and Clear Water will not be an exception.

CHURCH NOTES.

The number of conversions of Mr. Moody's Washington revivals is put at four thousand.

It is estimated that twelve new churches are dedicated on the average every day in the year in this country. At a preliminary meeting held in London it was decided to form a Presbyterian union, similar to the one in New York.

The average wages of a laborer in Madagascar are six cents a day. Nevertheless, the Madagascar Christians contributed last year to the London Missionary Society thirty-one thousand two hundred and forty dollars.

There is a Christian Endeavor society in the New York penitentiary which has been doing a quiet but good work for a year. Its anniversary was recently pleasantly observed. More than six hundred prisoners were present.

HISOR TURNER is still urging the negroes of this country to go to Africa and establish a nation on their ancestral continent. A convention of three thousand colored people was held recently in Birmingham, Ala., favoring the scheme.

IN 1851 India had ninety-one thousand Christian converts. At present there are two hundred and fifty thousand Hindoo Christians and one million adherents to Christian churches. The number of converts last year was twenty-four thousand. In the last ten years there has been a gain of 140 per cent.

"It's so glad I lost my legs!" said the veteran, with a smile. "I never have rheumatism in my wooden ones, and on cold winter nights I haven't anything to stick down under the arctic sheets."—Harper's Bazar.

All in a Tremble! Nervous, elderly ladies use this phrase to describe their tremors, and highly graphic it is. Nerves are the principle of the best tranquilized and strengthened with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The Bitters is a nerve tonic because it is a tonic for the nerves, and tone is what the nerves require if they are weak and shaky. Digestion and assimilation are insured by it, and it remedies constipation, biliousness and malaria.
