Don't forget the races at Opelousas on October 2d.

Ten heaves were slaughtered and re-tailed in our town last Sunday.

Order your oysters, crabs and fish at Villaseca's, delivered at domicile.

Gov. Russell has been re-nominated standard-bearer of the Democracy of Massachusetts.

Call at Dr. Berrier's office for the best tooth brushes and non-septic preparations of tooth powders and mouth washes.

The health of our town continues good, though there is considerable sickness in the country, not of a serious character.

A woman may be a coward looking under the bed, but we'll be "Great Cesar" if we can't propose a leap year waltz without laughing.

What's come without a first-class sewing-machine? The white sewing-machine will give you longer and better service than any made. See advertisement in this issue.

Hope Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1, Attention: A meeting of the above company will be held at Villaseca's on Monday, Oct. 3rd, at 8 o'clock p. m., to transact business of importance.
M. VILASECA, SR., President.

The Democratic party in South Carolina which is under complete control of the Alliance, has warmly endorsed Cleveland and Stevenson. This don't look like the Alliance had gone over to the third party.

Weather continues all that our farmers could desire. Haymaking, cotton picking and rice cutting is the order of the day. The cool weather and cloudless sky favors all kinds of farm work.

The cotton press is looming up. It is destined to make Opelousas an important point in the cotton market. Buyers will be here from the eastern mills and England when the compressing business gets well under way.

There was a young woman and her name was Hannah.
Who put on a great many airs,
She stepped on a peel of banana,
And now she's laid up for repairs.

Robert E. L. Cunningham, the young but able editor of the Rayne Ranger, announces that he will enlarge that paper to eight pages at an early date. Bob is a hustler, and wields the "mighty pen" with a force becoming an older hand.

Opelousas has become a commercial center. The clutter of wagons, carts and vehicles of every description on our streets is a constant sound, raising clouds of dust and making things lively in general. Rice is pouring in notwithstanding the low price, but scarcely a bale of cotton is to be seen.

The How Will You Have 'Em Oyster Saloon and Ladies' Restaurant has re-opened its doors for the 21st year, at the corner of Market and Bellevue streets, opposite the Market house. It will always be supplied with the best the market affords, oysters, fish, crabs, shrimps, vegetables, will be kept throughout the season. Oyster leaves a specialty. Boarding and lodging.
M. VILASECA, Proprietor and Manager.

Members of the State Central Committee from St. Landry parish: In view of the efforts being made by the Estorge committee to continue its existence, your duty is to call the attention of the State committee to this fact, and let that body order an election to settle the differences existing between the dual committees in November next. Let's take "time by the forelock" this time, and not allow our opponents any advantage to result from any on our part in the premises.

We have been asked the question more than once recently "What is the CLARION's politics?" and we must admit we give it up—perhaps the CLARION will solve the problem and define its position for the benefit of those interested.—Opelousas Courier.

With pleasure. Just tell "those interested," if you please, dear Courier, that whatever the CLARION's politics may be, it is not stamped "L. S. L." neither "4-11-4." By no means leave it impressed upon their mind that we belong to the John A. Morris-Lottery-Democracy, because we don't. It's too rich for our blood. We are "tooumble," as Ulrich Heep puts it.
No, No, we don't!

Better quit grumbling at the police jury and give their plan of working the roads a fair trial. We do not think it is the best that could be adopted, but we are sure that the improvements it will bring about will be worth much more than they will cost. Next year a different plan may be tried—a single party supervisor for instance, or the system adopted in Rayides and St. Mary and which appears to answer very well; viz: the working of roads by contract.—St. Landry Democrat.

We fully agree with our neighbor on this point. The police jury had to adopt some plan of action, and that promptly. They had either to pass the ordinance they did and have the roads put in the best possible condition for the large rice crop to be hauled to market or remain quiet and let the farmers do the best they could.

The people should not begrudge the small sum which the members will earn as road superintendents. It will not be much, but they themselves will get, for they had to appoint deputies in order to work as much road as possible in the shortest delay. Their right to appoint deputies makes the tenure of office of such deputies revocable at will, and that was, we think, the most efficient thing to get out of the dilemma.

The result has been very satisfactory so far. But should this system prove too expensive or inefficient, a different one can be tried next year.

MR. SWORDS' PROTEST.

Hon. Marion L. Swords, chairman of the Parish Democratic Executive Committee of this parish, rose upon the report of the committee on credentials seating both St. Landry delegations on a half vote, and presented the following protest in behalf of his delegation:

Mr. Chairman—St. Landry protests against this outrageous rape of the five thousand white citizens who compose the Democracy of this great parish, which rendered such noble assistance to Louisiana in her hour of need when the giant octopus threatened the existence of the State.

Well done!

With St. Landry divided as she was and as she has been at too many conventions of late years, it was not to be expected that our friend Dupre or any other St. Landry man could be nominated. And this condition of things will continue to exist, our great political strength will be frittered away, neutralized and annihilated, until our people learn a little political sense.—St. Landry Democrat.

This is an exceedingly bad grace since the division was kept up by a few sore heads who will not reconcile and harmonize. The vote to accept the basis of an arrangement proposed by the regulars was 6 to 12, chairman Estorge voting with the minority. The basis upon which the regular committee was willing to harmonize was highly acceptable to some of the Estorge following, who said they spoke "advisedly," and to their credit be it said, they voted for its acceptance, but it seems that they simply thought they spoke advisedly; the result was anything but harmonious, and proved that some one had been fooled. For the sake of harmony and because of local pride Mr. Dupre could have secured the vote of St. Landry had his friends cared for him.

Yes, "this condition of things will continue to exist, our great political strength will be frittered away, neutralized and annihilated, until our people learn some little political sense" and refuse to serve the objects and purposes of those who, for selfish and interested motives, will always persist in their efforts to keep the party divided in our parish. This is an absolute truth, and is as plain as the nose on a man's face, yet some smart Aleck think the people can not understand them.

Probably some people here who ignored the existence of the Estorge Committee (even though the highest tribunals of the party—the eight States convention had recognized it) may now realize that it is not only exists but that it is very much alive—and well. It would have been much better had the Estorge Committee accepted the offer of nine delegates to Baton Rouge out of 16, and 15 members on a compromise party committee out of 25. They were allowed to put forward the terms of the harmonizing agreement adopted by the last State convention, a new parish committee will be voted for at the presidential election in November.—St. Landry Democrat.

We do not think our neighbor can be serious about that. It can not be possible that the McEnery-Lottery Democrats who still persist in keeping out of the Democratic party (long after the issues which brought forth the mythical Estorge Executive Committee have been settled) believe that it would have been better for the regular Democratic Executive Committee to accept their proposition for a compromise on September 17th—i. e. 10 to 15 on the parish committee.

We feel sure the Democrat will change its mind after the vote in November next.

The few who still cling to that committee will be so badly snowed under that they will not think of having one member on the executive committee, while the regulars offered them 8.

How different some things may look when viewed from a different standpoint.

Speaking of the nomination of Col. S. M. Robertson by the sixth congressional district convention lately, the St. Landry Democrat says:

"As to the nominees of the convention, we will have our earnest support. We have always recognized his ability, industry and efficiency, and we doubt not that with added experience he will prove even more useful to his constituents in the future than in the past. Of course his nomination is equivalent to his election."

We do not wish to discuss his "ability, industry and efficiency" now. He is the nominee and that is sufficient for us; he will get our sincere and earnest support. The sin committed against the Democracy of St. Landry by the convention that nominated him will get its punishment at the proper time. The outrageous conclusion of that convention to admit the two delegations from St. Landry on a half vote, when the Swords Committee was recognizing a majority of the Democrats of the parish of St. Landry, is one that demands attention, and no doubt will get its deserved rebuke by and by. In the mean time we join in the ranks to battle for Democratic success, and have no doubt of the election resulting in a splendid victory for Col. Sam Robertson and the Democracy party.

Our friends must not be carried away nor misled, by the action of the sixth congressional convention in seating Estorge delegates, into the belief that this settles the question of their continued existence. Quite the contrary. As is elsewhere observed in these columns, this matter is to be settled and determined by the people later on.

We would remark that because of the existence of these dual committees, it was made the duty of either side to call the attention of the member of the State central committee to this fact, when it is his duty under the agreement to direct the election of delegates to Baton Rouge.

There is not even a temporary advantage. They will have to defeat the Swords committee in November next or submit to its existence.

Attention, Rice Buyers!

Mr. E. Daboval, Junior Proprietor and Manager of the Acadia Rice Mill, Rayne, La., visited our town this week to establish an agency for the purpose of supplying our grocers with clean rice, rice bran and rice polish, at wholesale prices. We desire to call the attention of the dealers to the above, as they will save time and money by purchasing here from the agent.

A JAX'S GENEALOGY.

CHATAIGNIER, Sept. 27, 1892.
Editor CLARION.—A man by the name of Agricola has been writing for your paper, and as I wrote under that name some time last year, some people may think that I am he, but if any one will carefully examine his articles they will soon see that he displays too much learning for your poor humble servant; but to put the matter beyond all doubt, I will give my genealogy.

My father's name was Bass, he was a great admirer of General Jackson, and at an early date in his history he named me after the hero of New Orleans.

The boys soon chewed off the cowardly extremity of my name, and called me Jack. Father's friends and neighbors, by a tacit agreement, dropped the initial consonant in his name, and as a consequence my own name was written thus: A. J. Ass, or A. Jack Ass, according to the taste of the writer.

So you see that this does not make Agricola; on the contrary, quite the reverse. My father died about the time I grew up and left me some property together with his name—the property skipped through my fingers so rapidly that one would have thought that it had been grieved; his name, however, being neither valuable nor pawnable, stuck.

One day I dropped in on my old friend Drunken, and I thought I would come the Psalmist on him to soften his heart, for I had no money, so says I: "My heart length after that yellow stuff in your bottle as the hart length after the water brook." He took down a bottle and set a glass, "My friend," says I, "my name is good for it I suppose?" He dropped the bottle, looked at me in a supercilious way for a moment, and then says "Git!"—I got.

I tried several aliases, but they did not seem to fit me at all, until I hit upon the name of Read, since that time, I am happy to say, I have prospered. I can now buy my Lord Byron says "What's in a name?" many other pretty things that I have forgotten. Lord Bacon says "A good name is a letter of recommendation." A Jack says a good name is a letter of credit. To return to the subject, I can say with Sir Isaac Newton; "Agricola! Agricola! thou little knowest the mischief thou hast done." I had made up my mind to explore the public roads at the risk of my life and write them up in such a style as to hand my name down to future generations to the remotest tip-end of time. You can now notify your great grand children not to look for my name by that of Columbus, in the Sunday school books; neither will my statue be exposed to public gaze alongside of the great explorer at that great international exhibition to be held in this country on Oct. 21, 1892 (new style); for in my simplicity I considered that the police jury was composed of the most honest men of the parish, their names having been picked out in each ward and a petition to the governor, signed by a majority of the best citizens thereof in reference to this very quality, seemed to fully justify the governor in appointing them and ought to have gratified the people.

Now here comes Agricola with the constitution in one hand, and Horace, the toughest Latin poet, in the other, and delivers a bitter Philippic against these men, accusing them of having violated the constitution and of accepting office at a salary of $3 a day during active service, and they are to pay their own board when unemployed. Shocking! To say that I was paralyzed would be putting it mildly. On the one hand I knew that Eugene McGece (our member) was the best man in this ward by odds. He was saved the people here many a dollar in compromising civil cases, and he saved the State and parish as much more, in fixing up criminal ones. In fact, he has always tried to "throw oil on the troubled waters." On the other hand Agricola accuses him along with the other members of malfeasance in office, and he proves it by quotations from the constitution. If the police jury act that way what can be expected from the balance of us?

I had determined to do like Diogenes, who lighted a candle and walked about the streets of Athens, poking the light into everybody's face, when asked what he meant, "I am looking for an honest man." says he. Unfortunately for me I would not be able to tell an honest man when I met him, and if Eugene McGece is not honest, it is of no use for me to go any further, so I will cross off the whole genus Homo; or as to handing my name down to posterity, I shall by no means do so, for the police jury might get hold of it, show it to raise money, and when they shall have wrung the last cent out of it, throw it in the gutter.

About three years ago the police jury practically ignored the assessor's assessment of the property of this parish, by largely increasing the same horizontally all along the line, on the plea that the parish was in debt and this was the only practical way out. Without considering whether under the higher assessment the parish is getting out or further in debt, the fact remains that the increased assessment continues in force; and right on top of this, with the special school tax that has been added in Opelousas, here comes Mr. J. H. Humble, out-herding the police jury of three years ago, and wants a special road tax of three mills levied on the property of non-residents and a special tax of fifty cents per wheel levied on all vehicles—have the taxpayers rights that the "people" should respect?

The sturdy champion of Democracy, Grover Cleveland, has submitted his letter of acceptance to the people of the United States. It is an able document, brim full of the issues of the day, and worthy of the careful perusal of every man, woman and child of our great country.

Whenever Grover Cleveland makes a speech or writes a letter there is some point and force in it. In strange contrast are the budding-headed efforts of Ben Harrison.

At the residence of his father, at Chataignier, on Sept. 28, 1892, AVY ARDIN, aged 11 years, eldest son of Alexandre Ardoin.

At the Ware plantation, near Opelousas, on Wednesday, Sept. 28, 1892, ALBERT EMMETT McKINNEY, aged 30 years.

The Two Committees.

St. Martinville Messenger.
Sunday last the Democratic Parish Executive Committee of this parish met in session at Breaux Bridge. The other committee which in the last campaign called itself the McEnery committee also met on the same day.

The president of the Regular Democratic committee and the president of the other committee received a communication from Mr. R. N. Simms, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Third Congressional District, requesting that both committees meet in this town and that the harmonizing committee would come here and adjust the differences. The Democratic committee, after considering the letter of that gentleman, answered him that there were no differences to adjust. If the committee that is called McEnery, had any reasonable right to exist, the Democratic committee as true and faithful Democrats, would have made it a pleasure to make all overtures for harmony, but they could not consistently entertain any proposition coming from any body who, by their own action in the last campaign, recognized the Foster faction as the Democracy of the State and parish, and declared that they submitted to the decision of the people. Then, if these gentlemen recognized, as they did, the Foster Faction as the Democracy and promising to abide by the result, how can they claim existence and be Democrats?

The committee that want recognition was declared dissolved by their own members when they went to Governor Foster and declared that they had abandoned their opposition and would follow the Democratic party—which everybody knows is the Foster Faction—and the people recognize the real Democratic committee, which is the Foster committee.

Both delegations from this parish were seated on a half vote at the sixth congressional convention which nominated Sam Robertson on September 21st.

This leaves the question of the two committees to be settled by the people in November.

There is nothing more to be done other than calling the attention of the State central committee to the existence of these dual committees and have their rights passed upon by the people as is provided by section 4 of the agreement of the two conventions held in Baton Rouge in June last.

This agreement provides that, where dual committees exist and have not been able to harmonize, an election shall be held on the same day that the presidential is held, for the purpose of settling their differences.

Governor Foster has removed Mr. Anale Cormier as police jury of the First Ward of this parish, for cause, which is well known to the readers of the Messenger, and appointed in his place Mr. Arthur Labbe, a prominent and pure Democrat. We say well done Governor in your removal and your appointment. Mr. Cormier could not expect to dictate over the parish, and his deputation is a just reward of his assumed authority. Mr. Labbe will be a faithful servant of the public's interest.—St. Martinville Messenger.

Land in the western portion of the parish is a booming thing. The knowing ones are investing, and building it is said, the building on an early day of a branch road by the Southern Pacific system. Business men of Opelousas, look out! You may suddenly find out that Crowley or Rayne or some other point on that line has captured your western trade.
