MARDI-GRAS.

THE GRANDEST AFFAIR EVER HELD IN OPELOUSAS.

Mardi gras day has passed, but the brilliant celebration witnessed in Opelousas on that day will ever remain green in the memory of the fifteen thousand people who attended.

It was a success from start to finish; a revelation to the throng who came here expecting to see an ordinary "country" Mardi-gras celebration—a merry lot of fellows dressed in yellow and red. It made strangers wonder how it was possible for a town the size of Opelousas to get up such a grand affair.

The day dawned with shimmering sunshine; everything was lovely and propitious; the weather man seemed to have been with the God of Mirth and furnished him with weather for the occasion. The streets, flooded by rains for several weeks, were dry and firm.

The arrival of His Majesty and Court on Monday evening, on the 2:30 o'clock train, was the beginning of the celebration, and a fitting beginning it was. The streets and sidewalks were crowded with people from the depot to the Palace, and all along the route the loyal subjects showed their love for His Majesty. The din made by the whistles and bells and the salutes of the militia drowned the cheers of the crowd.

When the Royal Party reached the Courthouse square the Mayor and other officials awaited it, and Mr. Jno. W. Lewis, in behalf of the town, surrendered the keys of the city to His Majesty. In his usual felicitous style, the Lord High Chamberlain accepted the keys in behalf of His Majesty, and the Party proceeded to the Royal Palace, where it rested for the evening.

The pageant, in all its magnificence, appeared on the Main street of the town at noon, Tuesday, and the cheers and applause that greeted the splendid array made the hearts of those who had been working so hard and faithfully feel that there was reward in the exultation of the human breast.

Slowly, majestically, the procession wended its way, the bright sunshine throwing its rays on the glittering tinsel of the floats and characters, until the route mapped out by the committee was gone over, a route of over two hours. When the royal pageant reached the Palace it was a few minutes past two; but it did seem to those on the floats half that time.

The parade was formed as follows:

- 1—Grand Marshal and aids.
- 2—Robinson's Brass Bands.
- 3—Flag.
- 4—Company B, First Battalion (Opelousas Guard).
- 5—Bœuf Gras. A magnificent steer, furnished by Mr. J. M. Boagni and carried on a trimmed float, with the butcher ready to slaughter the peoned beast. The instrument of execution, an ax, was held aloft by the butcher, as if in the act of descending on the neck of the fatted beef.

6—The King's float, with his Majesty, Palmetto II, on the throne fourteen feet from the ground, and his aids, heralds, magicians. The artistic effects of this float was beautiful, and the King looked every bit of a "sure enough" Monarch.

7—Six mounted scouts, in pretty costumes of gold and silver trimmings.

8—Float 3, "Fairies of the Spring," a beautiful blending of water, green foliage, pretty fairies, etc. This was a beautiful float, and excited the admiration of the vast crowd.

9—New Iberia Guards—a fine body of men, under a good looking, military captain.

10—Float 3, "Combat Between Land and Water Serpents." This float was made up of two ferocious beasts, representing the title subject. They were fiercely realistic. The water spirits, urging them to combat, were beautifully attired, and the scene beggared description.

11—Four mounted scouts.

12—Float 4, "With the Musical Elves," represented sweet music, melody, and harmony. Dancing spirits, and the traditional white goose, with its winged rider, the melodious harp filling the air with its music and causing the torched angels to dance in merry glee, were striking features of this very pretty float.

13—St. Landry Wonder Band.

14—Float 5, "Home of the Wicked Fairies." A fine float, with the arch fairy in the center, two dragon-looking beasts on each side, a large snake coiled on an urn in the rear, darting its tongue angrily at the crowd, and a lot of wicked fairies gesticulating with strange devices of fairyland.

15—Four mounted scouts.

16—Float 6, "Returning From a Frolic on the Moon." This float, in the opinion of many, was the prettiest of the lot. The elements were truly and realistically represented—wind, clouds, rain, and the beautiful, silken subjects, with eagle wand, coming back to terra firma on the backs of butterflies.

17—Crowley Guards, A handsome lot of fellows—"great, big, jolly fellows," as Big Joe's man would say.

18—"The Dwarf." A collection of funny looking little fellows, in the runs of "better days." A very pretty and artistic float.

19—Four mounted scouts.

20—Float 8—"The Castle of the Sleeping Beauty." The beauty was beautiful enough in costume, and her attendants were real manly looking chaps; the float was first class in every respect—but we may venture the assertion that there was very little sleep for the beauty. Electric and telephone wires evidently disturbed her slumbers, as she could not lay quiet in her couch way up yonder six inches above the Bertha telephone wire.

21—Opelousas Pelican Band.

22—Lebleu's Rangers, the crack command from Lake Charles, under the command of the veteran, Joe Lebleu. We pity the enemy that faces these fellows.

THE BALL.

The ball at night was the paragon of perfection. Everything went on so nicely and harmoniously, from the time the beautiful Queen was crowned by the hand some King until the last couple left the hall with the dying notes of "Home Sweet Home" sounding in their ears like the parting farewell of some loved friend, that all voted a hearty thank to the ball committee, Messrs. Lorenzo Mornhinveg, Jonas Roos and Phil Asher. It was one of the grandest affairs ever given in the town.

At nine o'clock the curtain rose, and there a beautiful sight presented itself. The King, in rich royal costume, sat on the throne, with his court forming an outer circle and the maids of honor an inner circle around His Majesty. The court, dressed in dazzling costumes, swayed to and fro as the curtain rose, and until the Queen was escorted to the King and crowned.

As the Queen was crowned and ascended the throne, both the Monarch and his fair Queen simultaneously unmasked. There was no mistake as to who they were—the vast throng at once recognized handsome and popular Frank Charville and the sweet and beautiful Miss Pearl Harmonson, and the approbation of the audience was soon shown by loud and continuous applause.

The Royal Party then marched three times around the rope enclosure in the dance hall, Major J. J. Thompson leading the march, followed by the King and Queen.

The Royal Lancers were then danced, while the King and Queen held their reception on the stage, on the throne. The maids of honor were:

Misses Martha Andrus, Louise Meglinley, Catharine Mudd, Lucille Harmonson, Lucille Anderson, Mattie Loeb, Ethel Dupre and Eva Dossman.

The other ladies called out for the Royal Lancers were:

Misses Sadie Cappel, Ethel Dupre, Areoue Holler, Louise Meglinley, Hilda Mayer, Camille Mornhinveg, Annie McClelland, Edith Pierson, Myrtle Potts, Lillian Stratton, Aline Veazie, Florence Wolf, Martha Andrus, Lucille Anderson, Floy Clements, Maggie Coleman, Stella Estormanson, Ivy Harmonson, Lucille Harmonson, Agathe Lassalle, Mattie Loeb, Catharine Mudd, Louise Randall, Gladys Randall, Olympe Laus, Bonnie Williams, Melames Bon Dejean, Alfred Dupre, Mason McBride, Cliff Allen, Rodney Duson, Albert Dejean, John A. Haas, S. L. Hebrard, Henry Lestraper, Jr., E. L. Loeb, Remi Mornhinveg, T. F. McKinney, A. L. McGinnis, Lionel Mayer.

CARNIVAL NOTES.

Major J. J. Thompson looked right handsome and dashing in his Major's parade uniform. The Major is a right good looking fellow anyway, but in his military rig he is real "killing."

His Majesty, the King's float was slightly damaged by a low Bertha telephone wire near the Convent, but not enough to effect its appearance. His Royal Majesty promptly made short work of the wire. The Bertha wires gave the parade considerable trouble—and we presume that the parade gave the Bertha system considerable trouble, as there were enough wires cut along the route to almost put the system out of business for a day or so. No damage occurred to the other floats.

There was plenty to eat at moderate prices, the restaurants having provided themselves with sufficient foodstuff to supply a half-grown German standing army. The visitors were well pleased with this feature of the day. They did not think that a town the size of Opelousas could arrange things so that fifteen thousand people could be fed.

Of course beds were scarce, but by hard work the visitors were supplied with sleeping places for the night. Many, tho', had not come here to sleep, as they said, and "staid up all night in order to be up early."

Mr. J. O. Chachere was tendered a vote of thanks by the Carnival Committee, for his services rendered in getting horses and mules and men, etc., for the big day. "Uncle Jim" deserved it richly. He was one of the hardest workers of the committee. But all deserve credit—it was a Herculean task, well performed.

The enterprising manager of the Hotel Lacombe easily took the prize for pretty decorations on Mardi-gras day. In fact, he was the first one to decorate the front of the historic old hostelry, and there is no doubt that he "set the pace" that many followed. Mr. Cretin is indeed a worthy successor of the veteran Austin Lacombe and the famous old place still retains the undisputed reputation of being among the best hotels in the State.

There is one thing certain, and that is that the visitors can not complain that they were "gouged" on Mardi-gras day. The prices in all the hotels and restaurants were the same as it were an ordinary day, with the exception of the Lacombe Hotel. From the time this old hotel was established the price has been 75 cents a meal on Mardi-gras day it was reduced to 50 cents. The people of Opelousas don't indulge in the "gouging" business.

Among the carnival visitors in Opelousas were Brothers Will Steidly, editor of the Lake Charles Daily Press, and prominently mentioned for Lieutenant-Governor, and J. G. Kregg, editor of the Lake Charles Daily American. Both went home singing the praises of Old Opelousas and the Carnival.

The weather could not have been better had it been made to order. The weather man was "certainly good to us," and has our profoundest thanks. He showed us the weather was strictly for the occasion, and was not meant as a finale the two months' spell of rain, by opening up business the very next day. Of course we would have liked to have seen the weather continue good, but if that is the best the old man could do, well, let 'er go.

Had it not been for the street fair, the Carnival Committee would have found itself in a pickle—that is, the citizens, or members of the committee, or someone, would have had to go "down their jeans," and pulled out some more coin to defray the expenses. As it is, the street shows will nearly pull the committee out of debt—we mean, pay the expenses of the Carnival.

The floats were now for sale. They will probably be bought by some neighboring town for a St. Joseph parade. For particulars apply to the Carnival Committee.

The militia boys were royally treated by the local soldier boys. They were quartered at the armory, where they slept and ate. Barbecue of veal, ham, salads, bread, coffee, etc., constituted the menu, and all seemed to enjoy the two days' stay in old Opelousas. The town was theirs, and they just took charge of affairs in grand style. They even took charge of the Robinson shows on Wednesday morning, and Aimee, Big Joe, Lunette, etc., were all in turn impersonated by the boys in blue. Hazing was practiced to a limited extent—just to laugh. They all had a grand time.

Strangers commented favorably on the splendid condition of our streets. They would not believe that it had been raining almost continuously since January. The natural drainage of Opelousas is first-class—clay streets are not in accord with our ideas on the subject, however.

The Carnival Committee greatly appreciate the kindness of our country friends, who loan us horses for the occasion, free of cost. Had it not been for them, it is doubtful if the horses could have been secured.

The Opelousas Carnival Association is a permanent organization, and it is an assured fact that every Mardi-gras will be celebrated. The committee has already begun work for next year, and propose to make it grander and more elaborate, and complete.

Company F. and others who attended the Mardi Gras carnival at Opelousas returned Wednesday on the first train. Between eighty and 100 people attended from here.

The carnival was the biggest thing that has happened in Opelousas for years. It is estimated that 15,000 people were on the streets of that city to witness the parade.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

The parade consisted of nine beautiful floats, on which a great deal of time and money had been spent, three companies of infantry and the Lake Charles troop of cavalry of the state militia. There were also a great number of maskers on horseback.

The carnival ball at night was also well attended, the opera house being taxed to its utmost capacity. Invitations were extended to all members of the visiting militia companies, a great many of whom accepted.

After the train carrying the boys home had stopped at the Crowley depot, the Lake Charles cavalry troop, who were on the same train, were drawn up in front of Company F and the usual military courtesies of presenting arms were extended. Then came three rousing cheers for the Crowley Guards from the Lake Charles boys, followed by three equally as vociferous for the Lebleu Rangers, from our boys. This was a satisfactory evidence of the good feeling existing between the two commands and is most praiseworthy.—Crowley News.

Every one is shouting aloud praise for the promoters of the Opelousas Carnival, which was a perfect success. Several thousand visitors were in that little city on the above occasion, and the splendid order which prevailed was a "feather in the cap" of the police force there. The floats were lovely, and attracted much attention, as did the New Iberia, Lake Charles, Crowley and Opelousas Militia and Cavalrymen. The Coronation ceremony at Sandoz Opera House that night was attended by a very select crowd, who enjoyed the beautiful scene presented by the lovely queen Miss Pearl Harmonson, handsome King, Mr. Charville, and their attendants. Opelousas should well be satisfied with the phenomenal success of its first real Carnival. May the Association live long and prosper is the Enterprise heartiest wish.—Washington Enterprise.

Mr. Amore Robin and Miss Beatrice Melancon, both of Port Barre, were married at the Catholic Church, in Opelousas, on Wednesday February 18th, 1903. Father Engberk united the young couple in the holy bonds of matrimony.

Mr. Wallace Dunbar, of Opelousas, and Miss Henrietta Peckham, of Plaisance, were married at the home of the bride's parents, in Plaisance, on Tuesday, February 17th 1903. The happy couple will make Opelousas their future home.

The Lyceum Club announces the fourth of the series of attractions, Mr. A. W. Hawks, who will deliver his beautiful lecture, "Sunshine and Shadow," at the Opera House on next Saturday night, March 7th. Reserved seats 75 cts.; admission 50 cts.; gallery 35 cts.

On Saturday the largest cash deal yet handled in the Jennings oil field was consummated when a Jennings company, of which E. F. Rowson is a director, sold 35,000 barrels of oil for $21,000, cash in advance, the oil to be delivered when convenient. The purchaser's name is not known.

—One riding around town can not but be impressed with the rapid strides Opelousas is making in the way of improvements. Buildings are going up everywhere; costly residences, business palaces and cabins. The old town is moving right along. Let her move.

—The steam laundry is in full blast, and doing splendid work. This institution has long been needed in Opelousas. Heretofore the negro wash-woman had a sort of a trust among themselves, and it was a hard matter to get them to do washing at a reasonable price. And when you were dissatisfied with one, and discharged her, it was next to impossible to get any of them to do the work. It was a union with iron-clad rules and regulations.

The Carnival Association is under obligations to Mr. E. M. Boagni for the kind tender of his large hotel building on the corner of Main and Bellevue streets, for the use of the committee in any manner they chose. The building was not used on account of the inability to secure coats, as it was intended to fix up a temporary lodging house for visitors, not as a speculation, but as an accommodation.

—John Clark, the Bellevue street baker, is out about a hundred dollars as the result of the festivities of the past week. Like others, he and family wanted to see Robinson's street fair Monday night, and when he returned home he found his armor forced open, and the money box divested of its contents. The thief took advantage of the absence of the family to do his work. While there is strong suspicion, there has been no arrest made.

—State Auditor W. S. Frazee spent several days in his old home this week, shaking hands with his host of admiring friends. He was here as a carnival visitor, as well as a social caller. Mr. Frazee's record in one of the most important offices in the State naturally makes us feel a great deal of home pride in him. Heard's record in the Auditor's office made him Governor of the State. Now Mr. Frazee's record fully equals, and in many instances exceeds that of the present chief executive. It is conceded to be unparalleled in the history of the State—and we may remark right here that it is pretty near settled that this bright St. Landrian will get his same office back for another term—and perhaps something better. The State of Louisiana appreciate a good man, especially when that man has to deal with her finances.

So the Gallic doctors disagree, and the nation meanwhile wonders why its population is stationary or diminishing.

The Editor who prepared the following market report had a happy conception of life and a tab on things just as they are; young men undandy; girls lively and in good demand; coffee considerably mixed; fresh fish active and slippery; wheat again better than barley; eggs quiet, but whiskey steadily going down; onions strong and rising; breadstuffs heavy; shoes, those in market sold and steadily going high; hats and caps not so high as last winter, except fool-caps which is stationary; tobacco very slow at downward tendency; money not close enough to get hold of; feathers light but going up; iron firm; butter growing stronger; opium a drug on the market; advice good but not in demand.

An interesting description has been published in a Vienna newspaper of a monastery at Soudal, in the Russian province of Viabimri, which is used as a prison for priests and laymen who are guilty of religious offenses. Prisoners are only sent to Soudal by special decree of the Czar, who, however, accepts the advice of M. Pobiedonozoff, the procurator of the Holy Synod of the Orthodox Greek Church. At present there are about 210 prisoners there, and they include two princes, one count, two barons, one general, four bishops, sixteen common soldiers, fifty-two citizens, 121 priests and one shoemaker. They are treated with severity, and undergo solitary confinement in gloomy cells. Many prisoners become insane after a brief period, while the weaker ones soon die from want of light, air and proper nourishment. The prisoners most recently sentenced is a priest named Cvietkoff, and the offences for he was sent there are typical. Cvietkoff disputed the Holy Synod's right to rule absolutely over the Church as a whole, and advocated the formation of a council of clergy to advise and, to a certain extent, control the Synod. This sufficed to bring about his sentence to life imprisonment at Soudal.
