Tribute of Respect.

The undersigned committee, appointed to draft resolutions upon the death of Charles F. Garland, a member of this paper, beg leave to report as follows:

Charles F. Garland, our friend and brother, is dead. He passed away where manhood's morning barely touched his noon. Who but the fortunate with bright hopes and unaccomplished designs before him, his tired nature gave way to the attacks of the insidious malady, which for months I have been sapping his strength vitally.

He died as he had lived, fearless alike of the past and of the future.

He looked into the open grave before him, without murmur and without reproach.

The last rites of his church were administered to him, and under the soothing influence, he passed from life to death, as gently as the babe who sinks to sleep at his mother's breast.

As a faint tribute to his memory, your comments that this short, but imperfect, mention of his death be spread upon the minutes of this honorable court, together with its response, which for months I have been sapping his strength vitally, and another one handed to the local papers with the request that they publish same.

Respectfully Submitted,
GILBERT L. DUPRE,
E. B. DUBOIS,
KENNETH WALLIOR.

RESPONSE OF THE COURT.

On behalf of the court and its officers, I desire to say that the resolutions forwarded to it by the committee, have our hearty approval.

It is meet and proper on such solemn occasions, to pay tribute to the memory of a departed hero, and it is with sincere pleasure that I bid adieu a thought or two to what has been said so appropriately.

Whatever were his short comings, Charles F. Garland among others had two traits of character, that endeared him to his fellow man.

He was the possessor of loyal friendship and the soul of generosity.

In his friendships, he never faltered, never wavered and never discarded. For them, he would stand, and stand continuously, persistently and under any and all circumstances. He never severed his friendships, seemed to intensify his loyalty. He did not hesitate to let the world know it, and fought for them openly, publicly, bravely and unselfishly. I do not think he ever sought gain in such matters. His whole heart seemed to follow him in whatever he did—he reckoned not of consequences, and he was not in the habit of calculating.

Of him it has often been said, that he would divide his last cent with him who asked, and it was true. He was as unselfish, I do not think he ever sought gain in such matters. His whole heart seemed to follow him in whatever he did—he reckoned not of consequences, and he was not in the habit of calculating.

"It is a familiar saying, 'Let the dead bury their dead,' and it is a happy one, who never forgets the good he has found in friends, who have passed over the river of life into the darkness of the unknown.

We may never again grasp his hand or see his smiling face, but it should be a pleasure to his friends, as it certainly will be to me, to recall his virtues and remember only his virtues.

De mortuis nihil bonum.

Let the resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the court.

E. T. LEWIS,
Judge.

Thirty Years in Washington.

BY MRS. GENERAL JNO. A. LOGAN.

This magnificent illustrated volume is published with the aid and aid of the United States Government, and this fact alone is evidence of its sterling merit and of the greatness that has been bestowed upon it.

The book is a complete panorama of the countless interests of the National Capital as seen by a famous woman, who, as the wife of an influential senator, a society leader, and the close friend of every mistress of the White House from Lincoln to the present time, has been in close touch with the inner life of Washington, and enjoys the rare privilege of studying the mighty activities of the government, such as no other person has ever before been able to command.

Many distinguished men and women have long urged Mrs. Logan to give this volume to the world. She has received letters from the most prominent men, expressing the hope that it would be written.

Its illustrations are a triumph of American art. It is worth the price of the book just to look at these magnificent plates, from photographs taken with government consent and aid exclusively for this volume. They portray wonderfully interesting scenes. The government generously waived all "rules and regulations" in order that this book by the woman of Mrs. Logan's standing and influence should be as perfect and complete as possible. One can linger a long time over these beautiful plates, and though he turns from each with regret, he is pretty sure to find the next one of still more absorbing interest.

We do not know when 740 pages have given us more genuine pleasure. If we speak warmly of the book, it is because it richly deserves it. It is sold only by agents, and all who introduce such a work, ought to be cordially welcomed.

The book is published by the old and well-known firm of A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn., whose imprint is sufficient guarantee of the excellence of this first-class volume.

Miss Susie Thompson, of Opelousas, is local agent for this magnificent work, and when the young lady calls to see you, you will not regret the time spent in carefully looking at the prospectus.

Oncime Manuel.

The Clarion regrets to have to chronicle the death of Mr. Oncime Manuel, which occurred on March 17th. "Oncime" as he was familiarly known throughout the parish, was one of the sturdy, honest, upright Creoles of this country, a safe adviser in his community, and at all times ready to extend a fellowman a helping hand. He was jailer of this parish, during the administration of the late J. S. Fontenot, and during his stay in town, made many friends. He was the father of Police Juror Olive Manuel, of the 6th ward.

To his sorrowing family, The Clarion extends its heartfelt condolences.

—Dr. Chas. F. Boagni has moved to his estate in the Ponchartraine district, and he is now a full fledged citizen of that much abused country, where the people duck hold forth in supreme happiness, and the bass-voiced bull frog singeth ye to sleep. Thrice welcome, Doc.

—Last Saturday was pay day for the public school teachers, and it being the first day that they were able to come to town without the aid of a skiff, for many months, they made it a joyous occasion.

—Rev. John B. Kent will lecture at the Methodist church, tomorrow (Sunday) on Sunday School work.

—The April examination of teachers began yesterday, a day later than announced. The delay was caused by the failure of the officials to receive the examination tickets until late Thursday evening. Only two whites applied for certificates.

Company D. and the 'Dick' Law.

For some time past the local militia boys have been silently protesting against the provisions of the "Dick Military Law," recently enacted by congress, which transfers the control of the state militia from the governor to the president, converting the state guard into a reserve regular army. While the boys were willing to remain loyal to the state, they objected to being subject to be called off and perhaps left to die like rats in some filthy military post. Their loyalty to their state is all that has kept them from openly protesting, until they were certain that the law was an outrageous piece of legislation, an ingenious scheme to destroy state's rights, and make it within the power of the republican administration to perpetuate itself in power forever. Then they drew up a respectful protest, and every officer and member, we believe, signed it.

The document was sent to Major Subbs, from him it got to adjutant general, and then to the governor. It is not natural to expect that every governor in fire South will refuse to turn over the militia to Theodore Roosevelt, lion-tamer and nigger-lover.

Demonstration of What Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Can Do!

"One of our customers, a highly respected citizen of this place, had been for ten years a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea," writes Walden & Martin, druggists, of Enterprise, Ala. "He had used various patent preparations and had been treated by physicians without any permanent benefit. A few months ago he commenced taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and in a short time was entirely cured. Many citizens of Enterprise who know the gentleman will testify to the truthfulness of this statement." For sale at Mason's drug store.

Too Great a Risk.

A reliable remedy for bowel complaints should always be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy never fails and when reduced with water is pleasant to take. For sale at Mason's drug store.
