FRISCO LINES AS A DEVELOPER OF AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES OF ST. LANDRY

The St. Landry Clarion is in receipt of a letter from the Hon. Frank Anderson, Director of Development of the Frisco Lines, wherein he calls our attention that that progressive Company has created a department of development, as they are vitally interested in developing the country and towns along the line of their road, and that they will in every possible way assist in bringing about such a development as will return substantial profits to the farmers, since the farms are the basis of all property.

Our own farmers may not realize the fact that the Parish of St. Landry possesses some of the finest farming possibilities in the entire Attakapas country, and that this country is the finest one hundred square miles of farming country in the world.

Having an equable and salubrious climate, where for three hundred and sixty five days in the year farming operations can be carried on in the open by white farmers.

That all of the staple crops of the temperate and subtropical zone can be cultivated with profit. That Northern farmers who have visited this section are simply amazed at the fact that many farmers make a living by working practically only four months in the year.

So that when the basket drops as was the case when the boll weevil arrived the entire community suffered from the disaster. But it is ill wind that does not blow somebody some good, and our farming element has awakened to the advantages of raising home supplies.

In urging Northern farmers to settle along the lines of the Frisco in this Parish Mr. Anderson naturally would like to be in a position to definitely inform prospective settlers what they may expect. For his guidance therefore we beg to set forth the following facts:

That Good agricultural lands free from overflow can be purchased from 25 to 100 dollars per acre, depending on location and improvements; that these lands will produce profitably cotton, corn, sugar cane, rice, tobacco, hay, one crop of sweet potatoes and two crops of Irish potatoes, citrus fruits and pecans.

Inexhaustible and portable water can be obtained at a depth from 50 to 250 feet. That the worse worn out farm that has been in continuous cultivation for nearly a hundred years can be reclaimed by three successive crops of cow-peas.

That the beef raising and dairy possibilities are far superior to the Western country, on account of the equable climate which enables stock to roam all the year around in the open, and the nutritious native grasses which never fail and can be supplemented by cotton seed meal and cintrifical molasses so much cheaper than elsewhere, being at the base of supplies.

The Health of the community is superior to any other agricultural country in the world of equal fertility. The bonified settler who desires to establish a home here will find an open welcome regardless of his politics or religion, providing he is sound on one question and this is the supremacy of the white race.

Our citizens have no earthly desire that any one shall move in here who is cranky on that subject and who seeks social equality with the dark race. The colored population of this Parish is kindly and fairly industrious, satisfied with the established order of things, and themselves have no patience with a white man who seeks to associate with them in a social sense. There is no section in the United States that affords a better opportunity for industrious farmers who have sufficient means to establish their holdings and any young farmers without a dollar, if sober and energetic, can find innumerable opportunities of working on the share system, where the land owner furnishes the ground, the seed, the agricultural implements and teams for one-half the annual product or one third, where the tenant furnishes the seed, teams and implements.

WHAT ARE WE GOING TO DO WITH OUR DARKIES?

A question which is getting to be a rather serious proposition with the people of this city is the many negroes who are idle and loafing around the streets. Something should be done to either make them go to work or quit "bumming" around our streets and public places.

There is no harm in their being idle but it certainly does not speak very well for a city like Opelousas to have so many of its colored inhabitants holding down street corners or loafing at saloons and pool rooms, as scores of them have been doing for the last year. There was once a law in this city, which would compel the negroes to work and if they did not comply with this law, they were either made to leave the town or go to jail. Of course we do not mean to have them put in jail, but something could be done, at least to make them go to work, and vacate these places, where they are accustomed to spend days after days.

Even around the hotels and the post office the darkies gather to spend hours; a thing which does not appeal to any stranger visiting our city. These "bummers" should be warned of this fact and made to find some work to do, there is plenty of it in and around Opelousas. Many farmers are in need of laborers and surely these could obtain occupation.

GOV. SANDERS SPEECH

Gov. J. Y. Sanders verified the article in last week's Clarion, to the effect that he was still a "live wire" His address to the Police Jury, and the assembled audience, was "J. Y." all through; there was sincerity, emphasis, logic, in his talk, and his method of doing things.

Governor Sanders is constructive, in nature and the "gift the gift give us," or to some of us, of delving into subjects, conditions, and things, has made him constructive in the inborn sense, but a careful student of the scientific phase of the question.

The Clarion believes that the Police Jury of St. Landry, and the People of St. Landry are in favor of good Roads, and talk like that delivered by Sanders Tuesday will add impetus to the onward movement.

THE SWEETNESS OF LIFE.

Babyhood is the bud of life. During that period there is joy, prattle—that bud has not yet opened, and been exposed to the weather of the rose.

The cradle and the mother's arms is his home. There is no blast to injure that bud. But it is growing, developing, on a thorny bush.

Time brings on a change—sometimes this rose maintains the vigor of the bud of infancy. There is hope of a long life, on that bush, filled with thorns.

It awaits the dew of morning, and the kind husbandry of the gardener, to keep it alive. This is HOPE.

This flower, if the dew and the gardener are kind to it, will live in happiness. Its life will mirror attention, and love.

This is the sweetness of life. But if that care, that attention, is lacking IT IS "THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER."

Mr. Eugene H. Reader, of Birmingham, Ala., is once more in Opelousas, attending to business.

Mr. George B. Cooke and wife, after visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Littell, have returned to their home in Beaumont, Tex.

Mr. Milton Killpatrick, of Washington, was in town during the week.

Miss Laura Swazey, of Natchez, Miss., attended the Nolan-Blacksher nuptial.

Miss Lizzie Zylicz, of Franklin was an out of town visitor here this week. Miss G. Williams, of Baton Rouge, is visiting Mrs. Harry Williams. Mr. Hamilton Lasseps, of New Orleans, was here recently. Mrs. Rose Lightly is visiting

"ST. LANDRY IS PROMISING INDEED."

Her Lands Are Fertile, Her People Energetic, and Everything Conducive to Happiness.

Thus spoke Governor Sanders, in a private interview with a Clarion man.

Gov. Sanders' heart has always beat with warmth for St. Landry, and the people of St. Landry, and when he comes here he is at home. "I believe," he said, "that you have a grand country, and afford magnificent opportunities for investment. All Louisiana is grand—grand in beauty, in wealth, in possibility—and it is grand in history, at the hearthstone, in the home—and in the lore of its good niggers."

When Governor Sanders expressed these sentiments in the lobby of the Lacombe Hotel Tuesday noon, it brought back recollections of "Black Mama," and of the faithful old darkies who want to carry "massa's chillun" on their shoulder about the yard, and through the field, and tote him to the meadows just before milking time, to fetch the cows home.

And there looms up the average negro with his "Please gib me a nickle, boss."

There is a chasm between the old nigger and the latter-day nigger buck.

St. Landry, as a whole, has good negroes.

But there are lots of onery ones. And those onery ones are those causing the trouble.

We don't believe in the axiom that "A dead nigger is the only good nigger."

He is a savage. Nature made him so. "The leopard can't change his spots."

THE SANITARY CONDITION IS REPORTED IN SPLENDID SHAPE.

Health Officers Say That People Have Adhered to Regulations. Officers Are Active.

The people of Opelousas have been noted, from afar back, for their lawful conduct—their strict adherence to the law of man and of God.

Dr. Oscar Dowling, President of the State Board of Health, was here two weeks ago, and commended the city authorities, and the people generally, upon the cleanly condition existing.

"And I am not surprised at this statement," said a prominent sanitarian of this city, "because the medical fraternity has been alert in this respect, and every move has been backed by the citizenry of the community."

Does a father, or mother, realize that life is snuffed off to a large extent through insanitation?

The old Norsemen, the most careful people which ever lived as to sanitation, lived to ripe old age.

In order to die, some had to steer a boat midstream, fire it and perish in its flames.

So the observance of sanitary laws of the State by its public bodies, and its people, is an era to be welcomed.

There is no law effective without the support of the people.

Monday evening at about three o'clock several people were shouting and warning men to move out the way as there were two splendid looking and very powerful horses coming down Court Street, at a brake-neck speed, tearing up everything that was in sight. Four men were in the carriage and these displayed a considerable lot of coolness, not flinching one time while the horses were racing into an express wagon, which was standing near the curbing at the Lacombe Hotel, and in one second the crash came, the buggy was torn to pieces, the express wagon overturned and broken in several places, but still the men did not move until the crisis was over with and the horses had been quieted down.

In the space of a few minutes nearly every man in the business section of town was on the scene and discussing the awful probabilities of such an accident. It is beyond the comprehension of all who saw the horses get scared of an automobile in front of Dardoux & Fields grocery establishment, why the inmates of the carriage were not killed or seriously injured. The collision with the wagon caused the frightened horses to slacken and they were soon quelled, and the wreckage taken away. The damage to both vehicles was very slight.

The run away horses belonged to Mr. Ryan Thompson and were driven by a colored boy.

COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT BEING ADVOCATED.

Strong Sentiment in Favor of Plan, Question Will Probably Be Submitted to Voters.

Cities in Louisiana who have tried the Commission form of government are highly elated at the results, and it seems that the policy is destined to be adopted in every city of consequence in the State.

It takes out of the hands of Aldermen to combine "You vote for my measure, and I will vote for yours."

This combination business—this swapping of votes—has been the millstone in the neck of beneficial legislation in the country.

The Commission form of government sets aside a department of work for every official, and that official is unhampered in his work by combination.

It does away with the dictatorship of the Mayor, the politician, or anybody else.

The Commissioner of Streets is boss of the streets. He has to consult nobody.

The Commissioner of Finance is boss of that department.

The Commissioner of Police is boss of that department.

There is no trade or dicker—the people hold the whip-handle.

Nolan-Blacksher

At the Methodist Church Saturday evening, March the first, at 7:30 o'clock, Mr. W. F. Nolan and Miss Erin Blacksher were married before a large concourse of friends.

The holy edifice was decorated in white roses, ferns and pot flowers; hundreds of people were in and outside of the church to witness the ceremonies which made Miss Erin Blacksher, one of St. Landry's own product and a most charming and fascinating young maiden of this city, the wife of Mr. W. F. Nolan, one of Opelousas' newcomers and a very popular man both in business and the social world.

Mr. Nolan and his best man, Mr. Hugh Blacksher, brother to the bride, awaited at the altar the coming of the bride. To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, rendered by Mrs. Albert Dejean, on the piano, Mr. Louis White on the flute and Mr. Chas. Sandoe on the violin, the bridal party entered the portals of the beautiful church, led by one of the bride's maids, Miss Laura Swazey, a stately blonde of Natchez, Miss., with ease and grace. She wore a cerise satin, with an over dress of shadow lace, trimmed in pink moss buds and foliage, carrying a bouquet of pink carnations, tied with white satin ribbon.

Next came Miss Nellie Milburn an attractive brunette, of Gold Dust, La. She wore a Dresden chiffon, embroidered in pink, over a pink messaline. She also carried a bouquet of pink carnations, with a white satin bow.

Then came the maid of honor, Miss Lizzie Blacksher, the charming sister of the pretty bride. She was robed in light blue brocaded satin with an over dress of white chiffon, trimmed in pearls, blue rose buds and foliage. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, tied with a blue satin ribbon.

Last came the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. P. T. Blacksher, a prosperous merchant of this city. She was gowned in a white crepe de Chine, trimmed in pearls and rhinestones, over a white charmeuse satin, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses, asparagus and maiden hair ferns, tied with a white satin ribbon. Over all fell the veil of illusion, fastened to the hair by orange blossoms.

During the ceremony Lange's Flower Song was played. Immediately after the knots were tied, the immediate friends and relatives of the married couple repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where they were tendered a grand reception. The house was exquisitely decorated with pot plants, ferns, and garlands of pink roses festooned the wall.

Mr. and Mrs. Blacksher and son, Mr. Joe Blacksher, welcomed the guests at the hall door. Mrs. Blacksher wore black brocaded silk, with lace over dress, trimmed in jet. Beside these, the bridal party ably assisted in receiving. Mrs. Lorenzo Mornhinveg ushered the guests into the dining room, where the center table was beautifully decorated for the occasion. From the ceiling, attached to lights above, four streamers of pink tulle fell to the four corners of the table. Here Madams Jos. Lawler, T. H. Harris, of Baton Rouge, and O. A. Durio, assisted by the following little girls, dressed in white with pink sashes: Lena Loeb, Myrtle Mornhinveg, Mammie Lawler and Willemel Durio, served cakes and cream.

From the dining room the guests were ushered into the hall where they were served to punch, by Mrs. Remi Mornhinveg. The married couple left for Lafayette, in Mr. William T. Stewart's car accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, where they went to board a Southern Pacific train for New Orleans, from whence they went to Washington for the inauguration, thence New York, Niagara Falls and other Eastern points.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan were recipients of many beautiful and appropriate presents. To them the Clarion wishes a most happy and long lived married life.

A Card of Thanks. We desire to extend our heartfelt gratitude to our friends and neighbors and to the whole community for the kind assistance and the deep sympathy extended to us during the illness and demise of our little son Errol. MR. AND MRS. J. B. A. STAGG.

NO MORE BOLL WEEVILS IN ST. LANDRY

So Thinks A Prominent Member Of The Police Jury They have Migrated to Other Cities

"I am really of the opinion that there will have no visitation of boll-weevil in this section the coming season," said a prominent member of the Police Jury, who is a farmer and cotton planter.

He believes that the pest has migrated, and that this country will come to its own in the cultivation of cotton.

Cotton has been a staple crop in Southwestern Louisiana for time immemorial.

The average farmer can raise more cotton, at better profits, than he can any other crop—because he is used to it, because his father, and his grand-father, taught him to raise cotton.

It is said that improved cultural methods are greatly responsible for this; that early planting has had much to do with the disappearance of the destructive beetle.

It is reported that in the woods, where most of the weevil hibernates during winter, in the barks of trees, few are to be found now.

The farmers are enthusiastically overjoyed over the prospects for a bumper cotton crop this year.

And that means general prosperity. Because the farmers have learned to plant other crops, since the invasion of the weevil, and a good cotton crop, and those things other than cotton that they have learned to plant and cultivate, will make things hum here about and cream. From the dining room the guests were ushered into the hall where they were served to punch, by Mrs. Remi Mornhinveg.

The married couple left for Lafayette, in Mr. William T. Stewart's car accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, where they went to board a Southern Pacific train for New Orleans, from whence they went to Washington for the inauguration, thence New York, Niagara Falls and other Eastern points.
