Southwestern Reflections

(Contributed by Development Bureau)

One of the important events scheduled for Southwest Louisiana within the next five weeks is the great annual convention of members and friends of the Southwest Louisiana Development Bureau.

This meeting will close the first year's work of the Bureau and open the second year of effort. No member of this bureau should permit himself to miss this meeting, and everybody who is interested in the welfare of Southwest Louisiana should make it a point to attend.

The meeting will take place at some central point and at a date due notice will be given through the press of the district.

In addition to the election of officers it is proposed to hold a two day's institution in which distinguished authorities will discuss questions of vital interest to the farmers and business men of the state. Live stock, lespedeza, crimson and red clover, cow peas and forage crops generally, silos and cattle tick, will probably be the lines along which the discussions will be had.

No matter what your occupation or profession may be you can't afford to miss this great rally of Southwest Louisiana men who will assemble to see that Southwest Louisiana shall occupy the high position agriculturally and commercially to which she is entitled.

As soon as date and place have been announced put it down in your note book and make up your mind to be on hand to help make the meeting a notable one.

Don't neglect the matter of selecting your seed corn while it is yet on the stalk. Sometimes a fine ear may be born by a poor stalk, or it may be the only ear which that stalk produced.

Herein lies the value of selecting the ear while in the field. It is better to select one ear from a strong stalk producing three medium-sized ears than to get it from a stalk bearing only one very large ear. Three medium ears per stalk will produce about two and a half times per acre as one big ear per stalk will produce.
