A Delicious, Invigorating and Healthful Drink
"There's a Reason"

A FRIENDLY SMILE.

(Dedicated to Mrs. M. Fields)
 Thou art as sweet healing balm,
 Which doth gently soothe and calm
 Bleeding, hungering, human hearts
 With an infallible art.

Thou art life's sunlight; the way
 Of the toiler, making bright;
 Scattering darkness away
 With thine ever brilliant light.

Thou liftest the load of care
 And thou doth help men to bear.
 Life, when it holds naught but pain,
 And death would appear a gain.

And oft indeed dost thou dry
 The tear from the griever's eye,
 And by soothing sorrow's chain
 Bring back bright joy again.

Unpleasantness melts away
 Before thee, as ice exposed
 To the sun, on summer day
 Will evaporate at once.

Yes, friendly smile, men love thee,
 For thou their life shall e'er be.
 And, dear reader, I beg thee,
 That thou wilt in future try,
 If it in thy power lie

To ne'er let one day go by,
 In which no fellow-exile
 Receives from thee a kind smile.

MEMORIAM.

April 7, 1917, a date I shall never forget for it was on that day that my dear son, Joseph Ledoux, realizing that his country needed him, bid me farewell saying: "I'll be back in a few months. I'm going with the U. S. marines."

Then conquer me must,
 For our cause it is just,
 And this be our motto—
 In God is our trust.

And the star spangled banner
 In triumph shall wave,
 O'er the land of the free,
 And the home of the brave.

It was for almost two years that I waited and prayed for his safe return. My hopes were at their height. He had been severely wounded but was doing nicely; the fight was now won, victory was ours, so it seemed that now my boy was coming home. Finally a telegram came announcing his safe arrival in New York.

Mothers, try to picture my happiness, but it was of such a short duration. A few days later came that terrible message announcing my boy's death. The pain seems almost unbearable; it is indeed heart-breaking, my heart is indeed filled with sorrow. I wanted my boy to come back to me and to think that he came back a corpse is indeed hard for a gray-haired mother to bear.

I know he gave his life for a worthy cause, but still I miss him.
 A requiem mass will be said on May 23 at 9 o'clock and the presence of my friends will be greatly appreciated.

HIS MOTHER.
