"HOBO Cured My Son"

In August, 1918, my son Flower Flowers of Blanchard, La., was sick and when examined by a doctor was pronounced to have an attack of Bright's Disease. This doctor gave him two prescriptions which were filled and faithfully taken. His attacks occurred again and again. About October 1st I purchased, on the advice of one of my friends, a treatment of HOBOKIDNEY and Bladder Remedy, which my son at once began taking. His attacks immediately became less serious, and since Jan. 1st, 1919, he has not had a sick day from this old trouble. I know that HOBOKIDNEY cured my son. This testimony is given absolutely of my own accord.

A referee has lodged a complaint against the football club on whose grounds he was assaulted by several spectators who disagreed with his decisions. Although sympathizing with him we fear his attempt to rob our national game of its most sporting element will not meet with general approval.—Punch, London.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR INAUGURATION

GRAND PARADE TO FEATURE THE EVENT; GOVERNOR AFTER BATTLESHIPS

Baton Rouge, La.,—Details have been completed for the inauguration of Governor-Elect John M. Parker, in Baton Rouge, May 17. The feature of the occasion will be the grand parade which will move at 10:30 o'clock from the boulevard on the arrival in Baton Rouge of the inaugural special which is expected to bring Governor Parker, and his party to Baton Rouge.

Col. A. T. Prescott of the Louisiana State University, has been selected as master of ceremonies. John P. Sullivan of New Orleans, has been named grand marshal, and Harry Fitzpatrick and Hayden Wren, both of New Orleans, as his assistants. Adjutant General Hunter, Major Stewart Harrison, and Lieutenant Slausson, are to be military aids; Captain Smith, commandant at L. S. U., will have charge of the parade.

The three branches of the suffrage forces of the state, Miss Jean Gordon and her faction, Mrs. Wickliff Holmes and her party, and Miss Hubberwald and her party, have been invited to take part in the parade, either separately or as one unit, just as they see fit.

Governor Pleasant has wired the Navy Department asking that the battleships Mississippi and Louisiana be sent here for the occasion and the War Department has been requested to send the band and a detachment from the Seventh Regiment, Louisiana's own to take part in the parade.

Col. T. Sambola Jones as president of the "Overall Club" has been invited to form a section of the parade with his "overall" forces.

Chief Justice Monroe has accepted the invitation to administer the oath of office to Governor Parker. Rev. C. A. Battle, former pastor of the Baton Rouge Methodist Church, will offer the invocation.

The oath of office will be administered immediately after the parade which will place it about noon, and the closing exercises will be the address of Governor Parker.

DRYS LAY SIEGE TO BOTH PARTIES

WETS MEET CHALLENGE AND WILL INVOKE CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES LAW

New York—Both the big political parties will face embarrassment on the liquor question at their national convention. The prohibition organizations of the country, alarmed by the growing "wet" sentiment in the urban states and the signs now apparent to everybody of a coming effort to embody the rigid enforcement of prohibition enactments, are making plans for a determined and united assault upon the Democratic and Republican leaders at San Francisco and Chicago.

Temperance organizations embracing a constituency estimated at 22,000,000 people are now in correspondence about the situation. A committee of six, representing most of the larger organization, will meet in a few days, either in Washington or in New York, to decide upon the course of procedure to be followed. It has already been decided to send strong committees to the national conventions of the major parties.

The plain warning is given by the powerful "dry" leaders of an intention to fight with all available resources "wet" candidates running for office in the approaching elections.

The "wets" are meeting the challenge vigorously, and the statutes covering publicity of campaign expenditures will probably be invoked against temperance organizations which enter politics this year.

Judging by the available evidence their interest in politics will be even greater than it was before constitutional prohibition was written into the law.

The prohibition forces do not anticipate any attack upon the eighteenth amendment, and in this their judgment is undoubtedly sound. They will concentrate all their efforts to prevent a weakening of law enforcement. It is along this line that their fight will be waged.

Virgil G. Hinshaw, chairman of the prohibition national committee, is sending out a questionnaire to members of congress, the intent of which is to place public men on record. He frankly declares it to be the intention of the "drys" to get control of each and every national convention of 1920 adopt straight-out planks pledged to the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the retention of the Volstead law, and to their vigorous support in the campaign.

It is clear that at San Francisco William J. Bryan will have the support of the prohibition organizations, and this fact will materially strengthen his position at the convention.

Questionnaire By Drys

The questionnaire being sent out by Mr. Hinshaw follows:

"First—Do you favor the retention of the Volstead act or some measure equally as effective?"

"Second—Will you work to influence your party to adopt a plank pledged to the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment as interpreted by said act and pledged to the vigorous advocacy of the same upon the stump?"

"Third—Will you not be so generous as to begin correspondence with your influential friends for the purpose of securing their co-operation? The time is short. The conventions are near at hand. Quick action is necessary. Please answer at once."

Those three questions will unquestionably cause a great deal of embarrassment at the capital especially to Democrats. There is a very strong opinion among Democratic leaders that the party can hardly hope to elect a president and a national ticket this year except by taking advantage of the "wet" sentiment in such states as New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Illinois, Ohio, Maryland and Missouri.

The present tendency in the party is toward liberalism in the national platform on the question of personal rights. It is no secret that Mr. Bryan is much more feared with regard to prohibition than with respect to his opposition to the President on the League of Nations.

For various reasons the Republican party is in no position to lean even slightly toward the "wets." The Republican cannot afford to alienate the prohibition states of the Central West. But that there will be some "wet" sentiment at the national convention is certain. At least one reply has already been sent to Mr. Hinshaw in response to his questionnaire.

Representative Fred A. Britton, of Illinois, a Republican, replied to Mr. Hinshaw's letter in language which sizzles like the sunparker sand of the Sahara. He comes from Chicago and his vigorous stand in favor of modification of the "dry" enactments is significant of that rising resentment against prohibition in the industrial centers which was reflected in the significant vote polled by Gov. Edwards in Michigan.

"Answering your three questions in one," said Representative Britton. "I firmly believe that the Volstead prohibition enforcement act is one of the most vicious, obnoxious, undesirable, unpopular laws ever placed on the statute books of any country on the face of the globe and that any national political party platform pledged to the enforcement of this act will go down to defeat just as certain as the night follows the day.

"I predict further that any national platform containing a plank for the amendment of the prohibition enforcement act that will allow beer and light wines to be consumed in the homes of those people who desire it will be assured to success in November by the largest majority ever accorded a political candidate for office.

"The Volstead act was forced upon the American people in violation of the principles of personal liberty when 4,000,000 men were away from home defending the honor of the country and fighting for that freedom which goes with democracy.

"While they fought for freedom their own personal liberty was being destroyed by a highly organized, narrow-minded minority, and for the first time in the history of the prohibition movement they find themselves of the defensive.

"Trickery, whether it be employed in politics or prohibition cannot long prevail."

THEODOSIA BURR

Aaron Burr, whom American history might have written down as one of our greatest men, but who threw that chance away through his insatiable ambition, the climax of which ended in the fatal duel with Alexander Hamilton, had a beautiful, talented devoted daughter, Theodosia, who was always held in high esteem. For some years previous to her falling in love with and marrying a rich Southerner she was the undisputed belle of old New York. Her father's position in public life would have assured her great recognition, but her devotion to him, even after he had become disgraced in the public eye, brought to her favorable comment and admiration for her dignified loyalty.

After Burr had drifted to Europe to escape the scorn which he met with on all sides from his former friends, and his daughter had gone to live at Charleston, S. C., where she was destined to become the first lady of that state, as the wife of the Governor, Joseph Alston so for a time little was heard of her. When her father, after spending a miserable existence abroad, decided to return to this country, Theodosia planned to visit him. Her only son, Aaron Burr Alston, had just died. The blow had almost broken her heart and she was expected to find consolation by this visit to her father.

Theodosia started on the trip North alone on December 31, 1812, with a few servants and a picked crew, in a sailing ship, the Patriot. It was but a short time before the vessel had cleared the Charleston bar and was out of sight. Nothing was ever heard of the boat or its passengers or crew thereafter. Not even a bit of wreckage of the Patriot was ever found to bear evidence of what had happened. Whether a storm sent the craft to the bottom with all on board or whether it was looted or sunk by an enemy, or fell a prey to pirates, who may have killed Theodosia, or sold her as a slave in the Orient, no one was ever able to say.

For a number of years thereafter there was an unconfirmed rumor that Theodosia had been captured by pirates, but, as she was rich and could have paid a heavy ransom for her release, this does not seem likely. If the vessel was wrecked, it seems odd

Stake New Diamond Claims

Johannesburg.—A rush of diamond seekers to stake claims is reported from Beyenspoort, in the Pretoria district where rich deposits are said to have been located. Two thousand men, including lawyers, civil servants, business men, land owners, artisans and clerks, took part and the whole ground was pegged out in a few minutes. Some of the more corpulent employed professional runners to secure the claims previously selected, says a news agency dispatch received here.
