"Gets-It" Wonder Corn Peeler

Just as Good for Calluses. Money Back if it Fails.
Don't be bossed through life by a pesky corn or callus. Don't let a corn tell you when to sit down. Don't wear shoes too large for you because a corn says you must. Get rid of the darned thing.

It's a revelation to corn sufferers, the wonderful way that "Gets-It" banishes corns. Spend two minutes—that's all—to apply 2 or 3 drops to any corn or callus. The pain will stop instantly. In a few seconds the corn dries right up. Soon it has loosened so you can peel it off in one complete piece, roots and all. "Gets-It" is sold by all druggists; money back on request, costs but a trifle. Mfg. by Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

RED CROSS

Where in the past, the month of November brought to us one day joyous significance, it now brings two, Thanksgiving, celebrated by America since first the Pilgrims reaped their harvest, is more than ever worthy of celebration in this, the full-tide of our prosperity. But with Thanksgiving the November of 1919 and the Novembers of all years to come boast an anniversary of equal importance—November Eleventh Armistice Day. Last and greatest milestone of Civilization's march toward the millennium.

How will you observe them—these November anniversaries of such similarity of spirit, the one an occasion for gratitude to God for his blessings the other with that same gratitude mingled with joy for our victory and with tender memory for those who made the victory possible? Will you observe Thanksgiving simply by the consumption of quantities of food, and Armistice Day merely by the explosion of fireworks and oratory?

They call for higher things. There is, for example, a timely thought in the suggestion of the American Red Cross that Americans everywhere keep Armistice Day by striving to carry on the cause of humanity which those boys were bearing forward when they fell in the Argonne and along the Meuse. The Red Cross itself conducts its yearly campaign for members in the period between the two great days. Its ideals are the same ideals that were theirs—to make the world a better place to live in—and its works is the sort that all true Americans should support. Let us support. Let us support it then wholeheartedly and freely, and make our gifts fitting offerings for the great month of Thanksgiving and of Victory.

The Facts of the Telephone Situation in Louisiana

By J. Erre Brown, President,
CUMBERLAND TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH COMPANY
Incorporated

What The Company Asks

The Company asks to earn only such profits as are necessary to protect the rights of the public.

The public needs and demands adequate and efficient service, now and in the future.

To furnish this service, additional facilities, costing many million dollars must be constructed.

This money must be gotten from the investing public.

Investors will not put their money into an established business unless they are sure of a fair and adequate return upon their investment.

They cannot receive a fair and adequate return upon their investment unless the business earns a fair and just profit.

The investor is guided by the profits earned in the past, and the prospects of profits to be earned in the future.

When the Company's profits are such as will enable it to obtain from the investing public the money needed to furnish adequate facilities to supply the demand for service, its earnings will be fair and reasonable.

A fair and reasonable profit is as necessary for the protection of the rights of the public as it is for the protection of the property rights of the Company.

What return is a fair and just profit depends upon general economic conditions.

What was a fair and just profit in 1914 is not a fair and just profit in 1920.

The investor is entitled to, and demands, the same return upon his money invested in the telephone business as he receives on money invested in other businesses.

The profits earned in other businesses determine what profits the telephone business must earn.

The available supply of money for investment is limited. The opportunity and demand for new capital is unprecedented.

The telephone business must compete with all other businesses, public and private, for this money.

The investor will put his money in the enterprise which assures him the best return.

To protect the rights of the public to receive adequate service, the profits of the Telephone Company must be sufficient to attract the investing public.

To do this the Company must earn as much as ten per cent upon its investment.

The Company's investment is all physical property: poles, wires and equipment exclusively used in furnishing telephone service. No franchise, going value or any intangibles are included, nor is there any bonds, stocks or other forms of capitalization involved.

The amount of the Company's investment is what it originally cost to construct its physical property; the "bare bones" of its telephone plant. Practically all of the plant was constructed at low pre-war prices.

Its present value today is much greater than its original cost.

To reproduce the Company's plant at today's prices, after making full allowance for its present condition, would cost 80 per cent more than the investment.

Ten per cent return upon the investment is less than 6 per cent upon the value of the Company's property.

No one questions the right of the Company to earn a fair and reasonable return upon the value of its property.

Measured by the profits earned today in other businesses in Louisiana, the return the Company is asking to earn is a fair and just profit.
