NOVEL TRIMMINGS

Hand-Made Decorations Favored by Paris Dressmakers.

Designers Are in Strong Competition to Produce Most Unusual Ideas in Ornamentation.

Designers appear to be competing with one another in an effort to create unusual trimmings, writes a Paris fashion correspondent.

Renee, who has always excelled in hand-made decorations, is offering many suggestions, particularly in self-materials. She makes considerable use of the tabs of the same material as the garment, usually massing them at the side or front in panel effect.

Another effective method of ornamentation popular with this designer is lenfilike points and narrow strips of silk or cloth pasted together and then massed to form a design.

She gains an unusual effect by making flowers of the material used for the dress and tipping the points of the petals with gold sealing wax. This sort of trimming frequently is used on velvet frocks. Renee also treats tiny ribbon loops and short fringes in this way, using for these a sealing wax slightly darker than the fabric.

Lanvin is lavish with trimmings. She makes unstinting use of applique designs of monkey fur in either black or brown. She is quite as prodigal in her use of trimming on garments of fur as on those of cloth. For instance, a model in Tibet lamb may be trimmed with bands of white rabbit.

An original idea in embroidery done with tiny shells has been launched by this designer. So diminutive are these shells that they present an appearance of pearl embroidery. Lanvin uses this type of trimming on evening gowns and headresses.

Embroideries, particularly those inspired by the Polish Renaissance, are of prime importance in all of the fall collections. They are most effective on plain dresses, the sleeves of which carry the trimming.

Animal Neck Scarfs.

Small animal scarfs are worn tightly around the throat.

SUITS OF TWEED IN FAVOR

Imported Mixture Fabrics Hold Lead Among Materials From Which to Model Sport Outfits.

For autumn sports, suits of tweed, and other imported mixture fabrics are regarded most favorably. The light mist tones, as well as the more obvious high shades, are spoken of well for country wear for this purpose. These suits are made in the conventional semi-fitted, or straight-line jacket of from 32 to 38-inch length, in both belted and unbelted models. The unbelted jacket with two or three buttons, both single and double breasted, is considered a little newer for this season. Some of these have the semi-fitted flare of the riding habit jacket, while others drop straight into a box contour.

The composite mode, consisting of two colors in sometimes two fabrics, makes a strong bid for favor this season, especially by dint of the unshakable vogue of the jumper dress mode. Some of the most charming little sport costumes, developed for golf, hiking or other outdoor wear, are fashioned with a one-piece dress, cut in jumper style of a fabric, generally a mixture, while the jacket is of another material in harmony, of course, with the color scheme of the dress.

There is no hard and fast rule as to the choice of fabric for the dress, for it is perhaps in this kind of style that designers and wearers are able to express a little diversity in the more or less uniform sport costume. Checks, stripes and tweeds are all in line for this usage, fashioned in many instances with pipings, pockets, and

TO BRIGHTEN SUIT OR FROCK

Woolen embroidery on suits and frocks is necessary this year. The model shows little woolen tufts on a smart winter suit of gray velours, colored, cuffed and edged with broad bands of gray squirrel.

SLEEVES IN FANCY SHAPES

Flowing or Bell Arm Covering is Promised a Season of Favor—Fitted Undersleeve is Used.

So much does the sleeve affect the appearance of a dress that a different style of sleeve almost remodels a gown. The sleeves for the autumn and winter season have a growing tendency to fancy shapes and trimmings, though the conservative woman will continue the use of the long close-fitting set-in sleeve. Among other styles the flowing or bell sleeve will have much use. Sometimes a fitted undersleeve in silk, in the style of a deep cuff, is used; and a full muslin sleeve gathered in a cuff-band, such as pictures of former generations show, is suggested for wear under the dress-sleeve. These open or hanging sleeves, when used last winter in fur or cloth coats had frequently the undersleeve of silk or cloth, finished with a fur wrist-band. This gave the necessary warmth.

The flowing sleeve, in dresses, will sometimes be faced with a contrasting color, and in many cases panels and tunics will have facings to match the sleeve facing.

Crepe de chine sleeves in cloth dresses are another novelty promised; and as for armholes they cannot be too large for the styles. Some are oblong and reach to the waistline, while others are broad and square. Vivid contrasts in color between the dress and its sleeves are seen.

Gowns Recently Seen.

Black chiffon and black lace were combined in a smart dinner gown recently seen. This was a panel frock, accordion-plated panels of chiffon being hung over a satin foundation, with shorter panels of the lace over the chiffon. This dress featured the wide sleeves falling away from the arms. They were of chiffon and edged with lace. Another gown of Grecian type seen at dinner was of georgette in a lovely shade of gray, the skirt banded with silver and the girdle of cloth of silver.

Chinese Inspiration.

Egyptian and Chinese motifs in gold thread are embroidered on an afternoon frock of black canton in all-over design. Large, loose mandarin sleeves carry out the Chinese inspiration.

sometimes gumples of the fabric of the coat.

Carrying this pseudo three-piece costume idea into actuality is the sport suit, consisting of a complete dress, with jacket to match. These suits are invariably seen with short box jackets, with single or not more than two fastenings.

MANY ADOPT WRONG STYLES

Milady is Not Inclined to Give Serious Thought to Suitability of Various Modes.

Although this is the day of individuality in dress, many a woman fails to avail herself of its privileges, and regardless of her height, weight or years, fashions her clothes in the latest giddy mode with never a thought as to whether it suits her style or not.

For the stout matron the surplice bodice is always becoming, as it carries out the idea of the V-shaped neck and allows a soft draping girle.

Skirt lengths should never trouble the over-developed woman. An ankle length is as a rule as short as she should wear them even though the knee length is quite the mode.

And most important, she should avoid all fabrics with pronounced stripes or designs and those which are gay in color or having a high luster.

Velveteen for Little Girls' Frocks.

Velveteen in rich dark colors is a favored fabric for children's apparel for the fall and winter season, and some exceptionally charming frocks are being offered for little girls of three to six or seven years.

Treatment of Children's Colds

The fact that the child is taking cold or has developed one is in itself cause for alarm. It is proof that the organs of the human body are not functioning.

First a purgative; castor oil or a laxative advised by the doctor.

Put the child to bed and use Nash's Salve as for croup. Carefully apply wet, hot towels for possibly five minutes to throat and chest to open the pores. Then follow with Nash's Salve thickly. Cover this with warm white flannel and arrange bed clothes in a sort of tunnel around neck to allow vapors to be breathed freely. Don't forget to apply a little of the salve up each nostril.

Morning will find the cold completely broken and the child in usual spirits. Convalescence will follow quickly and naturally.

The same treatment is equally effective for adults.

SCIENCE SAYS SNEEZE NATURE'S DANGER SIGNAL

Strong Constitution Tries to Throw Off the Oncoming Cold.

Heed the Warning, Mother

It is a common thing to hear a man say after a violent sneeze, "I have taken cold."

This is not so. He is taking cold. The sneeze is his system's effort to shake it off and to warn him to use a preventive.

So, mother, when your child sneezes, run and get the bottle of Nash's Croup-Pneumonia Salve. Heed Nature's warning. Apply a little with finger way up in the little nose; have the child close mouth and breathe deeply; repeat at intervals until cold gets discouraged and withdraws its attacks.

Children like the Nash treatment; it is pleasant and does not make them sick. Doctors like it, too, because it does not interfere with their prescriptions. In fact, many physicians and hospitals use the same treatment in cases of pneumonia.

A person of spirit hates to be anybody's idol. It involves too much posing.

GIRLS! GROW THICK LONG, HEAVY HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Buy a 35-cent bottle of "Danderine." One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair, and, in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy and luxuriant.—Advertisement.

Jugglers Amused Monarchs.

In the sixteenth century the king of England had his own private juggler, just as he had his "whipping boy" and his jester. The king's juggler in the time of Henry VIII, which was the first half of the sixteenth century, got six shillings and eightpence a year for his efforts to amuse the king and his court, the same as the king's bearward received. In the reign of James I, half a century after Henry VIII, there was a famous juggler in London who combined tight-rope walking with jugglery. He performed on a rope stretched between the steeple of St. Giles' church and the Cross. Shakespeare's plays contain several references to jugglery, which show that he was familiar with the tricks of the performers.

Parsee Race Dying Out.

A beggar among the Parsees is unknown in India, and would be a scandal to the sect. The sagacity, activity and commercial enterprise of the Parsees are proverbial in the East, and their credit as merchants is almost unlimited. Because of intermarriage the race has dwindled down to 75,000, and for some time there has been a serious difference among the Parsees on the question of proselytism. A Parsee married a French woman, who took the necessary steps to adopt the religion of her husband. But it was decreed by the high court of India that, though the creed of Zoroaster theoretically admitted proselytism, their admission was not consistent with the practice of the Parsees in India.

Sea Otter Always Eagerly Sought

The sea otter's story is dark with strife, tragedy and adventure. Fiercely hunted prizes, they are gone today from the shores of California, and the whole northwestern ocean seems to hold no more than could be counted on one's fingers. As the quest of the clove spurred the merchant adventurers of Venice and of London to the conquest of the East, so it was the pursuit of the sea otter rather than a longing to correct the world's geographies that led old Vitus Bering into the North, out upon the sea which bears his name, and at last to a lonely death on a desert island. The creature had the unhappy faculty of kindling avarice. All who heard mariners' tales of sea otter hunting longed to go and seek themselves the riches which even a single skin would bring.

Work of an Earthquake.

An earthquake that shook India not so long ago was remarkable for the curiously distorting effects it produced upon standing objects. Similar effects have been noticed from other earthquakes, but seldom to so striking an extent. In an official report in the matter it is described how this earthquake twisted a lofty monument at Chatak. The monument was an obelisk of brick, coated with plaster, more than sixty feet tall and twelve feet square at the base. About sixty feet of the top were broken off and thrown to the south, and nine feet more were thrown to the east. Then a piece 20 feet in height was separated, 23 feet above the ground, and twisted in a direction opposite to the motion of the hands of a watch, but without falling.

The Care of Jewels.

It is stated by good authority that the safest way to carry jewels is in a belt, made for the purpose, around the waist. This is not exposed and is secure, if reasonable care is taken in adjusting it, and it is not uncomfortable. The worst possible way is to put them in a jewel case. The business of duplicating strings of pearls is at present a profitable industry in the Riviera towns. The imitations are worn and the genuine are kept in the safe.

Not Guilty.

A Chicago professor is authority for the statement that 90 per cent of the women in the United States are home-ly. Well, what about it? We defy any person to find one woman in this country who does not secretly believe that she belongs to the ten per cent.
