

THE MILLS

"The mills of the gods grind slowly"
(We heard it long ago)
They grind and grind from age to age
They grind out joy and woe;

The clouds still sail across the sky
The waters ebb and flow;
The roses bloom, the roses fade
'Twas ever, ever so.

The dimpled babe smiles to the light
Its cheeks with life aglow.
Anon the sweet smiles fade away
And to the shadows go.

The maiden blushes as she feels
The dart from Cupid's bow.
The white haired matron totters past
With nervous step and slow.

And round, and round, and round, and round,
With murmur soft and low
The mills of the gods still grind and grind,
But why, we do not know.

—C. S. G., July 31, 1916.

Mrs. J. R. Fleuret of New Orleans arrived this afternoon, to spend awhile with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCellan.

Mr. V. J. Kerzweg of Plaquemine, La., manager of the Iberia Wholesale Grocery Co., spent a few days of the past week with his brother Paul Kerzweg, manager of the St. Mary Wholesale Grocery Co., here.

EXPRESS WAGON DRIVER JOINS MARINE
Chicago, Aug. 21. When Frank Sheehan, an express wagon driver delivered a package at the United States Marine Corps recruiting station on South State Street today, he became a packer for the express comernment. The helper drove the pany and a Marine for his go-wagon back to the barn.

The package delivered contained some new literature for the Marine Corps, and pictured the dashing sea soldiers bounding on the deeps, from the Spanish Main to the West Indies, with the added attraction of serving on land, at home and abroad. There was good pay in the argument, as well as free board, lod-in, clothing, medical attendance, etc., and while the sergeant signed the receipt, Frank Sheehan looked and was lost, or found, just as you like, in keeping with individual views on preparedness.
