CENTERVILLE ITEMS

After much persuasion, Miss Mammie Young decided to go to Franklin to see the pictures. At Justice Plantation the car, accidentally on purpose, broke down and they had to return. In the meanwhile a large number of friends gathered at Miss Young's home and gave her the best birthday surprise she ever had. Every one enjoyed the party and are hoping Miss Young will have another trip to Franklin to see the pictures when she is not wanted so badly at her home.

A party of girls spent the afternoon in Morgan City Tuesday and had a delightful time. They left Centerville immediately after school and came back on No. 1. The party consisted of Misses Hazel Smyly, Josie Milburn, Lucy Wilson, Helen Kloss, Augustine Dugas, Mabel Champagne and Maggie Wooster.

The members of the Farmers' Educational Club and the Womans Club are busy preparing for a community fair, to be held on the 28th and 29th of this month. We wish to have as many Morgan City people attend as possible.

CRUDE OIL FREAKS

Santo Domingo, Sept 21.—Crude oil which had been thrown overboard by Uncle Sam's warships to quell the raging waters which destroyed the U. S. S. Memphis during the recent storm stuck to the wings of sea gulls and other water fowls taking refuge in the bays along the coast and rendered them helpless and unable to fly.

Members of the United States Marine Corps, on expeditionary duty at this place captured hundreds of the birds with their naked hands.

The oil-begrimed fowl wandered up and down the beach crying pitifully while the marines stood guard to see that boys did not bother them.

Six Mills Using Electricity Today for One so Equipped in the Past.

The old time grist mill with its moss-grown wheel and millrace, like the mule drawn canal boat, is destined to be succeeded within a few years by new creations efficiently operated by electric power. Research specialists of the General Electric Company after a thorough canvass of the milling industry, have authentic evidence showing the steady gains made by electricity in the field of milling operations at one time occupied exclusively by steam, water and gas power.

Six hundred and two milling firms are now using electricity in preference to steam, gas or even water power. Ten years ago the best lists obtainable placed the number of flour mills using electricity at less than one hundred. This means for every mill operated by electricity in 1906, at least six are equipped for using electricity today.

A tabulation of millers buying electricity and those generating it themselves, clearly indicates that whenever possible private plants are shut down and the necessary power bought at a reasonable price from a central station. Of the 602 millers using electricity to grind or elevate grain and feed, 350 have adopted the bought power system while 252 still generate their own power.

THE "DESERTER" AT THE EVANGELINE TONIGHT

Charles Ray, who starred in "The Deserter," is one of the new-comers to the Triangle galaxy. He was born in Jacksonville, Ill. When he was ready to attend school, his parents moved to Springfield where he went through grammar classes. Then for three years he lived on the desert of Arizona, at the end of which time he went to Los Angeles and attended high school. Success in several amateur dramatic productions crystallized his ambition to become an actor, so, after taking a business course to please his father, he allied himself with several successive musical and dramatic companies on tour. He then presented himself to Thos. H. Ince, and was immediately accepted. His advancement was so rapid that he gave up all idea of ever returning to the speaking stage. He won screen fame first in "The Coward" with Frank Keenan, for the Triangle programme.

Lieutenant Jack Parker, a young officer in the American army post loves Barbara Taylor, the Colonel's daughter, but she is betrothed to Captain Turner. When she refuses to dance with him he takes it as a sign that his chances are gone forever, so he seeks solace in an evil resort where he gets in a row and shoots a gambler and strikes Captain Turner, who is sent to arrest him. Facing a court martial whose verdict is certain to be the death penalty, he bribes Joe White-Horse, a half-breed, to help him escape in civilian clothes. Men with a wagon train rescue him from death in a desert. Mary, an orphan girl in the party falls in love with him. Indians attack the train. Parker, in Indian guise, breaks thru the line and rides for help to the fort, knowing that then he will have to face the court-martial. The soldiers rescue the train. In the meantime the wounded Parker has been placed in the hospital where Barbara and Mary watch over him, and a smashing finish is put to a thrilling story.

THERE'S one thing about clothes that young men ought to be particular about—

STYLE

Not the freakish, faddish ideas you see in some clothes; that isn't style. There's something quite different from that in real style. A stylishly dressed man is one whose clothes fit, and who has an "air" of being well dressed. The "lines" of the garments are right. That's the thing so many young fellows just miss; it's the fault of "cheap" clothes generally.

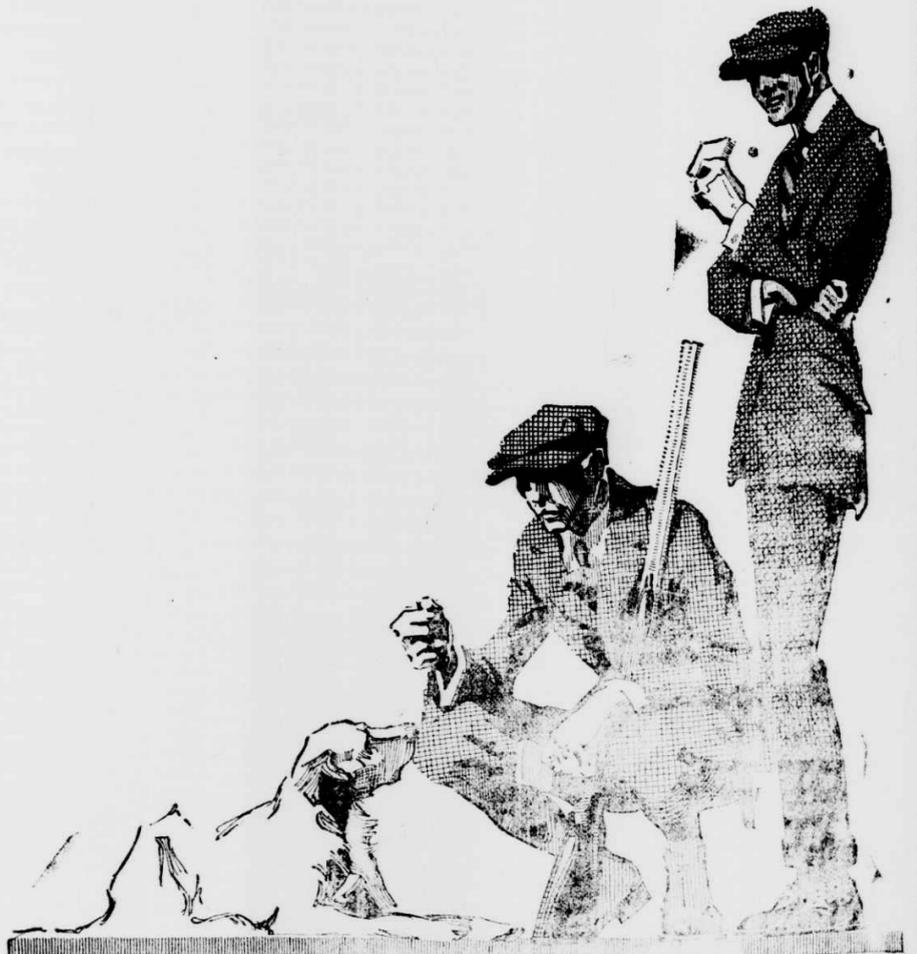

Hart Schaffner & Marx

are style designed: every detail of a coat is carefully planned to give to the wearer the right air; the proper effect.

It's a valuable asset to any young man; it counts for a good deal more in his business success than most young men realize. And the only way to get it is to go where it is, and get clothes that have it.
