WHY IT IS GOOD FOR

BABY TO CRY

It is good for a baby to cry and cry violently, sometimes going into spasms and turning "black in the face," although this condition frightens the inexperienced mother. The New York Medicin Journal quotes with approval, recent articles on this subject from such authorities as "Pediatrics" and the "Hospital." The latter explains the benefit of crying as follows:

"In children a great change takes place curing crying in the manner in which the respiration is carried on. Respirations are prolonged at times for as much as half a minute, and are interrupted by short respirations. During respirations the glottis is contracted so that intrapulmonary pressure rises considerably, and there can be little doubt that it is the equal distribution of the increased pressure throughout the whole of the chest leading to dilation of portions of the lung that have become more or less collapsed, that is the explanation of the great benefit which often results from crying, in all cases of infantile bronchitis and of the large discharge of bronchial mucus which often follows.

"Children may become very blue during the paroxysm, but the deep respirations, which succeed quickly restore the circulation to a better condition than before in consequence of the larger lung space available.

This does not mean, of course, that whenever a baby cries it is to be left to weep, for crying is the only way of expressing pain, and it may be that a pin is sticking into it, or it has an earache or a pain in its tummy. But it means that when there is no such extraneous reason for its paroxysms its weeping need not make mother anxious.

State Board of Affairs Will Push Amendment

That the proponents of the amendment creating the State Board of Affairs will make a vigorous effort to demonstrate the absolute necessity for a measure of this kind, is taken for granted since some signs of opposition have appeared. There seems to be a complete misunderstanding of the purpose of the amendment, according to those who believe in it, and who asserts, without reservation, that the financial salvation of the state is dependent upon the successful outcome of the proposition. They make the statement that the State of Louisiana must increase its revenues or public necessities will be cut off and a chaotic condition precipitated which would impair the credit of the state for years to come. It is pointed out that the big roads bond issues in various wards and parishes, would give the state a wide birth just at the time when the good road sentiment is in a raising wave of popularity, forecasting definite prosperity for the country parishes.

Whatever changes made in assessments under the amendment, will be made gradually they assert. The Board would have to feel its way and particularly avoid drastic action. Their aim is to equalize as nearly as possible so that the necessary burden of taxation will be equally and evenly distributed.

New Orleans—Houston Highway Latest Boost to Good Roads

Traveling over the old Spanish Trail from Houston to New Orleans, a distance of 432 miles, eleven automobiles filled with good road enthusiasts met in New Orleans and organized the New Orleans—Houston Highway Association, thus adding another link which will connect Louisiana with the rest of the United States and giving an additional impetus to the good roads movement in this state which is expected to crystallize at the next session of the legislature in the passage of the Twenty Million Dollar Good Roads bill which Representative P. W. Alexander of Rapides fought for at the last session. Mr. Alexander is now motoring to the east and upon his return expects to inaugurate and active campaign for the movement. He advises that he has received promises of strong support from all sections of the state and has no doubt about the outcome before the legislature in 1918.
