MUCH ENCOURAGEMENT FOR OUR CANDIDATE.

It is with a source of pride and much satisfaction that we note the ever increasing encouragement and support which our candidate for District Attorney, is receiving in every part of the district. Of course we will be excused for believing that his support and this encouragement are deserved; and that our candidate, because of his peculiar fitness for the office to which he aspires, his training, his experience, fully warrants his many supporters in the stand which they are taking in his behalf.

We need good officers, fitted by ability and experience for the jobs which they hold, and too, with the moral courage to stand, at all hazards, for the principles which they believe to be right and just. We believe that our candidate for District Attorney has the ability, we believe he, by an extensive practice of criminal law, has the experience, and we further believe he has the character and moral courage to do what he believes to be his duty; therefore we commend him to the voters of the district and ask at their hands a careful consideration, which we are sure they will give.

ATMOSPHERE OF THE HOME

One Place Where the Best and Sweetest Side of Character Should Be Shown.

Family life should be one of the utmost deference and respect. It is a peculiar phase of human nature that we are oftener more considerate of strangers than we are of those who in the very nature of things are nearest and dearest to us.

Why should we fret and find fault until we make home life intolerable?
Why should we carry a grudge into our homes every time we leave "business?" Why should we demand services of those in the home circle which we only request in the most respectful manner from those outside of it?

Why should a man say to his wife, "May, I want my slippers.
Bring them to me," and use a tone of command when he knows he wouldn't address the veriest lackey in a similar manner? Why should May use an irritating, commanding tone toward John when she wants any little service done and why do both order the children around as if they were a lot of unfeeling, unthinking little minions who knew no better than to accept the treatment without protest?

Of all places on earth the home is the place where the best and sweetest side of character should be shown. It is there that the softest tones and kindest actions should prevail. It is there that unfeeling and uniform courtesy should be the rule and where every member should use his or her utmost effort to keep the family life untainted by the irritating experiences of the life outside of it.

HOME A DANGEROUS PLACE.

A man who, despite the fact that he has several grandchildren, is still fond of his club and the pleasures which lie beyond the domestic circle, said in defense of his weakness that he went out to prolong his life "and to avoid dangers." "According to a table recently published by an accident insurance company," he said,
"more than one-quarter of the accidents 'happen at home,'" and in proof of the statement he showed this statistical record of accidents:
At home, 25.9 per cent.; pedestrians, 18.3; motor cars, 11.1; recreation, 11; horses and vehicles, 9.9; on street cars, 7.3; railway trains, 4.3; bicycles, 1.3; steamship travel, 1; miscellaneous, 10.2.

WHAT SHE DID WITH IT.

"After she broke off her engagement with him did she return the ring?"

"No, she just transferred it to her right hand."
