

What a Boy With 'No Chance' Can Do.

We have just been reading in a Northwestern farm paper about a boy—a young man now—called David. David has recently taken charge of one of the largest dairy farms in the United States at a salary "the equivalent of $4,000 a year when judged by city standards." It isn't this salary that makes his case remarkable, but the way he worked up to it.

David's family was poor. As a boy he herded cows for a neighbor in the summer and went to school in the winter. At sixteen he took a notion to go to a business college and asked an older brother who had a college education and what David thought a good job to help him. But the brother also had some of his college debts to pay off, and he advised David to take the little money he had and study agriculture at the University of Wisconsin. David did so, and by the end of his first term of fourteen weeks was so much in love with his work and had shown such aptitude that ex-Governor Hoard who visited the college, hired him for the summer for a barn boy. Remember that this boy was at this time working in the dairy barn to pay his way thru college and that the job offered him was by no means a big one. He took it, however, and made good, steadily working his way from one position to another and studying the work he was doing all the time. It was hard work, of course, and may at times have seemed slow; but the "hardness" of work consists mostly in one's attitude towards it and this young man's progress to important positions and good pay was really rapid.

There is nothing especially remarkable about this story. David was, according to Governor Hoard, "a born caretaker and dairy farmer" and was evidently much in love with his work, but to quote Mr. Hoard again he was "a plain, practical, truthful farm boy. All he did to win this distinction was the exercise of those simple, old-fashioned qualities, which to many young men cast aside—honesty, faithfulness, and a vigilant care over the animals entrusted to him."

This took place in the Northwest, but it might just as well have taken place in the South. David's story of success might be duplicated by many a Southern boy who feels that he is handicapped because he has not the money to pay for a college course. The demand for men who really know agriculture, for capable dairymen, stockmen, horticulturists, farm managers in the South is steadily increasing, and—better by far than any chance of employment by others—the opportunities for young men who have this training to begin in a small way and grow up into successful farmers are almost unlimited. And any boy who has energy, persistence and a real love of farm work can realize these opportunities. The agricultural colleges of the south give even the poor boy a chance to get the fundamentals of agricultural education, and after he has started, any ambitious boy can keep on adding to his store of knowledge and to his ability to do good work. If only one of the four-week courses can be taken the first year, this will almost certainly give any boy who is a good student a chance to earn sufficient money before the next course begins to take it. Every farmer there should be hundreds of our farm boys—and of grown-up farmers as well—taking these short courses in every Southern State and as many as are taking the one-year and two-year and four-year courses. The boys need the training the South needs the men. It is not time for us to begin to realize the opportunities they have!—The Progressive Farmer.

Escape Insane Leper in Terror

Lafayette, La. Nov. 8.—The local authorities are somewhat in a dilemma over the conditions confronting them in the case of an insane leper named Hebert, who has just escaped from the Leper's home and returned to his native place, in the Fourth Ward, near Youngsville. Before the authorities were aware, Hebert was in the community, wandering about and terrorizing people on the public highway.

Sheriff Lacoste to-day arranged with the police juror of that ward to have guards placed about the poor man to prevent him from harming himself or others, but what ultimate disposition of the case can be made he is at a loss to conceive, as the authorities at the Leper's Home will refuse the unfortunate admission on account of his insanity, and the insane asylum will not receive him, as the man is leprosy.

Hebert was sent to the home some fifteen years ago, but escaped, and for some time was at large. He was eventually returned to the leper colony, and just a day or so ago escaped. He is said to be in an advanced stage of the disease, and his condition is most pitiable.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Raised Me From the Grave"—Mrs. Taylor

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Blum, Texas, said in expressing her opinion of this remedy.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine raised me from the grave and I have such confidence in it. I can never say enough for your grand medicine. If anyone had offered me $1000 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"

MRS. THOMAS TAYLOR, Blum, Tex.

Nervous exhaustion is a common occurrence of modern life. The wear and tear on the nervous system is greater now than at any time since the world began. For sleeplessness, poor appetite and that "run down" feeling, nothing is so good as

Bad Spells

"I suffered, during girlhood, from womanly weakness," writes Mrs. Mollie Navy, of Walnut, N. C. "At last, I was almost bed-ridden, and had to give up. We had three doctors. All the time, I was getting worse. I had bad spells, that lasted from 7 to 28 days. In one week, after I gave Cardui a trial, I could eat, sleep, and joke, as well as anybody. In 8 weeks, I was well. I had been an invalid for 5 weary years! Cardui relieved me, when everything else failed."
