The pretty McClung residence on Reagan street never looked more attractive than it did on Tuesday afternoon of last week when its gracious chatelaine entertained The Round Table.

Roses were used in profusion in parlor, library and dining room their artistic arrangement calling forth many admiring comments.

Mrs. Eloise DeBlieux won the pretty first prize, Mrs. Cockerham the guest's, Mrs. Alice DeBlieux the second and Mrs. Lestan DeBlieux the booby.

In compliment to Mrs. Jones of Tenn., who is visiting her sister Mrs. Winstead, when Mrs. Chaffe entertained the Embroidery Club on Wednesday afternoon, she invited a few guests in addition to the members to meet this charming visitor.

Beautiful foreign roses adorned the reception hall and parlor while gorgeous poppies nodded their welcome at the entrance of the pretty home, after spending about an hour busily sewing, work was put aside, and then a novel game was played that needed an accurate eye, steady nerve and strong force to manipulate the gay satin bags, and bouncing balls, so that they would go through the right holes in the wall.

Mrs. Winstead scored highest and was awarded the first prize, Mrs. Scarborough winning the second, while the honoree was presented with a pretty souvenir of the occasion. A delicious hot luncheon was served and thoroughly enjoyed by the guests who besides club members included Mmes. Jones, Scarborough, Carver, McClung, C. L. Breazeale and Miss Dreyfus.

The following account that appeared in the Journal, of a party given by Miss Edwina Suddath, who is teaching in Shreveport, at the home of Mrs. J. C. Trichel will be read with interest by their Natchitoches friends.

Lovely April roses filled vases and bowls and baskets in the reception rooms. Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald made top score and received a beautiful handpainted china candlestick. Miss Bessie Gilmer was fortunate in the consolation cut and the favor was a set of dainty tating medallions. The guest prize was a lovely Irish lace handkerchief which fell to Miss Martha Smith, Misses Evelina and Alice Trichel and Ruth Knighton aided in the pleasant courtesies. Divinity fudge was served during the game intermissions and after the games, ices and cakes were served at the rook tables.

As each guest was welcomed by Mrs. J. W. Bateman on Monday afternoon when she entertained The Book Club, a paper was pinned on her shoulder giving the key for her behavior, so the good nature, moroseness, talkativeness, grouchiness, despondency, light-headedness, etc., evidenced throughout the evening were all together due to the mandates of the hostess.

Roses and sweet peas were used in great profusion throughout the pretty rooms that were filled with the many guests who enjoyed the delightful entertainment with the club.

A pretty romance charmingly conducted proved an interesting contest that stimulated the memory for flower and wood lore, at which Mrs. C. L. Breazeale won the pretty club prize, Mrs. L. R. Howell the guest's and Miss Weaks the general consolation. Misses Moore, Levy, Breazeale and Mmes. Porter and Dranguet assisted the hostess in serving a delicious course luncheon, while little baskets filled with home made candies were presented each guest as souvenirs of this delightful party.
