The Book Club

A most enjoyable party was given by Mrs. G. H. Pierson Wednesday afternoon of last week, when she entertained her club and a number of other guests, and her lovely home was gaily decorated with all the mystic signs of hallowe'en—pumpkins, black cats, witches, etc.

After Master David Pierson, the baby son, distributed pencils and papers, three minutes were given in which to write words, using only the letters in Hallowe'en, and when time was called it was found that Mrs. C. L. Breazele had the greatest number and was awarded the prize. Then sums were worked out from illustrations pinned on the wall, which, when proven, equalled fruits, cities, states, vegetables, etc., and in the final draw for the prize, Mrs. Roy was awarded the club and Miss M. Nelken the guest prize.

A delicious plate luncheon of chicken salad, sliced tomatoes with mayonnaise, saltines, cheese straws and tea, over which a dainty Hallowe'en favor mounted guard, followed by Neopolitan pudding, whipped cream and angel food cake, was served by the hostess, assisted by Misses Beth Williams, Josie D. Aaron, Mmes. Gannon and Turpin, and the guests who enjoyed the party with the club were Mmes. Shultz, Payne, Shaffer, Hicks, L. Hughes, Montgomery, E. Levy, J. H. Williams, C. M. Cunningham, Stephens, Chaffe, Bishop, and Misses Nash, Nelken, Greene and Etheridge.

Quite a bit of excitement was occasioned Tuesday night when the fire alarm sounded about 7:00 and it was found that the sanitarium was ablaze. Fortunately the hour was early and plenty of help was immediately on hand and if water could have been available at once, the damage would have been comparatively light, but in the excitement, much valuable time was lost before the hydrants could give full play, but when they did the fire was soon controlled. The patients were removed at once to neighborhood homes and comfortably cared for until the excitement was over then taken back to their quarters, without any serious consequences resulting. The trouble originated in the boiler room from a small heater whose pipes ran into the chimney, one joint of which had slipped and the sparks set the walls on fire and probably smoldered several hours before they burst into flames and were discovered.

The burning of the Adams home in East Natchitoches Sunday morning a couple of hours before day, startled sleepers who speedily rushed to the rescue, but the fire was under too much headway for any of the household goods to be saved; in fact, when the family awakened the house was practically gone. So the fire-fighters directed their energies to saving the surrounding property, and as a result nothing else was even scorched. Mr. Jeff DeBlieux owned the property which was insured.
