Zabher Pasha, who enjoyed the confidence of Gen. Gordon, has been arrested by the British as a traitor. His correspondence with El Mahdi has been discovered.

A. A. Porter, the editor and proprietor of the Pioneer, published at Weshville, Fa., has been missing several days. He had a considerable sum of money about him when he left home, and it is feared he has been foully dealt with.

A railroad train between Dallas and Fort Worth, went through a bridge on the 19th and was wrecked. The fireman, J. G. Hobeck, was killed and the engineer, Roach, fatally wounded. Several persons were more or less injured.

STATE ITEMS.

The receipts at the Exposition were over six thousand dollars Sunday.

The parochial expenses of West Feliciana for the year 1885 will not exceed $5655.

Mr. J. D. Penington of Claiborne parish, a large planter, died at his residence on the 11th.

Monroe, La., had a heavy shower of wild ducks not long since during a storm which fell in the streets of the town.

Mr. Ed Tucker, aged 40, a well known planter, died at Shreveport on the 16th, and Miss Bell Crooks, died there on the same day.

At Tigerville, La., on the 15th, a difficulty occurred between Ned Robertson and Ugeston Keller, negro laborers, in which the latter received a mortal wound.

The First National Bank of Baton Rouge, has ordered the erection of a bank building corner of Lafayette and Laurel. John H. Hanneu is architect and builder.

The young men of Houma are about taking the preliminary steps towards organizing a military company, as we learn from the Courier. It will be a move in the right direction.

Mr. Henry S. Armstrong for many years after the close of the war, an active member of the editorial corps of New Orleans and Galveston, was buried in the former city on Monday.

About the last of the week there will be in New Orleans a score or more of Indians from Tekit Yucatan. Their forefathers were troublesome customers to Cortez the conqueror of Mexico.

The Sugar Bowl says, we have never had a season, when seed cane has turned out more unusually sound, and instead of their being less seed put down than usual, there has probably been more in many localities on account of the lower price of sugar at last grinding. If the Sugar-Bowl is correct in its estimates, and we have what we may reasonably expect a good season this year, the outcome will probably show the largest crop made since the war.

One Hayes, a noted desperado famous for his crimes in Mass., where he jumped a $15,000 bail bond, has been arrested in New Orleans, and is on his way back escorted by a police officer.

One Levi P. Giles was bitten by a dog in New Orleans lately, and being told that if the dog should ever go mad, he would share the same fate, sallied out pistol in hand to slay the canine, but the owner of the brute refusing to have her pet thus summarily disposed of, poor Levi is left to dream of hydrophobia and mad houses all the balance of his days. He would have fared no worse had he been bitten by one of our newly imported rippers.

At the last term of Court in Marksville, the criminal docket of thirty-six cases was cleared in six days. That was certainly a wholesale business. We thought our judicial mill turned out criminal grists at a lively rate, but the stones will need repicking, and the boilers a still higher pressure before we can work off six criminal cases per day. Perhaps having the finest court house in the State, we take a little more time and grind a better article than is turned out at Marksville.

Mr. Louis Abadie of Pinaville, yesterday killed two tremendous hogs. They weighed when dressed 1010 pounds, and measured six feet eight inches around the body and were six feet in length. There were only ten pounds difference in their weight. The hogs were 16 months old.—Town Talk. That shows what can be done here in the way of raising our own meat, and yet people will continue to send to Cincinnati or Chicago for their bacon and lard. It is to be hoped that our people will in time see the folly of depending on other sections for necessities they more cheaply raise at home.

An old toper who had removed from New Orleans to Memphis, told a friend he was clearing one hundred per cent on his investments. When asked what line of business yielded so large a percentage he replied, that he could get brandy there for five cents a drink which anywhere else sold for ten cents, and he was of course doubling his money with every drink. The ladies in New Orleans seem to be doing even a better business at the Exposition as they pay fifty cents entrance fee, and get from the exhibitors as samples, mustard, soda, snuff, soap, tea, chocolate, east powder, cocoa, spool thread, glue, tooth powder, starch, soap, tobacco, tin pans, etc.

We have before us the semi-monthly edition of that sprightly little sheet The Youthful Idea, Vol. 1, No. 7, published at the Collegiate Institute at Baton Rouge. The Youthful Idea is furnished to subscribers semi-monthly for $1 per year, and parents could not invest so small a sum to better advantage than in putting this little paper in the hands of their children. The matter is well handled and children when reading it, will be aroused to unusual exertions to emulate the example set them by those of their own age. J. M. Leveque and W. T. King are the editors, and W. M. Gates is the publisher. The publisher is the promising young son of our worthy judge of this district, and seems to be a genuine "chip of the old block."
