OPEN AIR CONCERT. The Concert grounds on last Wednesday evening were the scene of gaiety and merriment. The sacred old building, consecrated to the education of the youth of New Iberia, stood forth in its lovely beauty in the midst of the most lovely environments of nature. The full moon pierced its silvery beams down through the overhanging branches of luxuriant live oaks, leaving here and there a covering of snowy purity on the lawn which sloped gently toward the bay.

The evening was calm and the air fresh and sweet. The songs of men, women and children caught a feeling of rest and peace. All laid aside their cares and enjoyments became the supreme duty of every one.

Under the trees tables were loaded down with choice delicacies. A touch of health and a sensation of pleasure are not only manifested in the heart, but also revealed themselves in the appetite. So the delicacies constantly disappeared and the ladies' treasury constantly became larger and the erection of a commodious boys school seemed to be a dream nearer realization.

But we must give some notice to the concert. Music always has charms. Where, however, the dome of the cathedral is the canopy of heaven and the beams are the strong arms of massive giants of the forest, we are almost lost in the grand pantheistic conception of nature. New Iberia contributed its best talent to the concert, Jew, Protestant and Catholic all mingled in a beautiful ecclesiastical harmony. What after all is true music but harmony of heart and life? When we mention Mrs. Charbonnet, Mrs. DeGeneres, Miss Annand, Mrs. DeLeon, Mrs. Dreyfus, Mrs. A. J. Suberbielle and Mrs. A. Grossman, talent enough is suggested to tune the minstrelsy of Paradise was a park of trees. So on this occasion Paradise was anticipated and we heard the echo of its beautiful song. When Mrs. Grossman sang "Ave Maria" it was like a real greeting to the mother of our Lord and so sweetly did she sing that the forest seemed to echo back the chorals of the angels. Often have we heard the Holy City sing similarly. The song itself seems to be so well adapted to spiritual emotion. It so completely anticipates the joys which every heart longs for when it realizes its better self. Wednesday evening Mrs. Miller sang it as we never heard it before. United with a rich cultivated voice is the soul of melody. The sweetness of Mrs. Miller's song is the heart of spiritual in sight and deep religious conviction. After a careful study of impression we have reached this conclusion. It was the response of the audience to higher and better life. The Holy City of all Mrs. Miller's religious songs—best realizes this spiritual awakening.
