still in the selection of Dr. Shaw we feel that some real good sanitary measures will be enforced that have been neglected heretofore and which caused a great deal of comment, particularly when there was such strong inclination to pay salaries that make it burdensome upon the people.

Complaints come to us by the farmers of a dearth of labor to harvest the heavy cane crop this season and especially with the prevailing good prices offered for cane cutters throughout the Parish. A great deal of assistance could be given the farmers at this time were the loafing class made to leave their loafing places in the cities and seek the employment that is offered all able bodied men both white and black that want work. There is no excess at this time for the idle class and we dare say one hundred able bodied men loafing in and around New Iberia could get employment were they taken up by the officers and made leave their loafing haunts.

—One of the prettiest weddings of the year was the celebration of the marriage of Miss Edmee DeBlanc, daughter of Mr. Leopold DeBlanc to Mr. Charles Dejean of Port Barre, La., on Wednesday evening, November 15, at 7:30 o'clock at St. Peter's Catholic church which was brilliantly illuminated with electric lights and waxen tapers and adorned with white flowers and ferns. A wedding march was played by Prof. Yves Armandez in a masterly way as the bridal party entered the church. The bride, a pretty blonde who has always been noted for her amiable disposition looked beautiful as she walked up the aisle leaning on the arm of her father. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and was attended by her sister, Miss Sophie DeBlanc as maid of honor. At the altar the bridegroom was awaiting her with his best man, Mr. E. Lassalle of Port Barre. The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Murgue. During the signing of the register, Miss Rita Marin sang the "Ave Maria." After the church service a reception was held at the home of the bride's father which was attended by the many friends of the family. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dejean who received many handsome presents left for a short trip and on their return they will reside in Port Barre.

DEATH OF MRS. MARY ELIZABETH SMITH.

On Monday night last at the residence of Hon. Henry N. Pharr at Olivier, all that was mortal of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Smith, passed to the great Beyond, surrounded by her large family of children and grand-children, aged 60 years. Mrs. Smith was a native of West Feliciana Parish and had been a resident here with her daughter Mrs. Henry N. Pharr for many years. The remains were interred in the family burial lot in the Protestant Cemetery on Tuesday evening in the presence of a large circle of sympathizing friends. She leaves the following sons and daughters to mourn her demise: Ventress J. Smith, Esq. of this City; Jos. J. Smith of Olivier; Kemp C. Smith of St. Francisville; Mat C. Smith of Baton Rouge; Mrs. John A. Pharr of Berwick and Mrs. Henry N. Pharr of Olivier.

A QUESTION OF PARENTAGE.

Usebas Parent thought it apparent that he was a parent of A. Parent. According to the law of nature there was no doubt but that he was his father, but the great question involved in the case of Mund vs. Rehaume, 117 Pacific Reporter, 159 was whether the father was the legal parent as well as the natural, and nominal parent. The mother was Usebas Parent's niece; therefore her son must have been his grand-nephew, and it certainly would be absurd to say that a grand uncle is a parent. But the legal question went ever deeper than this. While Parent's father and mother were regularly married, their marriage was void on account of relationship. Young Parent took out an insurance policy, payable to his parents, and his mother having predeceased him, the father claimed as being the only parent apparent. But if the marriage was totally void, how, under common law, would young Parent have any legal parent? The Supreme Court of Colorado, however, holds that it is not a question of descent, but one of contract, and that it is apparent that the senior Parents were in mind of the contracting parties as being the parents of young Parent, the insured, and hence allowed recovery by Usebas Parent, as being the real parent, as well as the apparent, of Adolph Parent. All of which seems very transparent.—Docket.

AL. H. WILSON.

Al. H. Wilson, who is credited as being America's foremost German Comedian, comes to the Theatre in Sidney R. Ellis, superb production of "A German Prince," which is described as a dainty love romance set in a frame of mirth and comedy. It is written along the usual Wilson lines of refinement and cleanliness, not a word or situation in the most modest person. The author has provided a delightful German atmosphere, with the result that it is said to be the most characteristically German comedy presented in recent years.

Mr. Wilson is acknowledged to be one of the sweetest-voiced singers on the stage, and in "A German Prince" he has ample opportunity to display the strength and control of his voice. His impersonation of the happy-go-lucky German who assumes the disguise of a courier that he may act as guide for a party of American tourists is equal to his ability to sing, and his artistic love-making is of the kind that both pleases and amuses. The play is said to be constructed along lines different from those introduced in any of Mr. Wilson's previous offerings, while the types of characters introduced are such as one who hasn't been in Germany might fancy would be found there, and they look true to those who have visited the Fatherland.

Mr. Wilson's character is that of an impoverished German Prince who falls into the hands of a scheming matrimonial agent and agrees to exchange his title for gold by marrying a wealthy American widow. After a sight of the widow, who is nearly 70 years of age, he rebels at the alliance and endeavors to have the contract set aside, but the widow who is smitten with his youthful charms, is not so easily put off. In despair the prince assumes the disguise of a courier and is later employed by a party of American tourists to guide them through the Austrian Tyrol. To his dismay he learns that his aged charmer is a member of the party, and the comely element is supplied by the prince in his frantic endeavors to escape recognition. There is a good deal of sprightly action and considerable comedy in each of the four acts and the stage settings are said to be of the superior kind. Among the new songs that Mr. Wilson will sing during the performance are "Her Smile," "Still as The Night," "When You Part From The Girl You Love," "Memory" and "Songs of Fatherland."

Will be here on Saturday, November 25th.

THE SHAME OF OUR SEX.

From The Think-Tank of An Idler
If there is any one thing more than another for which I blush to claim kinship with the sex to which I belong, it is our blind adoration to the Brainless Goddess, fashion!

An editorial in the States recently asserts that there is more time and money wasted by our sex in keeping up with the fashions, than is spent by the opposite sex on the liquor habit, and I haven't a doubt of the truth of the statement.

And yet all this while we've been mutually patting each other backs and arraigning our brother man!

The fashions now in regard to every visible article of woman's apparel are constantly changing and she who makes any pretence of following them, not only keeps her husbands nose constantly at the grinding stone in order to furnish her with the wherewithal, but has herself little time or brains left to devote to any higher purpose.

Many thoughtful students of social conditions believe that one of the chief reasons that men so frequently go money-mad to-day, and prove recreant to every public trust, is because women have become so idle and extravagant, requiring such a lot of money to enable them to be reasonably content and happy.

Meanwhile the fashion mongers go on gaily with their work, and if they ever consider us at all, think of us only as so many sheep, or creatures whose heads are filled with yellow water, upon whom they can palm off all sorts of absurd, ugly, senseless, not to mention shameless styles so long as they can draw from us our husbands' hard earned dollars.

In this day of a general awakening, is it not about time that we too, were beginning to open our eyes and ask where we ate at, what object we hope to accomplish, and whither we are drifting?

What is pretty and becoming to-day is always so, it matters not what changes fashion may decree.

Can we not make a new declaration of rights, and assert some individuality in a matter that comes home to us all as does this subject of dress. To do so requires courage however, for "None but the brave dare step aside."

From custom's iron rule;
The common mind must follow it,
Or be esteemed a fool."

A MODERN FABLE.

Plagiarised From the "Fra."
Satan was at one time a man. Later he evolved into an angel and dwelt in Paradise.

There must have been a time when he was worthy of trust and affection, otherwise the Almighty would never have allowed him to enter Heaven.

But Satan was of a peculiar disposition.

He had the artistic temperament, which is to say he was moody, irritable, faultfinding, also he was idle.

He smoked cigarettes and much of the time was full of dope and booze.

Instead of trying to remedy the weak points of Paradise, he merely pointed them out and harangued about them to all who would listen. They tell us "Satan still finds work for idle hands to do." It was the same then: Satan would neither tune harps, launder the robes, nor polish the pavement, which was made of gold and precious stones.

It took a lot of labor and a deal of skill to set the paving stones, but while the workers were at it, Satan would sit on the curb and make sport of them.

When the Almighty came around to see how things were getting along Satan would whisper unkind things about Him after he had passed and kick about how severe He was in discipline.

The Almighty warned Satan from time to time to get busy, but his answer was, "I am."

"Sure enough" replied the Almighty, but at the wrong thing.

They tried to get Satan to lead the Choral Society and break in the new arrivals, some of whom sang slightly off key. "I teach those jays! Why they have no voice—they only have a disease. You should not have let them in—what this place needs is a new gatekeeper who has nerve with him, and can direct the wrong applicant where to go! No, I'll not direct your orchestra; and anyway, I'm drilling a little class of my own and have no time. I'm organizing an Anvil Chorus."

It was no use—Saton would not do what he was told. He always knew a better way and he sneered at every plan for a heavenly betterment that he did not himself suggest. And he suggested precious few and these he could not carry out.

There was only one thing that interested him and that was the Anvil Chorus.

When the Saints sang Hallelujahs, Satan would start up his favorite instrument and pound. He wasn't industrious in anything but knocking.

Finally he had gotten so many people believing that the anvil was really sweeter than the harp that the Almighty lost patience.

And when it was discovered that Satan had started a factory to make hammer-handles, the Almighty decided to fire him bodily.

So the word was passed along, and the saints quietly tucked their robes in their belts and made a rush for Mr. Satan and his band of Knockers.

It was soon over. Satan was shot out of Heaven like a rubber ball from a vaudeville cannon.
