GAME LAWS IN BRIEF ISSUED BY COMMISSION. With only the early drafts of the law and rules governing the regulation of the conservation of game in Louisiana and the laws regarding the hunting of game, the seasons, etc., published in general, I have heretofore been somewhat at a loss for a thorough understanding of their rights and the positions they occupy. However, a summary, in concise form of the laws relating to game and fish, was issued by the commission, giving the hunter and fisherman a complete general knowledge of the subject.

A movement to band the sportsmen of the State together in a great organization to be called the sportsmen's (conservation) club, has been inaugurated by officials of the conservation commission. To attain a large membership and to become a power in the movement for the preservation of the game.

The organization is planned as an auxiliary to the conservation movement, with branches in every part of the State, through which the spirit of sportsmanship and the idea of conservation will be disseminated to the sportsmen. All who are interested in the movement are requested to communicate with A. Cardona, 611 Malheur Avenue, New Orleans, or sportsmen's headquarters at the establishment of J. A. Ballwin & Co., or A. Vittor & Sons, New Orleans.

A number of changes will be noticed in the game laws for 1913, chief among these being the increase in the limit of game to be killed under certain circumstances. For instance, the market hunter, hunting under special license, is allowed to kill fifty ducks per day. The hunter, too, he is a good one, may kill fifty snipe.

The following named game is permitted to be killed during the season hereon only: Ducks, Wood ducks, Sept. 1 to March 1. River and sea ducks, Green, blue, mallard, white, and black, Sept. 1 to March 1. Wild turkey (cocks only), Nov. 15 to April 1.

Florida ducks or black mallards, Aug. 1 to March 1. Pappabote, plover, chorooks, July 1 to April 1. Teal ducks, snipe, sand pipers, Sept. 1 to April 1. Woodcock, Nov. 15 to Feb. 1. Ring wing black bird, all the year round. Quail, Nov. 15 to March 1. Sea ducks, Aug. 1 to Feb. 1. Prairie chickens and quails, all the year round. Wild turkey, cock, not allowed to be killed or had in possession until December, 1913.

The following game birds only are permitted by law: Wild ducks, coots or Pouter, snipe, river ducks, and rails and their young during the open season for hunting these birds.

Professional hunters, those having a market hunter's license allowed not to kill exceeding fifty ducks in one day. Nonprofessional hunters allowed to kill of exceeding twenty-five ducks, four or five ducks, or snipe, or coots or Pouter, or any other game birds in any one day during the open season.

Honest Advice to Consumptives. Somehow there exists a vast amount of skepticism as to the possibility of curing Consumption. We state now but facts, and are sincere in what we assert.

If we were afflicted with Tuberculosis, we should do precisely what we ask others to do—take Eckman's Alternative promptly and faithfully. The reason we should do this and warrant you have for asking all Consumptives to take it, is that we have the reports of many recoveries, one of which follows:

1619 Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. "Gentlemen: For two years I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, the number totaled nearly one hundred. My family physician advised me to remain in bed and to take cod liver oil. I remained in bed for a year and a half, and in February of 1902, I was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered sufficiently to walk about the house I was left with a frightful hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could alleviate. It was at this time, March, 1902, that I learned of and started taking Eckman's Alternative. In a short time my cough was gone and I was pronounced cured. Since then I have had no more slight attacks of pneumonia and I have resorted to no other medicine to effect a cure."

I am at present in excellent health and feel that as long as I can obtain Eckman's Alternative, I have no fear of Consumption. I cannot speak too highly for the good it has done.

(Signed) HOWARD L. KLOTZ, Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and all other ailments of the respiratory system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for free evidence. For sale by all leading druggists.

Estorge Drug Co., New Iberia. PAVING WITH BRICK AND WOOD. A growing disposition is now apparent to make less of the first cost of paving for streets and highways generally, and more of the permanency of improvements. It has been established to the satisfaction of taxpayers and tax levying bodies, it would seem, that road-building is an art, and that there is neither sense nor saving in regarding it any longer as a mere laborer's job.

The experience of these later years with motor vehicles, rubber-tired and of great speed and weight, and with the new problems that they presented in friction and suction, has convinced not only those who construct highways, but more important still, those who pay for them, that something more than a good surface is necessary to permanency.

It is interesting to see the results of this later experience and the leading road builders back to the block system of pavement. The block system, it should be said, includes brick paving. Whether the block be stone, brick or wood, the advantage of employing it consists in the fact that it offers more than a surface to the grinding of the passing vehicle, and in the additional and equally important fact that it may readily, if injured, be removed and replaced.

Of the three, brick and wood seem to hold the preference, on the score of endurance, cleanliness, noiselessness and economy. Both wood and brick paving fell into disrepute in the past through no fault whatever of the block pavers. They failed because the first essential to flock paving—a proper foundation—was neglected. Originally the cedar block pavement was laid on planks; when the planks decayed the blocks sank, and in time disappeared in the mud. Poor workmanship characterized the use of the brick paving a few years ago, insufficient provision being made for the foundation. Lately, however, the foundations laid for both brick and wood, when laid as they should be, are solid pavements in themselves. Skillfully laid, the concrete foundation forms what amounts to an arch over the clay bed on the roadway, and is perfectly competent to bear the weight of traffic, when this concrete arch is laid with brick or stone, a pavement is obtained that may be trusted to resist pressure, friction and suction alike, and to wear indefinitely.

But the all important thing is that the paving shall be carried on under honest and efficient supervision and by skill-workmen. If so, the first cost should not be the main consideration, for the taxpayer will be paying for something that will last, not for a nothing that will have to be done over again a few years hence.—Christian Science Monitor.

OVERLOADING NEW ENTERPRISES. The County Review of Baton Rouge says: If one should take the trouble to study the origin of the successful enterprises that have in our day grown to great proportions, he would probably find that in every case they have developed from very modest beginnings. The great Astor fortune was begun and built up by the hard work and privations of a rugged old trapper and fur trader; the Vanderbilt fortune began with a loan to the elder Vanderbilt of a hundred dollars, which enabled him to operate a ferry-boat; the Gould fortune was laid by an itinerant telegraph operator.

It is the law of nature that solidity, strength and permanency should come gradually as a result of practice, experience and the rational exercise of the normal faculties. The man who starts out with a small enterprise learns every detail of his business, gains experience in watching it, finds out quickly what conditions affect it favorably or adversely and by patient industry and severe economy he has the satisfaction of seeing it grow constantly toward the goal he has in mind. And with its growth he also grows; so that, by the time his business reaches large proportions, he, having kept pace with it all the way, commands it with as much ease and with as firm a grasp upon its every detail as he did at the small beginning.

These observations are superinduced by an article by Dr. Dalrymple in this number of The Country Review suggesting the practicability of small meat-packing plants adapted to the existing supply of cattle and hogs, but capable of expansion in proportion as that supply may increase. In the South we are too prone to build the factories with capacities sufficient to handle several times the amount of raw material available and then trust to luck for the balance of the material necessary to keep the plant running. It is needless to say that in nine SUFFERED EVERYTHING For Fourteen Years. Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elgin, Ill.—"After fourteen years of suffering everything from female complaints, I am at last restored to health. I employed the best doctors and even went to the hospital for treatment and was told there was no help for me. But while taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use until I was made well."

Mrs. Henry Lusseno, 748 Adams St., Keosauqua, W. Va.—"I feel it my duty to write and say what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from female weakness and at times felt so miserable I could hardly endure being on my feet."

"After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following your special directions, my trouble is gone. Words fail to express my thankfulness. I recommend your medicine to all my friends."—Mrs. G. B. WHITTINGTON.

The above are only two of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which show clearly what great things Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does for those who suffer from woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

such cases out of every ten disastrous failure follows. Take for example the canning plant industry. A few years ago almost every town in Louisiana was clamoring for a "canning factory" as they called them. Several of them succeeded in building plants with capacities sufficient to can in one day all the available produce of an entire season. The result is that horses are being stabled lumber is being stored, ice is being made and various other things are being done in buildings erected for canning plants. Another very unfortunate result is that hundreds of men who got engaged in an enterprise foolishly overdone have been cured forever of going in with their neighbors to help build up the town. But there are canning plants organized and operated on sane principles, such as Dr. Dalrymple suggests, which are paying good dividends on the capital invested.

When the boll weevil appeared some years ago the necessity for other means of living became apparent. Naturally, one of the first suggestions was the growing of stock. Then dreamers began to plan packing houses almost rivaling those in Chicago, and great enthusiasm prevailed. Fortunately, but few got beyond the stage of agitation, but most unfortunately no small packeries, the building of which would be well within our means and the supplying of which with the new product would be easy, were undertaken.

Now is the time for such enterprises to be started. Already our girls are showing us how to make money out of canning plants which every family may own and operate. We are looking for our boys to show us pretty soon how to construct and operate a packing plant. So far as we old fellows are concerned there is no hope. A packing plant that we can handle we would scorn to organize. We must start out on the scale of the Armour's and but our brains out against the meat Trust, or, failing to connect on this, we refuse most positively to budge a step. Therefore, all hail to agricultural schools and the troops of shockheads who are coming on to take our places! Make way for the boys, who will need the space we are cumbering in order to do the work we have scorned to do because we couldn't start at the top.—Ex.

Last Wednesday Gov. Hall signed a lease giving the Gulf Refining and Oil Company the right to drill for oil and gas on a 500-acre tract of State land in West Parish. The lease is the first made under Act No. 258 of 1912, known as the Butler bill, which gave to the governor the power to lease State lands for mining purposes, reserving a royalty to the State.

The land leased is known as the Lake Bisteneau district, and adjoins valuable oil and gas property. The Commissioner of the Land Office, Fred Grace made a special trip over the land a few days ago to make out the leasing work properly.

BUY AT HOME. A citizen writes in another column relative to "buying at home." Town Talk hopes that every citizen will take the hint, and patronize home merchants and home industries. It is a mistaken idea that things can be had cheaper elsewhere. Our merchants purchase in the larger markets, paying cash for their goods, and can therefore offer the same goods at the same prices that they will send away to get them, in nine out of ten cases. You forget that you will have to pay the expressage; that you have the expense, small as it may be, of waiting for the package to come, say nothing of the time lost in waiting for the package to come. Then when you buy at home you see what you want, and if it is a garment that you are buying, you get fitted to your person, and avoid having to take something that you are not pleased with.—Town Talk.

BUY AT HOME. A fine horse belonging to Mr. F. C. Stair, who resides in the M. C. Moore property, corner Front and Lee streets, this city, walked into a large cement cistern in the yard, yesterday afternoon at about 4 o'clock. The cistern is about fifteen feet deep, and how the animal escaped being instantly killed is a miracle. Shortly after the horse fell into the well a force of men were put to work and a large excavation dug in the ground, the side of the brick cistern taken out and the animal brought to the surface without injury. The animal remained in the cistern for several hours before being rescued.—Alexandria Town Talk.

Some time ago the Parish of St. Martin, with a view of shortening the road to the City of New Iberia, went into heavy expenses making a good straight road near the Keystone plantation, with the understanding that the Parish of Iberia would meet its half way by building a road that would meet ours and do away with the toll road, which is an imposition upon the traveling public for which the Parish of Iberia is responsible. There is no reason that in this country the public should pay to go through a good and short road. We have made out part of the road and are still waiting to see if Iberia parish will do its share, but we fear disappointment.—Messenger.
