BE A GLOOM CHASER.

Societies have recently been formed in the South and Middle West under the somewhat formidable name of "Noble Order of Gloom Chasers." The organization was first started among the employes of industrial plants, wholesale and retail houses and those engaged in clerical work, but the movement has now spread until it embraces almost every line of endeavor.

The object is to preach optimism at all times. The dues, it is stated, are "one smile a day," and each member is required to take the following obligation:

"I smilingly agree to support actively the constitution and by-laws, the purpose and intent of the Noble Order of Gloom Chasers, in letter and spirit, until gloom is banished. Old Man Gloom shall never enter my office or workroom again, so help me Gloom Chasers. I am a Gloom Chaser until death do us part."

It is a great thing to be a chaser of gloom. There can be no greater ambition than to make people happy. There is too much that is drab and doleful and melancholy in this world, at the present time. There are too many heartaches and streaming eyes and pitiful faces and thin, pleading hands. There are too many people who, for some unaccountable reason, make it their business to spread the thought of gloom and melancholy among their fellow beings instead of letting in the sunshine. The Noble Order of Gloom Chasers is a great institution, and its rapid spread throughout the country is an indication that the people want sunshine instead of gloom.

But you do not have to be a member of the N. O. G. C. to be a gloom chaser. Whether you belong to that organization or not you can do your share to help push the clouds away. Every one can get up in the morning with a smile, which not only will radiate throughout the day to their own good but to the benefit of all those they meet.

"Mirth is God's medicine," says a noted writer. "Everybody ought to bathe in it. Grim care, moroseness, anxiety, all the rust of life, ought to be scoured off by the oil of mirth. It is better than emery. Every man ought to rub himself with it. A man without mirth is like a wagon without

"I used Hunt's Lightning Oil for my burn. It was the best thing I ever used. It cooled the burn and made it feel like a feather. I was able to get on with my work in a few days. I would recommend it to everyone who has a burn." — J. H. Smith, New Iberia, La.

springs, but a man who laughs and causes others to laugh, even though the days are dark and the causes for laughter are few, is like a chariot with springs in which one may ride over the rough roads and feel nothing but a pleasant motion.

The man or men who originated the N. O. G. C. are public benefactors. If there is such an order in your town by all means join it. If there isn't, start one, and if you cannot find enough people who would like to look upon the bright side of things instead of the dark, just appoint yourself the official Gloom Chaser of your locality, and begin today to push the clouds away.—Dearborn Independent.

Mother

Give Sick, Bilious Child "California Fig Syrup"

"California Syrup of Figs" is the best "laxative physic" to give to a sick, feverish child who is bilious or constipated. Directions for babies and children on bottle. They love its fruity taste. Beware! Say "California" or you may not get the genuine recommended by physicians for over thirty years. Don't risk injuring your child's tender stomach, liver and bowels by accepting an imitation fig syrup. Insist upon "California."—Adv.

GRAY SAMARITANS RESCUING CHILDREN

The Young Women's Christian Associations of the United States are keenly interested in the movement for the relief of the 3,500,000 starving children of Europe because a group of their members, the Polish Gray Samaritans, have been in charge of distributing food to children in Poland. They have been serving under the American Relief Administration and have conducted food kitchens and distributing stations in all parts of Poland outside Warsaw.

In all the relief work being done in Europe, that of the Polish Grays has been unique because all the girls, though sent from America, were either born in Poland or are of Polish parentage. When the need for social service in their country became acute many girls of Polish descent answered the call of the Young Women's Christian Association for overseas service and enlisted in the preliminary training course that was given in several cities of the United States. From this group thirty girls were chosen and sent to Poland where, since 1914, they have been caring for the children of the country. The distribution of clothing has taken them into all parts of Poland.

They are now spending their entire time in arranging for the feeding of children this winter. Groups of them travel to strategic centers in outlying districts where they set up distributing stations, receive supplies, prepare meals, arrange for impartial distribution and train helpers to continue the work when they are sent on to the next town.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a general strengthening tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

GAS TO FOIL BANK ROBBERS

Contrivance Threatens to Make Troops for That Particular Class of Society's Enemies.

Bank robbers who make a specialty of attacking vaults with explosives will do well to beware of a contrivance newly patented by Richard C. Roeschel of Harrisburg, Pa.

He proposes to provide a chemical defense for banks in the shape of an arrangement of glass tubes forming a sort of poison-gas battery. It may be made part of the gate inside a vault, or may have any other structural relation to the vaults that is deemed desirable. It may even be portable, so as to be placed in position at night, and removable in the daytime.

The tubes are designed to contain benzyl iodid, tear-gas stuff, or any other suitable chemical which, when it expands, is calculated to asphyxiate the robber or at least put him to flight. Bulbous expansions of the tubes furnish containers for the deadly material.

The robber has only to start something by setting off a charge of explosives. The concussion breaks the tubes; out flows the lethal chemical, and the business of burglary interests the nocturnal bandit no more for that occasion.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

A FIRESIDE TALE

By JENNIE LITTLE.

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Another story, child dear? Sure 'tis overdrawn like the Ponzil fella's my fund will be, with such a demand. Well, then, come with me, of an evening that I have in mind, to a grand concert hall in the city. A wonderful prima donna, the idol of her audience in two continents, has come upon the stage for her last number. As she stands waiting for the applause to die away, something that she reads in the waves of upturned faces moves her to a sudden impulse, and with a tender little smile, instead of the classical selection on the program, her voice second only in sweetness to the angels' fills the vast room with:

"There's a pretty spot in Ireland, I always claim for my land." In one of the boxes sat two of the earth's prosperous, and like a lightning artist, the man's mind flashed picture after picture on his memory's screen. In faraway County Clare he saw a young gossamer full to the brim of the sheer joy of living. The Scotch would call him a lad o' parts, the English a topping chap, but I'll declare to you that he was just a regular broth of a boy. Every old granny in the village, and clear down to every lass, thought the sun had its rising and setting in his merry charm, but only Eileen McDonough had a mortgage on his affections. Ah, but she was the winsome colleen, and the likes of her was not to be found in a day's travel.

Then an uncle in America sent money for his passage, with tales of success that set the lad wild to go. Eileen must stay with her old folks, but when he had a good start, then he would send for her, and together they would conquer this fine new country.

"My heart goes back there daily, To the girl I left behind me. When we kissed and said good-by." Ah, yes, at first 'twas so. Luck and pluck were with him, and his foothold grew firmer and stronger, and somehow in the struggle, Eileen drifted further into the background of his thoughts. The old bodies went one by one, and the black sorrow of loneliness was almost more than she could abide, but never did her sweetheart grow bitter or complaining in its wearying for him. Faithful and true she was to her troth with Terence O'Neill.

"Where dear old Shannon's flowing, Where the three-leaved Shamrock grows, Where my heart is I am going To my little Irish Rose.

And the moment that I meet her, With a hug and kiss I'll greet her—" Conscience woke up entirely, and a shillanish stroke was gentle compared to the pain she gave him. For in these latest months of his prosperity he had decided that only a high-born, cultured American woman could rule his home and help to find new fields for his never-satisfied ambitions, and, cold-bloodedly, without a thought of love, he had set about to win her. This very minute, by his side, sat the lady of his worldly choice, and he had felt much elated that now she seemed not a great deal averse to his gallant attentions. Sure, she never knew about that common past, and almost had he forgotten its connection with the aristocratic banker who looked at him from the mirror. Till tonight, that is.

"Sure no letter I'll be mailing, For soon will I be sailing, And I'll bless the ship that takes me To my dear old Erin's shore."

The lady turned with a disdainful curl of the lip. "Really," says she, "one might expect the best music here and not vulgar street songs," and Terence's heart turned over with a thud of gratitude that wisdom had come not too late.

Very quiet was he on the way home, and as he handed her from the limousine, declined her gracious invitation with a "Not tonight, thank you, as I have pressing business to attend to immediately. And I probably will not see you again for some time, as I leave on the Canopic's next date of sailing."

"Indeed," said the lady, in displeased surprise. "Surely this is very sudden."

"I've not yet booked my passage," says Terence, with an old-time Irish grin. "but I think the odds won't fall me this time." And neither did they.

And now we come to a matchless evening in dear old Killaloe—a night of enchanted moonlight, when all the fairies and little folk are casting their spells on everything. All alone at her window sits Eileen, with the melting sweetness of her harp soothing her voice as she sings so sadly: "It may be years, and it may be forever." And into the room strides Terence of her thoughts.

"Not on your life!" says he in the true American style, and then dropped on his knees beside her, and into the tender old brogue. "Mavourneen, all this time I've been madly, foolishly following a will-o'-the-wisp, but when I came to me senses and gave me heart the lead, it brought me to my own true love, straight as the crow flies. Will ye go back with me, darlin', to be the dear light of my life till the blessed saints call us from our own paradise to theirs?" And something he saw in her face made him dare to greet her after the fashion of the Shamrock song. Then because 'tis the way of a woman to forgive and forget, acushla, I can end my story in your favorite way: "And they all lived happy ever after."

THE FINEST COMPANY ON

COMING TO ELKS THEATRE NEW IBERIA.

Wednesday, FEB. 16th

When RALPH DUNBAR, the famous producer was deciding what Opera he would offer next following the triumphal tours of his "Robin Hood" and "The Chocolate Soldier" he mailed Ten Thousands Postal Cards to prominent theatre patrons of the middle west asking which of their favorite operas they preferred he should send them next, the answer came flying back almost unanimous

"THE MIKADO"

Liberetto by Wm. S. Gilbert, music by Arthur Sullivan.

Here are a few reasons for choosing THE MIKADO:

Because the music is the brightest and the comedy the funniest of all light operas.—From a Cincinnati Physician.

I want to have one more good laugh at Ed. Andrews as Ko Ko before I die.—From an Oklahoma Judge.

I sang it once and now I want to see it done by professionals.—From a Dallas Choir Singer.

After witnessing Mr. Dunbar's wonderful revivals of Robin Hood and The Chocolate Soldier I can imagine nothing more delightful than the Mikado Dunbarized. I should expect it to rival the original production from London.

And Mr. Dunbar has fulfilled all their expectations. He is sending Mikado with a wonderful cast of the best American artists. The chorus sings as only Dunbar Chorus can be made up of manly young men and beautiful young American girls from the best homes.

The first act discloses an ideal Japanese village. The second is a veritable Rainbow garden of poppies and cherry blossoms.
